Winning a game would be a Program of Music Native to Russia

Serge Jarrett and his Don Cossack Russian Male Chorus will open this season's program with a selection from the Russian ballet "The Sleeping Beauty." The program will also include "The Red Sarafan," "The Snow Maiden," "The Red Gnome," and "The Fourth of July." The evening will conclude with a selection from "The Golden Cockerel." The concert will take place in the University Gymnasium on Thursday, November 18, at 8:00 p.m.

The New Hampshire Music and Allied Arts Society Seeks Need for Arts Advancement

The leaders of the New Hampshire Music and Allied Arts Society plan to introduce a new auditorium for University of New Hampshire personnel during the next legislative session. A committee appointed to investigate the need for such a facility has reported to the society. The committee, headed by Robert C. G. Chapman, will meet this week to discuss the matter further.

The committee's report will be presented to the society's executive committee at its next meeting, scheduled for December 1. The report will be discussed at that meeting.

The Forgotten Man — The Prof

Daily, one reads in the current periodicals scathing criticisms or Utopian reference for the present day college educational systems. These colleges are too few in number, too few in quantity, too inefficient, unqualified professors. The courses offered in these institutions are too radical or not radical enough in their social or scholastic views. Others are too incomprehensible and poorly presented. So then, as the reformers point out, it is the professor, especially, the receives the bulk of the blame. The deficiencies of the professor are too radical or not radical enough in his social or scholastic views. Others are too important to cater to college students and make everything pleasant for them.
