DURHAM SCENE OF TERRORIZING MARTIAL PLAY

Mock Battle is Staged

BY M. C. MURPHY

DURHAM—NINE men who are members of the University of New Hampshire’s Athletics Association on Saturday staged a mock battle of the type that was popular during the Civil War.

The battle was held on the athletic fields at the University and an audience of about 500 registered military personnel and civilians viewed the scene from the windows of the building.

The battle, which lasted about three hours, was divided into two parts: the first part was a mock assault on the town of Durham and the second part was a mock defense of the town against the assault.

The mock assault was led by General Grant, played by Captain McCaffery, and the mock defense was led by General Lee, played by Captain Egan.

The battle ended with the mock army retreating to the Union lines, and the audience was left with a sense of the horror and destruction that accompanied the Civil War.

TO MR. JAMES CHAMBERLIN

We take off our editorial hat. Congratulations to the Class of 1925 on their homecoming to the lower house from Dartmouth, on their long and arduous and faithfullly for the advancement of the cause. Mr. Chamberlin served as a member of the Committee of Nine. We recognize that one of the most important assignments in the administration of any college is the Special Committee for the Improvement of the Elementary Schools. Among the members of the Committee on Five Hundred, almost by the unison of Chamberlin and Sandy, a scheme was prepared which would result in our educational progress. Mr. Chamberlin has said, "Chamberlin has made a major contribution to the political, financial, and economic progress of the University. I don’t know what we would do without his vision and leadership.

Mr. Chamberlin has worked with the instructors and to the students. He has been successful in the preparation of the University for the future. He has been an example of the highest level of achievement, and his efforts.

Mr. Chamberlin’s work has provided for the University to grow and prosper and to the advancement of the cause. Mr. Chamberlin has served as a member of the University's executive council. His effort has been outstanding. His work has been appreciated by the students and faculty.

We suggest three cuts per day, and please do not forget to take her rightful place in the education of the masses. We agree, in formal meeting, upon a date of this kind.

Mr. Chamberlin himself, he has worked in the interests of the cause more nobly. New Hampshire appreciates Mr. Chamberlin and to the advancement of the cause. Mr. Chamberlin has contributed significantly to the education of the masses.
