EDITORIAL

From
Bill Boyd

I sometimes feel like I have created a controversy when none should exist. The current case in point. While I was at the National Convention in Portland, I mentioned that I felt that we should get back to teaching square dancing. One caller stated that it was easier to call and teach square dancing thirty years ago as there were only about forty calls. I stated that the difference was, with only about forty calls, you had to call them in about two or three thousand combinations to keep your dancers interested and coming back to your dances. Both dancers and callers liked the variety and fun created by knowing how to dance. For example, it is far easier for a caller to teach Acey Deucy from standard position than to teach wheel and deal from a variety of positions. Some say new dancers get confused when you call from boy, boy, girl, girl combinations, or lines facing out, or, gasp the girl on the right hand side. I was told that the dancers do not need to learn the definition of a call, only learn to do the call by rote. I ask this caller if he even ever explained to his dancers the concept of leaders and trailers, his reply was, “No, that if you just told the dancers to follow someone or move forward that was all they needed to know.” I guess the controversy that I started was that I want dancers to learn to dance. I want them to know and understand the definitions so they can dance to a variety of callers, not just their own teacher/caller. I see dancers take pride in knowing their dancing skills are a high level and they see other dancers try to get into their square. Do I believe in the levels concept - yes! I want to know if I walk into a mainstream dance that is the level which will be called. The same with plus, advanced or challenge. Watch your dancers face when they master a new move. When they square through four, successfully and then from a variety of positions (an old trick with the new twist, have someone stand in the center with a twenty dollar bill and say, “follow the money”). Have a little fun in your teaching methods and follow it up with a few singing calls. They won’t be bored and you will graduate better dancers.

I am not sure I would buy from them...just look at those shifty eyes!

Peek Into a Cuer’s Record Case

Eileen and Bob Silvia have been dancing since 1986 when they took their first square dance lesson in Manchester, New Hampshire. They began Round Dancing in October 1987 and have been fortunate over the years to learn from many fine teachers. Eileen and Bob have attended weekends, and dance clinics conducted by various national Round Dance leaders and have attended three Cuers Colleges as well. Eileen has cued at The New England Round Dance Gala several times and she was chairman for the Gala of 1995. The New England area has their Square Dance Convention in April where Eileen and Bob cued and taught. They have run successful round and square dance weekends in New England, and continue to be on staff at weekends and festivals in California and Arizona. Continuing their dance education is important to them and they take any opportunity that may present itself to further their knowledge.

Members of Roundalab since 1992 they are currently on the Board of Directors and are Chairman of the Index of Rounds Committee. They have attended 10 Roundalab Conventions, 12 National Square Dance Conventions, 2 USA West Conventions and a Canadian Festival as well. They have done demo dances and taught at five conventions including the California State Convention on the Queen Mary and at the Nationals in Minnesota, Oklahoma, Colorado and Oregon. Their dance choreography includes: “In The Navy,” “Quickstep Ain’t Enough,” “Rumba My Way,” “Huckleberry,” and “Hushabye III”.

In 1993 they opened the Mill-A-Round Dance Center in Manchester, New Hampshire. The center was dedicated to Rounds, Squares and Country Western. It provided a family oriented atmosphere for the dance community, which was warmly received. The facility had over 4000 square feet of hard wood dance floor that the dancers loved to call home. Several callers also used the facility for weekends including Challenge level Squares and they sponsored several Round dance clinics there as well. The New England Square Dance Federation established their headquarters and a library at the Mill-A Round and the facility continues to survive. The Mill-A-Round featured several national callers and cuers as well as giving new callers and cuers a chance to be presented to the dance community.

In 1994 they were relocated to South Korea where they became members of the Kimchee Promenaders. During their time in South Korea Eileen cued and they taught Rounds on Yongson Base in Seoul. They relocated to southern California Continued on page 27

American Square Dance, August 2005
Now is the time to really prepare for your fall recruiting and bringing new people into our great activity. This should have been an on going project for you and your club. Your responsibility as a dancer, club officer, caller or just a concerned person is to make a commitment to spreading the word about an activity that will keep your mind and physical well being active along with the rewards of the social contacts. If the participants & leaders of our activity heed the following, we will not have to prepare as our activity will fall beside the way.

Killing Square Dancing in Ten Easy Steps

1. Don’t Advertise! Just pretend everybody knows about square dancing and what it has to offer.
2. Don’t Advertise! Tell yourself you just don’t have time to spend thinking about promoting Square Dancing.
3. Don’t Advertise! Just assume everybody knows about square dancing.
4. Don’t Advertise! Convince yourself that you’ve been in square dancing and dancing or calling so long that people will automatically come to beginner classes.
5. Don’t Advertise! Forget that there are new potential dancers who would be interested in square dancing with you if they were reminded and urged to do so.
6. Don’t Advertise! Forget that you have competition trying to attract new dancers away from the activity.
7. Don’t Advertise! Tell yourself it cost too much to advertise and one doesn’t receive enough response to cover the amount spent.
8. Don’t Advertise! Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling...Not an expense.
9. Don’t Advertise! Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your club.
10. Don’t Advertise! Forget that you have to keep reminding your club members that you do appreciate that they are part of a great activity.

September has been a focus point in our promoting the square dance activity. We have an activity that people should be pounding the doors to try. What are we doing to our heritage? Are we killing square dancing in ten easy steps? What are your associations, clubs officer, instructor, callers, dancers doing to promote?

We have a super activity. Please get out there and be proud to promote and advertise Happiness set to Music...Square Dancing...

Changes and Creativity

The American Callers' Association in its attempt to be of service to all callers, dancers, and associations provided current, timely, and effective information on new dancer recruitment for most of the years 2001-2005. The American Callers Association appreciates the positive comments, encouragement to continue, and contributions from callers all over the country and from abroad to continue these initiatives. The American Callers Association will continue to provide information that will help the square dance community recruit, retain and retrieve square dancers as well as encourage the dancers to speak out on the cumbersome dance programs.

The American Callers' Association would like to thank Mr. Tim Crawford, Chairman of the Board, CALLERLAB for his initiatives in this American Callers' Association Viewpoint. Recently, Tim gave a speech at the Louisville, 2005 Kentucky CALLERLAB Convention. He discussed a CALLERLAB Program Policy Initiative (PPI), which can be identified with creative programs to attract new dancers. New dancer recruitment appears to be at an all time low as both Mainstream and Mainstream/Plus clubs are having difficulty recruiting new students for square dancing. Square dancing appears to be losing 10% of its dancers per year as membership declines.

Tim describes, and ACA agrees and supports his opinion, on promulgating a "new way of thinking," which is thinking beyond the tired traditional and mechanical ways. He recognizes that different clubs in different parts of the world will apply square dance calling and teaching differently. Square dance calling and teaching, with its traditionally based programs, lists, and levels may be based upon economic, human, and logistics factors such as hall cost, availability, and club (people) preferences. He argues that callers and teachers should attempt to hang on to the principles of standardization when possible, but this is not the only end in itself.

Rather than the traditional set of weeks for lessons, clubs and callers are now trying ten-week programs, revolving door programs, one night stand activities, including the multi-cycle activities. Although Tim does not mention it, the American Callers' Association International One-Floor 15-20 week programs fits into Tim's "Winning Ways" categories. Each of these items when applied by a club or caller may offer the caller and club opportunities to increase its number of new dancer graduates as it may offer many unique methods to present the art of square dancing.
Tim even ventures further into his visualization as he argues that for square dancing to grow, we need to embrace a thinking that invites ideas and innovations and one that is not bound by the baggage of the past.

Tim also states that he may be talking about a complete overhaul of the square dance product such as new lists of movements; no requirement for dress codes, spandex becoming acceptable attire, ten week lesson programs, and competition.

Tim further asks and begs the following question; "Would I as a square dancer/caller be in a position to change my thinking?" What Tim is trying to say is that change is not necessarily a bad thing, and that we as callers and dancers should be open to change. In fact, the American Callers’ Association was founded because a large percentage of the existing callers wanted to have a one-floor program not segregated levels or programs.

Tim appears to encourage CALLERLAB to help get the wheels moving. He mentions that the Program Policy Committee through its Program Policy Initiative (PPI) concludes that the solutions to the serious and critical decline in the number of dancers, are not easy to find, but they are out there for the taking. The PPI also encourages experimentation with any phase of square dancing. The PPI invites callers to report back about experiments they are trying and their degree of success. The PPI is using a new and creative mindset to look for solutions. Tim lastly argues that over the past decade that he has viewed changes in attitudes with more talk of changing square dancing to repopulate the activity and to stop the decline in the number of dancers.

The American Callers’ Association salutes and supports Tim Crawford’s beliefs and intentions and wishes him the best of success with the new PPI initiatives. The American Callers’ Association would be willing to work with CALLERLAB and other leadership organizations, anytime and any place to further square dancing and to help test some of the initiatives to search for those changes, which would reverse the decline of square dancing.

Any individual, club, caller, or association who wishes to communicate his/her opinions on this subject is encouraged to contact the American Callers’ Association at Loulet@aol.com or Dr. Patrick Demerath at pdemerath@troy.edu. Please visit our website and newsletters @AmericanCallers.com/news.

Until next time, Happy Dancing.

2. Personal correspondence with Dr. Cooper to Dr. J. L. Walker, M.D.

Dr. Cooper states, “I encourage everyone to keep up with an exercise program. Square Dancing meets all the requirements that avoid inactivity and has considerable merit in increasing longevity and reducing death from all causes. Only 30 minutes of some form of low intensity sustained activity, three time per week, will provide great benefit.”

Did you know that, in an evening of square dancing, you may dance 16,415 feet (about three to five miles).

Now that you know the facts about our “Best Kept Secret”, join in – it is no longer a Secret.
The Lonesome Shepherd

Recently we have been looking at a variety of formations. Here is yet another one that is not used too often, but provides variety without much explanation. It is called an alternate triple. Triples are dances in long lines, but instead of two couples working together, three couples work together.

To set up a triple, have the dancers form in long lines with all the men to the caller's right and the ladies to the left. Have the dancers take "hands six" from the top — in other words, make small circles of six dancers, the top three couples, the next three, and so on. The couple in each group that is closest to the caller is the active couple, followed by couple two and couple three. The actives progress down the hall to always dance with two additional couples. The couple that was number two moves up the hall either to become the new number three couple, or to become resting at the top of the hall. The number three couple moves up to become the new number two couple with the same active couple.

The situation is a little different at the back of the hall. The active couple has only one other couple below them, but they must dance as if there were three couples. In some dances that means dancing with a "ghost couple" in order to progress.

In "The Lonesome Shepherd" the dancers start off in lines with the men to the caller's right. They then take hands six to identify what three couples are dancing together and to identify the actives. Now have the actives change places with their partners, so the active man is in the ladies' line, and the active lady is in the man's line. This is an alternate triple (triple with couples 1, 4, 7, etc. active and crossed over).

The Lonesome Shepherd  Traditional

Intro: - - - - , active lady lead your men

1-8: - - - - - - -

9-16: - - - - , active men lead your ladies

17-24: - - - - - - -

25-32: - - - - - , active couples down the center

33-40: - - turn, - - come back

57-64: - - - - - , re-clump, and active ladies lead your men

The active lady has two men to her right; those three, with the lady in the lead, circle around the active man and the two ladies and back to place. The active lady has 16 counts to take the two men in a line past her partner (passing right shoulders), around behind three people, and back to place. Then the active man leads his two ladies past his partner (passing left shoulders), around behind three people, and back to place.

As soon as the active man is back to place, he and his partner go down between the two lines for 4 steps. On beats 5-8, they turn alone. The actives come back up the hall so that they are between the #2 couple of their set. The #2 couple should turn to face the front of the hall so that the two couples momentarily form a line of four. The action is very much like "put centers in" from square dancing. With the ends, or the #2 couple, pivoting, they cast-off three quarters. The active couple has now moved down the set one position and has the #2 up the hall from them. The two couples who did the cast-off now do a right and left thru over and back. They should be standard couples.

As soon as they finish the second right and left thru, they need to get ready to start the dance again. That is why in the notation it says "reclump." It is just a verbal clue for the dancers to form new sets of three. The actives must ignore the couple they just did the right and left thru with and absorb a new couple at the bottom of their group. That means that the #2 couple of each set works up to the front of the hall. In the first set at the top of the hall, the #2 couple has no one to dance with, so they go into a resting mode. The other #2 couples down the line move up to become the #3 couple of a new set. The #3 couples move up the set to become the #2 couple with the same active couple.
The active lady now has her old #3 man next to her as the #2 man, and a new #3 man joins the set. The active lady leads her new group of three past her partner, remembering to pass right shoulders. This transition of dancers from one set to the next causes a lot of confusion, and usually causes a lot of laughter from the dancers. Often the active lady forgets she is active, and so needs to be reminded—often by the dancers in her set. The new #3 dancer will forget that he is supposed to attach to a new group and has to almost run to catch up. Sometimes the active man will not let go of his old #2 lady so there is no gap for his partner to go with her line of men. All of the missteps lead to laughter and a lot of fun. When an active couple reaches the bottom of the hall, they must cross over to the other line and wait to become a #3 couple. At the top of the hall, the dancers must wait until there are three couples to dance, and the top couple must cross over to become active. I think this dance is the best dance to teach the idea of progression in triples because the dancers can see who are the active couples because they are crossed over.

For music, I use something lively and recognizable. Most often I use Arkansas Traveler, and there are several really good recordings of the tune. Play it at a tempo so that the dancers have to move, but not so fast that it is uncomfortable to keep up or impossible to recover when they make mistakes. Enjoy.
With the kids still home from school and enjoying the summer evenings, here is an old play-party that I still remember doing many years ago. I located the music just a short time ago. It is called—-

Here Comes Sally

Formation: Couples in a circle facing partner with man’s back to center. Extra women in center of circle.

Music: Here Comes Sally. Available from the Kentucky Dance Foundation.

Routine:
Here comes Sally down the alley,
Here comes Sally down the alley,
Here comes Sally down the alley,
Way down south in Dixie.

(Extra women skip around circle CCW between men and women.)

Everybody promenade
With your partner promenade
With your partner promenade
Way down south in Dixie.

NOTE: If extra men are present, change call to “Here comes Pete down the street.”

I researched the following square dance from the Community Dance Journal of CALLERLAB. It is a novel routine and certainly a “quick-teach”. It is called—-

Push Ole Ma and Push Ole Pa

Formation: Square

Music: Hoedown

Routine:

Description:

9-16 Dancers in couple 1 gently push the dancer in front into the center. Those pushed in Swing and back out into the vacant spot.
17-32 Those now at Couple 2’s spot repeat the action by splitting Couple 4 and separating behind heads to push the same sex in.
33-48 Repeat a third time with those now at Couple 3’s spot. After this all have their original partner and are in sequence.
49-64 Circle Left 3/4 around the circle so all end at home.

Note: The lady who begins the figure will be active all 3 times.

In the June Easy Level column I featured an Easy Square by Chuck Jaworsky and after knowing Chuck for several decades, I misspelled his name, so my apologies Chuck and following is another of his offerings, but I’m naming this one spelled correctly, calling it the - - -

in October of 1996 and started the Silver Steppers Round Dance Club. Eileen and Bob teach nine classes weekly and cue for more than five square dance clubs. You can dance with them at the Ichabod’s on 3rd Fridays, Shirts and Skirts and Orange Coast Lariats on alternating 2nd Saturdays and alternating 5th Saturdays, Rambling Rogues on 1st Fridays and Boys ‘N’ Berries on 1st Saturdays. Eileen also runs a Round Dance Party every 2nd Friday. Eileen and Bob are the Co-Chair of the Round Dance program for the California State Convention to be held in Ventura, California in April of 2006 and will be Chairman of the Round Dance program for the California State Convention in 2007 in Riverside.

In July 2004, they opened the Cedarbrook Dance Center in Garden Grove, California. The 8000 square foot center consists of two dance halls with over 5000 square feet of dance floor and a store where dance shoes and attire can be purchased. Their center features classes in square dancing and round dancing for people of all ages (currently student ages range from teen to 97 with the average age about 50). Salsa and line dance classes are also offered at the center. New classes in both Square and Round dancing are offered regularly as well. There is also a monthly 2nd Sunday afternoon dance for children ages 5 to 21 sponsored by the Croakers Youth Square Dance Club. Eileen and Bob look forward to meeting you on the dance floor.
Your Rovin’ Corner
54th National Convention

Jim and Betsy have traveled across the US and around the world, dancing and promoting dancing. Each month we share with you our experiences and thoughts. This month we are looking at the 54th National Square Dance Convention.

Portland’s 2005 National Convention finally arrived, after four years of planning and work by the committees, and three more years of pre-planning and work to gain the nomination. The choice could not have been better! As you all know, Betsy and Jim worked for four years promoting Portland in the International Community, and we had over 300 dancers from abroad attend. With 8006 total registered, that is the biggest percentage of foreign registration ever! It is not the absolute largest or greatest number, but an excellent showing.

When Portland had the convention in 1994, it was a given that with effort and determination, they could win the convention bid again. Lee and Barbie Ashwill led the dancers from Oregon and Washington in the successful effort to win the bid — and were inspired and inspirational leaders! They were tireless in their quest to have the best convention possible — and it was the best run convention we have seen in some time. The Oregon Convention Center was a wonderful venue, Portland opened its arms to the dancers and everyone had a great time.

The Ghost Riders played nightly to a variety of callers, and their mainstream hall was always packed. There were halls to accommodate all levels of square dancing and round dancing. The exhibition groups performed well, and one of the groups was featured each evening at the official ceremonies. One innovation this year was a special opportunity for young callers to perform. The Pacific Northwest has long had a strong youth program and these young callers acquitted themselves well. We have a grand group of upcoming callers!

Grand Square Incorporated sponsored one of the biggest afterparties on Wednesday evening after Johnnie Limbo and the Lugnuts performed their 50’s and 60’s Rock and Roll. Naturally, Tony Oxendine, Jerry Story, and the other biggest names in current square dancing performed and captivated the audience.

Lee and Barbie and the convention board were very sensitive to the needs and desires of the dancers, and to the overall good of square dancing. While most of the dancing occurred at the convention center, the Oregon Dancers raised the money themselves and gained the use of the Lloyd Center Ice Skating rink as a public venue for square dancing. Dancing occurred at Lloyd Center from 10:00am to 10:00pm daily, much to the delight of the passersby. Lloyd Center is one of the largest malls in Portland and thousands of shoppers viewed the colorful and skillful square dancers practicing their favorite activity. The Portland area hopes to gain a significant number of newer dancers from this very public exposure.

The local TV stations got on board as well. We no sooner arrived in Portland than we were told that on Wednesday morning at 6:00am they needed 100 dancers to perform for TV at the convention center. Tony Oxendine called, and remarked that he had never called so early in the morning. Local TV personality Drew Carney hosted and was hosted by the dancers. Naturally, we soon got him into a western shirt, and on the floor. Tony then brought him to the stage and said that most callers are failed dancers, and that Drew should learn to call as it was much easier than learning to dance. Drew struggled through several maneuvers and the dancers responded with glee! Channel 8, seeing the success of channel 13’s program, promptly scheduled a broadcast for 5:00am on Friday! Yep, we did that too!

When the flooring that was installed over carpets showed signs of being inadequate, Ron Holland, of Dancing Delight rushed in to provide a better surface for the dancers. Similar adjustments occurred throughout the convention when various glitches appeared. Lee and Barbie seemed to be everywhere, solving problems and demonstrating leadership. They led their enthusiastic volunteers with energy and delicacy. They insisted throughout that the committees take responsibility to plan and develop the convention, while keeping careful watch on the plans and activities.

San Antonio, Texas is the next convention site. Yes, we are on the committee for San Antonio as well – Directors of International Publicity again! These National Conventions are habit forming! We hope to see all of you in San Antonio!

NOTES IN A NUTSHELL

A Review by
Frank Lescrinier

JOHN’S NOTES

John Saunders (johnnysa@aol.com) – http://squaredancing.org/johnsnotes

John includes a record review and things of interest section. There are several singing call figures included that are used in the newly released songs.

In the Workshop Ideas section John features an article from November 1979 written by Frankie Lane. The article was titled, “An Overlooked Movement”. Frankie writes, “With the trend of naming new figures and making the choreography more complex and challenging we have almost forgotten the ‘Star’ as a device for adding interesting, flowing and sometimes downright challenging patterns to our programs”.

The Mainstream (1-53) Program call this month is Extend (from 1/4 Tag only). Turn Thru is the highlighted call in the Dancing the Mainstream Program. Starting formation: Facing dancers. Each dancer steps forward to join right forearms with the other dancer. They turn by the right one half (180 degrees), release arm hold and step forward, ending back to back with each other. Timing: 4 steps from point of contact.

Dancing the Plus Program this month looks at the call Spin Chain Thru. This is the root call for Spin Chain the Gears and Spin Chain and Exchange the Gears. It seems as if Spin Chain Thru has lost favor with the callers as well as the dancers. Add some variety by having the waiting dancers (the initial centers) doing something other than the often used ‘Circulate two times’.

The Advanced and Challenge Supplement includes: Double Star Thru; Trade Circulate (Ocean Waves); and the Siamese Concept.

If you publish a note service and would like it reviewed in future issues of this magazine, please send them to: 9836 E. Foothill Blvd. #6108, Upland, CA 91786. I will be glad to include your notes in future reviews. Thanks, Frank

Bill Wilson

A Profile in Courage By Karen Knudson and Kenny Freeman

Bill Wilson is a logger, and it takes huge logging equipment to handle the huge Douglas fir trees we grow here in Washington State. The accident happened July 5, 2000. When Bill felt himself slipping under the tracks of the 30,000 pound log loader, his first reaction was regret that he’d never dance again. His second reaction was anger at this fate, and determination. With that he threw his hat into the air toward the driver’s cab. His signal worked and the driver stopped. Bill said he must have been in shock as he doesn’t remember much pain, although, he said with a laugh later, “I didn’t look down.” Bill almost died there, as co-workers did what they could and called for help.

A company helicopter making a stop at a site not too far away heard the call for help, and airlifted Bill to the closest military base airfield, where he was transferred to a Medivac helicopter and taken to surgeons at Harbor View Medical Center in Seattle. The medic flying with him told him to hang on. “We’ll have you there in only five minutes. Just five minutes longer.” Bill wasn’t sure he could last five minutes.

He had already lost so much blood and suffered so much damage that the decision was made to amputate Bill’s right leg. In the process the main artery was severed. Bill almost died then, too. But he didn’t.

The pain was so great that doctors induced a coma for ten days and Bill was carefully watched in the burn unit by staff as well as his wife. Hospital staff expected that Bill would be at the hospital for at least 90 days while he learned to sit up in a wheelchair. They obviously didn’t know Bill. Not only did he leave in only 30 days, but he had the staff at Good Samaritan Hospital up and dancing around him as he called a demo dance.

But Bill says, “If it weren’t for my wife, Debbie, and for square dancers, it wouldn’t have gone as well as it did.” Bill could feel the support of fellow dancers from all around Southwest Washington. At least two dances were held in Olympia that included blood drives with over 40 units collected. Dancers came to visit Bill and Debbie at the hospital and helped him out at that demo in the hospital. And when, miracle of miracles, Bill could serve as MC at Elma’s Blackberry Festival in September, less than 3 months after losing his leg, there were many of us who travelled from all over to rejoice in his recovery.

Bill called from a wheelchair that night, and some might have been content with the progress he’d already made, but not Bill. He’s gone through exhaustive therapy and pushed the limits for every step. He graduated to crutches, but kept pushing.

It was in March of 2002 that we saw him not only with his new prothesis, but out there on the floor, and Bill was dancing! He danced his first plus tip (called by Don Wood) and he danced several of the rounds.

"Is there anything you can’t do?” asked a fellow dancer. Bill laughed as he said, “I can’t back up.” But knowing Bill, I wouldn’t be surprised if he masters that as well.

Bill and Debbie started square dancing in 1989, and Bill began calling in 1991. He became the caller for the Harbor Haylofters in Aberdeen and Hoquiam, Washington in 1994. Bill has held numerous positions in the square dancing world, including Vice President of the Sou’wester Council, and Vice President and President of the Olympia Callers and Cuers Association. But he has a life outside of square dancing as a good friend, Jim Skinner, and he are building a bass fishing boat especially designed for Bill to use.

How often has a fear of appearing clumsy or missing a call discouraged some of us? Or maybe little creaks or aches have led us to sit out an extra tip? Bill is a model for all of us, as he has faced with courage and grace, and even cheerfulness, this terrible accident and the changes it has made to his life. Thank you, Bill, for everything.
Do People Like To Watch You Dance?

They do if you do the following:

1. Keep squares small. Most dancers have heard this and will have their square small when they square up. But as they dance, the square expands. However, all it takes is 1 or 2 dancers to pull the square back tight by adjusting their ending position for 2 or 3 consecutive calls. You should be constantly thinking about square size as you dance, and be active in working to keep the square small.

2. Take small steps. This is the key to keeping the square small. If everyone took small steps, the square would always remain small.

3. Keep your head turned toward the center of the square as you dance. You must know what is going on in the full square, because this enables you to adjust your dance speed to that of the entire square. You must have the big picture. Dancers who operate with tunnel vision always look sloppy when they dance.

4. Do not drag people and do not let yourself be dragged. This means using no hands on Recycle and Linear Cycle, which is the definition for these calls. For example, Linear Cycle is a beautiful call that usually looks awful, because the lead dancer on the Double Pass Thru part (usually the boy) drags the trailing dancer (usually the girl) along. Using no hands solves the problem. If someone tries to drag you, drop their hand.

   Ferris Wheel often looks sloppy because the boy is dragging the girl. This can be solved by the girl (ie. the inside dancer) doubling her walking speed. But the girl must remember to do this, otherwise she will be dragged.

5. Grand Square. This 64 beat call is beautiful, but the only place it is danced correctly is in exhibition groups. Most everyone else does it in 52-60 beats, with each individual dancer taking a different amount of time. The overall image is like viewing the call thru a funny mirror at the fair.

   Because it is so rare that anyone does this call correctly, if I see one person on a floor actually take 64 beats, I will make it a point to personally congratulate them after the tip is over.

   An easy way to tell who is doing the call wrong: look for anyone doing a Partner Swing halfway thru Grand Square and/or at the end of the call. These people are demonstrating that they do not know how to do Grand Square, because if the call is done correctly there is no time to do the Partner Swing.

Summary. Pretend that someone sitting out is watching how you dance for the full tip. Do they like what they see? Or do they shift their gaze to someone else who is dancing smoother? If you have good styling, people will want to watch you dance.
Greetings fellow line dance enthusiasts. Let's talk about dancing to the beat of the music. Many people think that music is just too fast to dance to, but they really just do not move their feet in time with the music. Today, many square dancers will not dance to the beat of the music. Perhaps they are just not taught how to during class or maybe age has something to do with it. On the other hand, I have seen many dancers in their 80's that have no trouble dancing to the beat of the music so I am at a loss to explain it. The fact is, in square dancing, people can get away with not dancing to the beat of music. The same cannot be said about line dancing. Many line dances are faster than the tempo of a square dance song. An old dance adage applies here: The faster the music, the smaller the steps. Dancers get frustrated and walk off the floor when they cannot keep up with the tempo of a song. It then becomes very difficult to get them back on the dance floor. The dance instructor cannot make you move your feet. You are in control of your leg muscles. Increasingly, I am having dancers march the rhythm of a dance in place so they can get their legs used to the movement required for a particular dance. Please give it try. If you are having trouble dancing to the beat of music, march the rhythm yourself or ask your dance instructor to have you march the rhythm in place.

This month's dance was written for a specific song by an independent artist. Many international choreographers are hired to write dances to promote a particular song by the artist. The music for this dance may no longer be available. If you find the music, then there is an alternate footwork based on the song. If not, the other suggested song will work just as well and you will not need the alternate footwork. I hope you enjoy this dance. If you have any questions about this dance

Callerlab’s Comprehensive Demographic Survey

About the Project

Terry Wheeler, Chairman of the Research and Development (R&D) Committee, is pleased to announce that CALLERLAB recently completed a comprehensive demographic survey of square dancers. Terry explained, “This is the first controlled survey of this magnitude ever made of square-dancer demographics. We expect the results to help us gain corporate or foundation support in promoting the activity.” The committee conducted a demographic survey of square dancers; with the support of the Board of Governors. The survey’s purpose was to obtain industry and foundation support for our efforts to promote square dancing. This is more than just a casual study. The committee took great care to assure us of real, meaningful results. Because of this care, the survey results are statistically valid. This means we can draw real conclusions. Professional surveyors helped design the survey, supervised the data collection, and continue to advise us on how to analyze and interpret the results. Committee members worked closely with survey professionals including market research company StarWorks to design, run, and tabulate the survey. Their advisor, Marty Mayo of StarWorks, said, “This survey is designed to give real, valid numbers you can use with confidence.”

Analysis continues, with results going to CALLERLAB’s Recruit-Promote-Maintain, and Grant-Writing Committees. The research report will also be made available to other organizations. We expect these results – and their validity – to help us generate financial support for promoting the activity. We are investigating how best to use them to gain support. Paper copies of the report are available through the CALLERLAB office for a charge of $6.00 to help cover printing, shipping and handling costs. A PDF copy of the report is available on the CALLERLAB web site at: www.callerlab.org/documents/callerlabdocs/Report_Final_(Full)(04-08-26).pdf

This is just one more example of how CALLERLAB members continue to support square dancing. Additional information may be obtained by contacting the CALLERLAB office:

ARTS Grant

Teaching Square Dancing in the Schools Package
www.arts-dance.org

One of the essential Development Initiatives adopted at the outset of the ARTS is to educate the public and promote an improved understanding and image of the multiple forms of their historical dance activities. A significant step was recently taken to accomplish this goal through the introduction of a newly created program for teachers. This program will ensure that teachers are equipped with the tools to present Square Dancing to their students in an upbeat, positive and accurate manner. With this approach to the introduction of Square Dancing to school children, they will establish a positive image of this dance activity that will stay with them for their lifetime.

With the assistance of a $1,000 Grant from the Alliance of Round, Traditional and Square-Dance, Inc. (ARTS-Dance), the California Square Dance Council’s Youth Advisory Committee has developed an instructional package that can be used by teachers, scout leaders, recreation departments, church groups or anyone else interested in setting up their own introductory square dance program.

The California Youth Advisory Committee, under the leadership of Chair Bonnie Abramson and assisted by callers Scot Byars, Eric Henerlau and Bronc Wise, made a formal presentation during the California Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (CAHPERD) at their 75th Annual Conference held March 17-19, 2005 in Monterey, California. Their presentation included a one-hour Educational Workshop that was enthusiastically received by a standing room only gathering of more than 250 of the 2,000 teachers, instructors and recreational leaders in attendance at this Conference. The workshop, entitled “Square ‘em Up! A Teacher’s Guide to Teaching Square Dancing,” focused on the ease of teaching square dancing in the classroom, and showcased a wide selection of hip music sure to entice the kids to participate. The teachers who, even if they currently offered square dancing as part of their curriculum, were eager to find music more in tune with what the kids are listening to today enthusiastically embraced the “new” music.

Participation in the three-day Conference also included a square dance demonstration and an exhibit booth where nearly 60 of the “Teach the Teacher” program manuals were sold.

Key to the success of the overall program was the development of the “Teach the Teacher” Program Manual compiled by Sacramento caller Scot Byars with reference materials compiled by Bonnie Abramson. This educational manual of introductory level materials includes lesson plans and the text of the basic square dance calls combined with descriptive photos of handholds and positioning. The written documentation is paired with a four CD set featuring verbal instruction from Scot and dance material for each of the eight lessons included. There were two additional lessons that provide “review” dances and a full CD of just review dance material, all utilizing high-energy music provided courtesy of Road Records of Victorville, California. Again, the focus is the ease of teaching the calls and the use of high-energy music, including hip-hop, rap and the latest stuff kids are

A Glimpse At The Evolution Of Our Activity

When you look at pictures of square dancing and square dancers taken in the 1930's and 1940's you really see how different those dancer costumes looked from the dancers in the 1950's, 1960's and 1970's. When I was attending a National Convention in the early 1990's, a clothes vender presented me with his opinion about the evolution of our “costume” that I had never heard before. He said that for the first time in our dance history, starting in the late 1960's, square dancers actually began manufacturing their own square dance clothes. He also said that more square dancers we’re wearing these manufactured clothes than wearing clothes they made themselves.

He continued by saying that the biggest impact of square dancers manufacturing their own clothes was now being felt in the early 1990's in that our “costume” was for the first time, not evolving as it had before. He told me to look at old pictures of dancers and note how our “costume” had always changed and evolved by following the styles of dress that were being worn in general society. Length and fullness of skirts, necklines of dresses and blouses, hats or no hats, type of ties, and tightness of pants worn by men are just some of the things that have changed in our “costume” and have followed the general trends of society.

His opinion was that our “costume” was stuck in the past and that now this is more of an issue with new dancers and with those considering joining our activity. The interesting thing is that, in the past several years, with the number of those manufacturing square dance clothing decreasing, our “costume” is again beginning to change and evolve again. I guess the old adage that says, “The only constant in our lives is change” is true.

There are so many things that have changed over the years in square dancing. Our music has changed as new songs are written and new recording techniques are being used. Computer technology has changed our music as well. Cowboy songs, popular in the past, are not as popular as before in general society as well as in square dancing.

Consider how the amplified voice and the making of records affected square dancing. Now that CD’s have become more popular than records, we’re seeing our music medium change to CD’s, Mini Discs, and even music and choreography on our own laptop computers.

When you listen to square dance records and calling you can also see a big change. The visiting couple style of dancing gave way to a more symmetrical form in the 1950’s and 1960’s. New formations and calls that came at us so fast in the 1960’s through the early 1980’s have slowed down tremendously. Our dancing was simple back in the 1950’s and slowly became more complex with the onslaught of figures and formations. Calling techniques had to change to adapt to the increasing complexity of our dance and so it has become more difficult to learn to dance as well as learn to call.

As interesting as it is to look back, we know that the leaders of this activity need to be looking forward. We all love this unique team dance of ours, but know that if we want to preserve and bring it to more people, we may need to change things a little. In the middle 1990’s, marketing consultants told us that we needed to look at our dance as a product and a service. It’s a product just like every other recreational activity and it’s a service, because it also provides a way for its participants to exercise, enjoy social interaction and in general, do things more conducive to a healthy lifestyle.

At the 2005 CALLERLAB Convention, our Program Policy Committee (PPC), with its Chairman Dick Mazziotti and Vice Chairman Larry Davenport, introduced the Program Policy Initiative. At first, some mistakenly thought that the Program Policy Initiative was some form of new dance program. The Board Of Governors was quick to point out that nothing was farther from the truth and that there is no intention of changing our dance programs or our existing dance activity.

As the only international caller association in the world and the creator of the international dance programs that have remained stable and constant for more than twenty-five years, the CALLERLAB Board felt that we as an organization needed to take the lead in finding more successful ways of making our activity more doable and “user friendly” for the non dancer.

By encouraging callers and leaders that have the time and inclination to experiment with new ways of opening our doors to new dancers, CALLERLAB with this Program Policy Initiative, for the first time formally gives full credibility and approval to those trying newer, easier, and different ways to teach dance programs. We realize that dance locations, dress, number of calls, dance times, music, and other conditions may be totally different from our traditional classes and club dances today, but the only way we are going to find better ways for more people to enjoy square dancing is by also taking a good hard look at the product we are offering the general public.

No matter how much we promote our traditional classes and clubs, it still takes 20 or more weeks to learn to dance in our clubs and at our festivals, jamborees, and conventions. Maybe there is another way to help our current population that seem so busy with jobs, families, and other commitments, to also participate in our dance.

CALLERLAB knows that there are many callers and leaders that have tried other ways of bringing our dance to the public through one night parties, school socials, shorter learn to dance programs, and father-daughter type events in the past. We would like to see more credibility given to those callers and leaders and attempt to get the feedback on what does and doesn’t work.

The Program Policy Committee is ready to receive your ideas and your input on what is working for those with the time and initiative to try something new and different. If you have a new way of bringing square dancing, in any form, to the non-dancer we would like to hear from you and encourage others to “think outside the box”, without compromising any effort to promote and preserve our current dancers, clubs, and festivals.

Please send your ideas and information on what is working or not working for you to CALLERLAB in care of the Program Policy Committee or PPC to CALLERLAB@aol.com.

Let’s look ahead and be forward thinking enough to grow our activity and bring the joy of our dance to more people. We all know that it’s fun to square dance. It would be wonderful if it weren’t such a well kept secret and available to more people.

CALLERLAB Program Policy

White Paper Position Paper
Round Dancing is going to two extremes. One is that the people are often not properly versed in the execution of basics and so they look very bad. They’re not really moving with the music. Their styling leaves much to be desired, and although they know many routines, they do not dance them well. The other side of the round dance picture is that dancers have gone to the extreme with earning figures to the point where they’re really no longer round dancing—instead they are doing a form of international ballroom dancing.

The execution of the figures is really not appropriate for rounds because they are covering too much floor and consequently keep running into others. One of the nice things about round dancing is that in a circle formation everyone can enjoy an individual style, just as long as it doesn’t interfere with others. We need to teach more dancing and perhaps fewer figures.

Where do the problems stem from? Do they come from the teachers or the dancers? We believe wholeheartedly that problems always stem from leadership. People will be what their leaders will have them be. If we want our people to be excellent dancers, with attractive styling, that’s what they will be. It’s a cop out to say “We let our people do what they want to, because if we don’t, they’ll quit.” That’s not leadership. That’s not the role of a leader. A leader knows people and puts them in the proper frame of mind to do the kind of dancing they should.

One of the difficulties with most of the round dance leaders today is that they don’t understand the traditions that are involved in the dance activity. For example there are teachers who feel if they can’t go to a square dance program exactly the kind of round dancing they want, then they won’t go and cue for the club at all.

Well, that’s not what it’s all about. We need somehow to inspire the leaders to understand that working with a caller should not be a battle; it should be cooperative and pleasant.

We’ve worked with almost every national caller and most of them are the very finest people. Unfortunately, some round dance teachers today could care less about the square dance caller and some don’t really think they need the square dance activity. This is too bad. Square and round dancing belong together. Roundalab can help, URDC can help, but they can help primarily by having some sort of accreditation that includes the traditional aspect of what we do.

What is the traditional aspect? Well, we dance in a fashion that is neither ballroom style nor folk dancing style. We have a certain posture with a certain technique of taking steps. We have positioning and styling that is important. And traditionally, the round dance activity is married to the square dance activity. They go together and the two functions need to work closely together. Perhaps traditional is best described by Pappy Shaw.

Pappy thought you danced for the sheer delight and the sheer joy of dancing. It wasn’t something that was rigid and could not be flexed to include enjoyment. That, to us, is the tradition of dancing, the fact that we have a certain style and a certain technique, but primarily a certain joy in what we’re doing.

It would be great if we had pat and proven answers to all our concerns. We don’t. However, there are a lot of round dance organizations. When all of our round dance leaders take time to really look at how and what they are teaching, as well as where we are progressing, perhaps we’ll begin to find solutions to our concerns.

Square Dancers Credit Card Program Provides Funds For Your Association

The Square Dancers Credit Card Program generates funds that are distributed by USDA as follows: one half to USDA Youth and Handicapable Dancer Programs, and the other half to the Affiliates on a periodic basis.

Affiliate organizations shared $14,700 at the 2004 Annual Meeting with the understanding that these funds would be used to promote Square Dancing. This was the third distribution of funds to affiliates from the Credit Card Program. Additional thousands of dollars have supported the Youth and Handicapable Programs over the years.

The support and active participation of your organization and dancers in the USDA Credit Card Program is ESSENTIAL. The Square Dancer’s Credit Card has every benefit offered by other credit cards, and promotes square dancing every time the card is used. With your help, your Credit Card Program could grow and generate funds to also help your Association.

Some ways to solicit support of dancers for your Credit Card Program are:
• Direct appeal - show that your own organization as well as the Youth and Handicapable Dancer Programs can benefit
• Showing the benefits of enrolling both to the individual dancers and organizations
• Inclusion of Credit Card information in your newsletters, and magazines
• Making information available at festivals, conventions, and dances
• Provide copies of informational material to delegates at meetings to take back to associations, clubs and dancers
• Making dancers aware that they can apply via the internet at www.usda.org

All affiliate Associations are urged to help promote the Square Dancers Credit Card. Is there an easier way to generate funds for your Association, and at the same time promote Square Dancing?

If application forms or further information is required contact:

Charlotte Gundlach posed with four clowns, at Buffalo, New York’s Roswell Park Cancer Institute’s 18th National Cancer Survivors Day, “Celebration Among Friends.” It wasn’t easy dancing in the hot sun. The temperature nearly hit 90 degrees. Free pop, hot dogs, sherbet and much more food was provided for the several hundred attendees. When it was all over, the square dancers went home and saw how they looked on the 6 o’clock news. Charlotte is the co-founder of the This & That Squares who performed at the event.
This story goes back to the 1930's era in southwestern Connecticut. Several square dance bands were busy in those days offering good family entertainment to relieve the long hours of work necessary to make ends meet. These were mostly once or twice a month dances held in Grange halls and fire houses and there were often more than one being held on the same Friday or Saturday night within ten or twenty miles of each other.

Perhaps the best known group at the time was Pop Benson and the Cornhuskers square dance band. Pop himself played the banjo and was the caller. He had George Pratt with his two saxophones, one soprano and one tenor on which he alternated for the round dances (ballroom). George also played banjo for the squares. Then there was Lou Rosato on accordion, Eddie Munson on guitar and Jimmy Gilpin on fiddle. These three wound up together as the Pioneer Trio and played together for over 60 years all around the northeastern United States.

But the star of the show was Tude Tanguay, the fiddler. Now Tude was your normal died-in-the-wool hillbilly. I don't recall ever seeing him dressed in anything but bib overalls, short sleeved flannel shirt, and red kerchief around the neck. He normally went barefoot but wore work boots to the dances. One side of his face was paralyzed which had a slight effect on his speech and put a funny look on his face when he smiled, which was all or most of the time. He was a giant of a woodsman with arms like tree trunks but at the same time a shy and quiet gentleman. Tude was a self-taught fiddler and used no music. He never put the fiddle under his chin but would hold it in the crook of his left arm or, more often than not, just held out in mid air.

All dances were 9:00 to 1:00 in those days with an intermission around 10:30 or 11:00. At every dance Pop and Tude would put on their truly unique little show. It started with Tude sitting in a chair with Pop sitting between his legs. They always made a big show of how to get properly set with the banjo and the fiddle and the bow and the arms and which goes where. Tude would say with a smile, "We'll play this one half and half". Then Tude would finger the fiddle while he strummed the banjo and Pop would finger the banjo while bowing the fiddle. Did you ever try to pat your head with one hand and rub a circle on your belly with the other at the same time? It had to be that difficult but they never missed a note.

Next, Tude would invite a young lady to come up and sit on his knee where all she had to do was move the bow up and down. Tude, with his tremendous forearm strength was able to turn the fiddle to the proper string and finger the tune with the fiddle out in midair. There was one young lady who usually managed to beat the scramble of those who wanted to sit in his lap. One night Tude stole the hair ribbon from her hair. He attached it to the scroll of his fiddle where it remained for the rest of his life and that young lady, Helen, soon afterward became his wife.

The grand finale featured the tune, 'Pop Goes The Weasel' where Tude would play one chorus seated and when the tune said 'POP' he would pop up onto the dance floor hopping on one foot. At the next 'POP' he would move the fiddle on top of his head, still hopping. At the next 'POP' he would put the fiddle behind his back — next under one leg (still hopping) — next under both legs — then he would lie down on the floor, arch his back and put the fiddle and bow underneath for one chorus. At the final ‘POP’ he rolled up onto his feet with outstretched arms for a standing ovation from his adoring fans.

Tude once tried to build his own fiddle. He used the shinbone of a horse for the finger board. He hand carved the pegs and fashioned the body from a veneer headboard. I understand he never played it in public because it produced a rather not-so-pleasant sound. He went on to build his own cabin in the woods where he spent the rest of his short life with his bride. He was only in his mid sixties when he left us.

I once appeared on “Arthur Godfrey and His Friends” with one square of dancers back in the early days of television. A couple years later the show producers contacted me and asked if I knew anyone who could ‘Blow the Jug’ as they planned a show with a hillbilly theme. Of course I immediately thought of Tude. When I called him he said, “Oh yes. I can do that. You have to cup it”. My reaction was, “Say what?” and he explained that you cut a hole in the bottom of the jug and cupped your hand over it so that you can make more than one percussive sound to the beat of the music. Unfortunately the producers changed their mind and had three singers make believe the action with appropriate sound supplied by their band. How I wish I could have introduced Tude’s act to Broadway and TV but it was just not to be.

Tude was a sometimes lumberman and handyman. He eventually became a Park Ranger in one of the Connecticut State Forests. He once owned a beat up old 1937 station wagon and was forced to sleep in it occasionally. He couldn’t afford anti-freeze so he had to drain the radiator every night in the winter. He saved the water in hot water bottles to help keep him warm until he got to sleep. Along with Lou, Eddie and Jimmy he once drove up to Orr’s Island, Maine where Jimmy’s folks had a cabin. They would stop in a restaurant and offer to entertain in order to get a meal or at a hotel for a night’s lodging.

A huge tribute was later paid to Tude with a gathering of his family, musician friends and fans at the VFW Hall in New Milford, Connecticut in the late 60’s. The highlight was when every fiddler there took his turn playing a chorus or two or more of ‘Orange Blossom Special’. A collection had been accumulating for some time and was presented to Tude and Helen stuffed in an old leather satchel which belonged to my great grandfather. He said, with tears in his eyes that it was the best paid gig he ever played. Thank you Tude for bringing so much pleasure to so many people over the years.
