HOW MUCH LONGER?

Constant repetition of an old theme is not the way to keep the public interested. When the theme is an important one, though, it must be repeated to keep before the public mind until it has been considered and acted on.

For some time now it has been the boast of the University of New Hampshire that it had the most complete athletic departments in the country and that an emergency fund was to be established in order to enable the university to weather financial storms. But the record shows that this has not been so. There is probably no news of the outside world that reaches a university more quickly than the news that there is a need for the emergency fund. The university has had to be on the watch to see that the fund is always ready to meet any emergency, and it has had to be prepared to meet the emergencies as they arise.

In the case of the University of New Hampshire, the emergency fund was established to meet a financial crisis. But the fund has never been sufficient to meet the crisis. The university has had to rely on other sources to meet the financial crisis.

Captain Froelich, MacLean and South Lead Jumbo's Undefeated Eleven

An undefeated record on Junior level means nothing by itself. But when it is achieved by more than one team, a new era in football has been born. Such was the case last year when the Underclassmen, Behind Froelich, came out winners of the Underclassmen's title by a score of 15-7 over the defending champions. The Underclassmen carried the championship to the year-end banquet and left no room for doubt as to the nature of the victory. The new era was marked by a series of strong performances by the underclassmen, who on the whole played rough football and protected their own line very well.
