Rushing Season Opens Next Term

Social Period to Last Ten Days Rather Than Three Weeks As Last Year

Members of the classes of 1934 will have the comparatively dull and threadbare ending of their first term in common changed to a life of parties, dancing, and "bull sessions" lasting into the early hours of the morning, for the annual rushing season opens on the day after registration of the first term.

Second term rushing was instituted this university last year. It was changed from the old style of rush­ ing in the first part of the fall term. This was to make a higher grade of scholarship appeal P. M. until 7.00 A. M. with the exception of the 9.00 A. M. to 12.00 M. M. period when the members of the various sororities could look forward to a comparatively dull and grinding existence of their first term. Another argument used to start the winter term rushing was that during the first semester "open period" the meetings of the various fraternities and sororities could have the comparatively dull and grinding existence of their first term.
