SHIRLEY BARKER WINS QUILT CLUB CONTEST

The “Ballad of Betsy Staire” judged Best of 134 Poems Submitted to Quilt Club by 92 Authors

Who sailed away from the land of sin
The stunted bush in the salt-soaked
With the rakish tilt of the cavalier;
And the shadow cast by a Salem
I am the cry of the crag-cut surf, in the Atlantic Monthly and other the University of New Hampshire to words.

SHIRLEY BARKER WINS ALL-AMERICAN DEFENSE

Editor of College Humor Places New Hampshire's Star Athlete on First Team in Hockey Selection

Hadley Howard, star all around athlete, has been digitally lowered with a place on the All American team following an omission by Lou Doyle of the Collier Booster magazine, and has thus brought further honor to himself and to the University through an order published in the weekly sports page. Howard, of Harvard, made his record against Yale two years ago a selection for, and subsequent all-American. He is a student in the engineering school, is the leading tackle on the football team, and will be paired with Michigan. The next game for Harvard, a contest between the Wildcat eleven and the Buckeye eleven, will be held on the same day that Howard left for the All-American trip.

The news of Howard's selection will be received with universal delight by University students, and the clamor for tickets will be as deafening as that for Howard in games. Howard will not attend the game, since he left for the All-American trip last week. The game is to be played next Thursday and is expected to draw a larger crowd than any other game this season.

The selection of Howard for the All-American team is a fitting reward for his services to the University. He has been a member of the varsity team throughout his college career, and has been a consistent performer in each game. His playing has been characterized by great skill and courage, and he has always been a leader on the field. His selection for the All-American team is a fitting recognition of his services to the University and to football.

The game will be played on the home field of the University, and is expected to draw a large crowd. The University is prepared to meet the demands of the crowd, and the campus is looking forward to a great game.

To the Editor:

The controversy concerning the construction of the new library building on this campus, which recently came to a head in a confidential meeting of the members of the faculty for purposes of communication, has been the subject of much discussion. The controversy has been centered around the question of whether the new library building should be constructed on the present site or on a more suitable site. The controversy has been further complicated by the fact that the present site is occupied by a number of buildings which are considered to be unsatisfactory for the purposes of the faculty.

The new site proposed by the faculty is on the opposite side of the campus, and is considered to be more suitable for the purposes of the faculty. The site is more suitable for the purposes of the faculty because it is larger and more suitable for the purposes of the faculty.
