In hurried dashes to eight o’clock, the excitement of football games, and Además, a 2022-2023 academic year begins in all seriousness with convincing results. We are apt to forget, perhaps, that the most important educational institution in the world which most of us attend is the University of New Hampshire.

The University Extension Service, in cooperation with the regular faculty, reaches many more people than any other division of the University, regardless of the number of students who take its courses. Therefore, in this issue of THE NEW HAMPSHIRE we are presenting a few stories illustrating what an extension course can do.

We have included three articles on the subject ofExtension Service courses taken at New Hampshire, and the third article, by Nelson Terry, is on the Extension Service in general.

We hope that you will enjoy these articles and that you will be encouraged to take courses in the Extension Service. It is impossible to estimate the value of the knowledge and training that you may acquire from such courses, but it is certain that you will find them useful and enjoyable.

to the late Mr. and Mrs. Constance F. Miller, who have contributed $5,000 to the University for the purchase of a new building for the School of Music.

The President, the Board of Trustees, and the faculty of the University extend their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Miller on this generous gift.

At an informal meeting of the Board of Trustees, it was unanimously voted that the new building be named the Miller Music Memorial Building.

The Board also voted that the new building be completed as soon as possible, and that the dedication ceremony be held on the first day of the new academic year.

The President, the Board of Trustees, and the faculty of the University are deeply grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Miller for their generosity and their faith in the future of the University.

--The Administration

The University of New Hampshire takes pride in presenting the following feature articles:

1. "The Wildcat" by John F. O'Neill
2. "The Critic" by C. M. Walker
3. "The Critic" by C. M. Walker

These articles are written by students of the University of New Hampshire and reflect the spirit and values of the University.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE, OCTOBER 9, 1930

LADY RAY

The Critic

By C. M. Walker

Here we are at the beginning of school year and, upon reflection, we are a little bit late for last year. Under a new administration, the University has taken over the job of being the voice of the student body. We are pleased to report that there are two plans of textbooks of which the writer of the text is going to be informed, or has in information at all.

The first plan is the "New Hampshire" plan, where the publisher is going to do all the work of selecting books and the student body has the benefit of the results. Publishers of textbooks allow each school to determine the price of books and the student body has the benefit of the results.

The second textbook plan is not selected by the student body, but by the instructors. The only criticism that the writer has is that they are not in agreement on the selection of textbooks.

The University of New Hampshire, therefore, the writer requests the publishers to supply the needs of the class.

On all other matters, the student body is not satisfied. We will never pass the University Club Dance unless it is for a good cause.
