Comment and Review
by John Starie

One's Company; Peter Fleming's new book has a purple patch somewhere on the map of the world. The book is a bright spot that early through association remains in the imagination as the most inspiring adventure story in the world. One of my most purple places is China. It came in my early reading as a place of mystery and riches, where incomes burned to a squat ugly God in a curved roofed temple. It was the beginning of my affection for me, and the land where Robinson Crusoe journalled in that tedious second volume. Little Chinese potted stout in the rice fields, and over all sounded the more somber note of the Great Wall of China.

The China that Mr. Fleming describes in this book is a different one, more modern and more realistic. It is a China of red dust storms, of Japanese invasion, of banditry, and of Communism. Mr. Fleming gives a guesst of a traveller out to see the sights. In fact, Mr. Fleming is sure that sight-seeing for him is a bore. So informal our way of living is the danger of being classified with Richard Harkburn. But his picturesque and unpretentious execution of events saves him from that.

His comments on Russia and the Communism of China are interesting as a revelation of his mental care. He wishes to show all the realization of the iron, or to condemn it entirely, is a long, by reinforcing his fault. His is the attitude of a British boy attempting to be inventive and succeeding only in being stupid. A book very different from Mr. Harkburn, Communism, one cannot help but admire the way he is visualizing generalizations that he draws from meager evidence. Perhaps this is not a book is readable and interesting to everyone. There is none of the problems of modern China.

War Clouds

In the past two weeks there have been marked a dramatic turn in the conflict between the Axis nations and the nations of the world. One of my most purple places is China. It came in my early reading as a place of mystery and riches, where incomes burned to a squat ugly God in a curved roofed temple. It was the beginning of my affection for me, and the land where Robinson Crusoe journalled in that tedious second volume. Hello Durham sport fans. Did you have a nice vacation? It may be so, but since returning to school, we've seen nothing except long-faced coaches and irate athletes. Prospects for our spring teams were not outstanding as last term drew to a close, but the opening of this one surely didn't serve to help matters to any degree.

We met, in the milling of registration at Thompson Hall, several of those New Hampshire athletes who were the wittier name-sowers of the Southeastern New Hampshire varsity basketball championship. Every one of the boys we just happened to be a particularly outstanding athlete in his field. We bumped in arms of Paul Sants, one of our most valuable track men, the high scorer of last winter's hockey team, a pair of steady diamond stars, and one of the logical candidates for the cap­taincy of our varsity lacrosse team.

Each one of these men, in addition to the above assets, happens to be afflicted with a bit better than average ability in that glorious sport, basketball. And so our men must be forced to the ignominy of playing under what they call a "ringer" retirement from the athletic world.

When we plowed our way through this cloud of discouragement, we did not find any positive way to our lovely boudoir, we found our way into the corner of the desk. It seemed to us that the university law was to assign a new desk to each student ever since turned to the right page, (7), and discovered that there were conflicting opinions as to the advisability of placing those Durham gentlemen who had taken him pen in hand regarding the matter, a bribe increased, but his comments seemed to be imprudent.

We quote from the last winter's "secret" (we refer Sportive Editor Hill Stiers, of Foster's "secret" to the corner, "he said, "it may mean some small measure of consolation to those 100 onlookers to know that the sports fans who attended our basketball games last year must look upon them as sportsmen, good students, and highly capable athletes."

Gibson to Receive Marksmanship Prize

Rifle Team Closes Season With Victories, Defeats

Sidney L. Gibson, senior, captain of the U. N. H. rifle team, will be awarded the medal which is given to the highest rated rifleman of the team each year, it was announced.

The medal is donated each year by Mrs. E. G. Bennett of Portsmouth. Each of the teams in the Southeastern New Hampshire League is entitled to one of these medals to its best of the best.

Runner up for the high score was L. H. Prince, of Portsmouth. Each of the teams in the Southeastern New Hampshire League is entitled to one of these medals to its best of the best.

We appreciated this tribute to our athletes, and we found, a little later, that Dover backed up the writer when 400 of its leading citizens started and finished the season and with a record of seven victories and an equal number of defeats.

If it doesn't have some effect on the punishment, maybe the punishment will serve as a "good example." Surely the publicity that has accompanied these cases has been sufficient to make any student feel that a large group of freshmen will take advantage of the time.

The game season opens April 27 with Brown at Providence, and the Kittens will meet Exeter, New Hampton, Pinkerton Academy, Tilton School, Sanborn Seminary, and Keene Normal School. There will also be a possibility of a few practice games arranged with nearby high schools.

Coach Lundholm is not definitely sure where he will conduct his practice sessions, but says he will work out on any ninety foot square that can be found in Durham. Negotiations are underway to enable the freshman team to work out occasionally at New Hampshire, but nothing definite has been done as yet.

As freshman interested in baseball who has yet to report to the fresh coach should do so at once.

Freshman Baseball Will Start Soon

After a year's absence from the diamond, Coach Carl Lundholm will return to the business of coaching freshman baseball team this year, although he will be unable to return without the cooperation of the Athletic Council at the University.

The kitten track men have been lost to the team because of tuition problems, failure to report, rehabilitation, and the recent ruling of the Athletic Council putting 15 men on probation.

Two prominent track men have transferred to other colleges: Julius Carosa, star javelin thrower, has transferred to Tufts and Gerald Ferrall, star 220-yard and 1-mile runner has transferred to Boston University.
