DOVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MAKES GIFT TO NEW HAMPshire

FOURTEEN PROJECTS OUTLINED FOR ANNUAL NEW HAMPshire DAY WORK

Faculty Leaders and Student Assistants Directed Expeditions on Various John

SEVERAL NEW UNDERTAKINGS WILL BE STARTED

At a meeting of the New Hamp­shire Board of Trade in the new hotel in Dover Wednesday afternoon, a report was made by the president of the board on the activities of the chamber during the past year. The report included a summary of the work of the board and its future plans.

The meeting was attended by a large number of business men and women who were interested in the progress of the chamber.

The president of the board stated that the chamber had made great strides during the past year and that it was now ready to take on new and important undertakings. He mentioned several projects that had been outlined for the coming year, including the construction of a new building for the chamber, the establishment of a new library, and the creation of a new program of continuing education.

The president also spoke of the need for more volunteers to help with the various activities of the chamber. He urged all members to contribute their time and energy to the chamber's work.

In conclusion, the president expressed the hope that the chamber would continue to grow and that it would be able to serve the needs of the community in the years to come.

Tells The New Hampshire Of African Experiences

TRIP 5268 MILES LONG

Entertained by Jan Sauer of Cape Town. The Sauer family is retired at Hyde Park, N. Y.

This week we saw the second and final installment of the story of the adventures of New Hampshire repoter John Sauer in Madagascar. In his report, which appeared last week, Mr. Sauer told of his trip to Africa on the Uni­versity of Maine, which was published in the New Hampshire Daily.

Mr. Sauer left New Hampshire on a boat bound for Madagascar, which is a large island off the coast of Africa. He arrived on the island after a journey of several weeks and was then taken to a small town nearby. He describes the town and its people in his report, and also tells of the strange sights and sounds he heard while in the town.

Mr. Sauer then went on a trip into the interior of the island, and described the sights and sounds he heard on this trip. He also tells of the people he met and the food he ate during his trip.

Mr. Sauer left Madagascar and returned to New Hampshire on a boat bound for New York. He arrived in New York after a journey of several weeks and was then taken to his hotel.

Mr. Sauer is now at work on a book about his trip to Africa, and is expected to publish it within a few months.

To the Editor of The New Hampshire

I have been told by my school's society editor that the subject to be debated is: "Refinishing Old Furniture to the Highest Degree - Is it a Thinkable operation?"

Without a doubt we often fail in expression. Why then do we put on the good old scenes of old opera and tell our friends that we think they will be grateful? For I will tell you at once and at any time when I see that you are trying to persuade the public to do something, I will tell you at once and at any time when I see that you are trying to persuade the public to do something, it will be a far different matter. Now then, why not? If you are trying to persuade the public to do something, why not? If you are trying to persuade the public to do something, it will be a far different matter.

The news is in the state, each school being allocated a certain number of members. These are to be selected by the students from their own ranks. The society is to be divided into two classes, the first consisting of students in the first three years of college, and the second consisting of students in the last three years. The officers of the society are to be elected by the students at the beginning of each year. The society is to hold meetings at least once a month, and at each meeting a report is to be made of the society's activities for the preceding month.
