Best Showing in Final Bouts

Pi Kappa Alpha won the annual intra-mural boxing championships with 14 points, leading Phi Mu Delta and Alpha Tau Omega by one and two points, respectively. Phi Delta Upsilon made the best showing in the finals by virtue of a victory in the 165 pound class and a draw in the 165-pound class and a draw in the 175-pound class, no other fraternity gaining more than a sigle win in the final bouts.

SEMI-FINALS The semi-final bouts staged last Thursday were featured by a large number of knockouts. The first bout of the evening was in the 115-pound class between Lincoln of Theta Chi and Prentiss of Kappa Sigma. The fight was short-lived, Lincoln knocking his opponent out in the first round. The winner was in excellent condition and showed the benefit of experience from the beginning of the fight. The second bout also ended abruptly with another first round knockout, Ahlgren of Phi Mu Delta sending Weeks of Alpha Tau Omega to the canvas after about a minute and a half of fighting. Ahlgren proved alterather too giver for his enponent together too clever for his opponent and ended the fight quickly, paving the way to the finals of the 125-pound class.

Finn of Phi Mu Delta, also in the Finn of Phi Mu Delta, also in the 115-pound class, defeated Comolli of the same fraternity by a technical knockout in the second round. Both boys fought on almost even terms throughout the first round, Finn gaining a small lead. In the second round there was little doubt as to who would be the ultimate winner. Finn started right out for a knockout and after the round was about over, the seconds round was about over, the seconds threw the towel in for Comolli.

He played cagey and did not get hit hard or often, relying on holding tactics. Pariseau continued the same style of fighting in the final round, and landing some real solid blows. He got a harderared decision.

The sixth bout of the evening was between Betley of Pi Kappa Alpha and Pitcher of Theta Chi, in the 155- Armstrong, pound class. Betley missed often but managed to get in a few good blows. All three rounds were about the same, Betley missing constantly and scoring occasionally. Pitcher showed himself a fine defensive fighter. The decision was given to Betley.

In the second 145-pound bout, Philbrick of Alpha Tau Omega won a close decision from Scanlon of Theta Kappa Phi. The first round went to Philbrick as did the second. The fight gave the crowd a kick when Philbrick walloped "Pal" Reed in the side of the face,—and he took it, too. The final round saw Scanlon come back in fine style and take a slight lead. However, Philbrick's early scoring gave him the decision.

Ahern of Theta Kappa Phi knocked out Larkin of Alpha Kappa Pi in the scored pound of their 155 pound.

second round of their 155-pound bout. Larkin appeared to be a little off form, having remarkably poor luck in maintaining a standing position each time he took a swing at his opponent. He went down at least five times in the first round on his own power. After continuing the group sixteen teams will be selected same sort of procedure in the second round, Ahern was given the bout via March third and fourth. The winning

UFFICIENT examples of an invidious philistinism are everywhere apparent to the casual observer on this campus, but nowhere is it to be more marked than in the behaviour of students at the local theatre. The average pocketbook at New Hampshire University will not stand the strain of many trips to the Boston theatres, and it is something of a problem for some of us to find relatively cheap and good entertainment when the mood strikes us, since it is impossible for the individual who possesses any aesthetic sensibilities at all to enjoy pictures shown here; there is simply too much noise. We are not upholding the practice of going to the movies four times a week, or even once, but now and then something comes along that we want to see as for example, the showing of "A Bill of Divorcement" a few weeks ago, in which John Barrymore took the principal role, and it is to us a trifle aggravating that we are not allowed to enjoy it without benefit of an

It is, however, particularly since they are an index of the student mind that we are interested by these exhibitions. The behaviour of the majority of students when attending motion picture performances here would make an interesting study for abnormal psychologists. To the layman, the attitude seems to be this: during that time of the performance in which no element of the risque can possibly be imputed to the action or dialogue by even the most warped or degraded mind (and, alas, that time does not endure for long) the atmosphere is that of an electric tension, a straining toward the inevitable moment when it will be apparent that Sex exists, and when that moment does come the pent-up emotion of the majority discharges in a gross out-burst of lecherous laughter and unsavory comment that would disconcert a Pantagruel. And that is under-rating its quality, for the occasional grossness of Rabelais is at least always tempered with health and spontaniety, neither of which attributes can be said to inhabit, or even to tinge, the minds of the Flaming Youths at the Franklin Theatre.

STUDENTS SEE ONLY SALACIOUS

We do not attempt to decry this lack of gentlemanly control as it is shown at the presentations of the more superficial brand of motion picture which is the type most commonly seen at this, or any other, theatre. It is probably for the best interests of all concerned that ribaldry should be confined to one place as much as possible; it is the appalling lack of the most elementary discrimination that disturbs us. The audience reacts in the same manner to any play, be it good or bad. They do not really care. We are to suppose from all the evidence that, among most of the students here, precisely the same obscene salivary flow would result from their contemplation of a virgin in a Passion Play as from observing the antics of Sadie the chambermaid in the most riotous and superficial bedroom farce. Most of the men on this campus appear to attend motion pictures for two simple purposes: to hear smutty innuendo if possible, or to furnish it themselves if they are disappointed, and to observe the most voluptuous possible women in the greatest possible stage of undress. The subtleties of drama are nothing in their young lives. It matters not at all to them whether these women are represented as being clever, witty, or fastidious, or whether they are in the grip of tragic or comic circumstances. Certainly not. Plainly, to these rather pathetic examples of belated adolescence, what they look for in one woman is common to all. One wonders, not without reason, if this lack of discrimination may not perhaps be the same in their own relations as it most manifestly is in their appreciation of the drama. Certainly, too, these exhibitions are in poor taste. One would think that they would realize that this direcly nullifies the assumed characteristics of worldliness and sophistication on which they so pride themselves. Only the well-versed freudian is equipped to analyze the strange incongruities that come to light in the natures of these audiences.

As we have said, this element is only symbolized by the outbursts at the theatre, at which place ribaldry may be indulged in with comparative impunity. It is dark there, and people are not easily recognized. But examples of it are all about, at all street-corner discussions and drug-store congregations, and even in classes. We realize, of course, that a little of it is unavoidable, but a little goes a long way. We happened on an amusing instance of it the other day, when a general flickering of eye-lids and an undercurrent of throaty laughter ran about at the description of a woman's shapely figure which occurred during the reading of some poetry. We are not prudes, and we do not claim that this alone was particularly deplorable, but it happened in a class which up to that time had remained completely unmoved and dormant during the reading of one of the best poems in the

SEPARATE AESTHETIC FROM OBSCENE

In some theatres there are given special performances for children, and days are set aside for their attendance. Possibly some arrangement of similar nature could solve the problem for us here; a few days could be set aside each month for clear-minded people to attend the performance, and the rest of the time the majority could have the theatre in which to howl, These few days, of course, would be the ones in which the really good pictures would be shown, since any other arrangement would be clearly a case of casting pearls before swine. This might also save money for the theatre management, since for the greater part of the time they could produce pictures, by special arrangement with some low-caste New York producers, perhaps, in which there need be none of the elements of plot or construction. A series of boudoir scenes would serve the purpose admirably, with possibly the admixture of a little pure slap-stick comedy, of the sort with possibly the admixture of a little pure slap-stick comedy, of the sort in which extremely fat or extremely thin persons hit each other over the head and fall down stairs, for the delectation of the more enlightened.

It seems to us that one of the times, at least, when a person's true culture should come to the front is during his contemplation of some artistic production. Even if he is stupid, he might be still sufficiently cultured to maintain a respectful silence at such times. But no, our audiences are below the level of mere stupidity. We have cited the production of "A Bill of Divorcement," and we claim that it was a truly artistic production. During that production there was so much audible evidence of ill-breeding iging that production there was so much audible evidence of ill-breeding, ignorance, and vulgarity that much of the time the dialogue was entirely obscured by bellows and a hideous cacaphony of indescribably lewd noises that would have disgraced a gathering of chimpanzees. The play was of a subtlety that demanded the greatest attention, and concentration was made impossible by the amount of noise alone; in addition, the character of the noise had about the same effect upon a reasonably normal and healthy-minded person as sea-sickness would have upon a person with a weak stomach.

CHARGE OF UNSOPHISTICATION

It seems that, among other things, this University must take upon itself the charge of unsophistication and vulgarity, at least among a large number of its students. We hesitate to speculate upon the feelings of a truly cultured and sophisticated visitor to our midst who had the misfortune to attend a performance at our theatre during his stay, knowing that a find the present there. fairly representative group would be present there. The revelation would be something of a shock, at the least. What could he say on his departure? We recall the comment of the King of Brobdingnag to Gulliver on a somewhat analogous occasion: "The bulk of your natives," he said, "appear to me to be the most pernicious race of little idious vermin that Nature ever suffered to crawl upon the face of the earth." The comment of our hypothetical visitor might possibly be a degree worse. might possibly be a degree worse.

To the Editor of THE NEW HAMP-SHIRE:

The staff of The New Hampshire is to be congratulated on the method in which it handled the situation concerning the deficit of the Social Committee of the Student Council. It was an excellent piece of work, and it should have been done before this. Wildcats Lead Throughout Contest — Poor Ice Hampers Playing Goals by Bacheller and Tuck White gave Coach Christensen's Massachusetts State's varsity hock-ey team in a hard-fought game last Saturday afternoon at Amherst. Poor ice made good puck handling impossible. However, New Hampshire definitely showed their superiority over the State team.

At the start of the contest both teams came out and drove down the ice in a determined manner, but the stubborn defenses set up by both combines stopped the attacks cold with the Wildcats getting in more often than the Mass. Staters. However, before eight minutes of the first canto had elapsed, Bacheller bashed down the ice for a shot at the Mass. State net and skillfully drove the puck through an unguarded corner for the first score of the contest.

The Wildcats held the upper hand throughout the first and second stanzas. After ten minutes of the sec ond period had passed, Tuck White soloed down the ice and outguessed the Mass. State goalie for the second Wildcat tally. The finals of the intramural boxing bouts furnished quite a bit of excitement and action, with Finn, 115 pound champ, and Ahern middleweight, giving the best exhibitions.

The exhibition bouts were pretty fair. If we had been refereeing we would have given McCaugney the de-cision over Meersman, and Moody got the nod over Yaloff in the second two-rounder.

The varsity basketball team finally seems to have hit its stride. It defeated a highly-touted Worcester Tech quintet 28-25 Tuesday night.

The playing of the sophomore guards, Walker and McKiniry, especially in the Worcester game was a revelation. McKiniry, a former for-ward and center seems to have found his true berth at guard. Walker was captain and star guard of the strong Kitten five a year ago.

You smoke a Ctipe

and we'd like to talk with you about it

All races of people since the beginning of time, so far as we have been able to read, have had some kind of a pipe and have smoked something—whether they called it tobacco or what not.

ND since smoking a pipe is so different A from smoking a cigar or cigarette, we made a most painstaking, scientific study in an effort to make, if we could, a tobacco which was suited to pipes.

We found out, first, that there was a kind of tobacco that grew in the Blue Grass section of Kentucky called White Burley, and that there was a certain kind of this tobacco which was between the tobacco used for cigarettes and the tobacco used for chewing tobacco. It is this tobacco which is best for pipes.

We found out that Mr. J. N. Wellman, many years ago, made a pipe tobacco which was very popular. But it was never advertised and after he passed away nothing more was heard about it. We acquired this Wellman Method and that is what we use in making Granger.

Next was the cut. We knew that fine tobacco burnt hot because it burnt so fast. You could hardly hold your pipe in your hand, it got so hot at times. So remembering how folks used to "whittle" their tobacco we cut GRANGER just like "whittle" tobacco -- "Rough Cut." It smokes cooler, lasts longer and never gums the pipe.
