Sheila McNamee brings a global perspective to her work as professor of communication at UNH. Over the course of her career so far she has held visiting professor appointments in several foreign countries. She says students who are curious and engaged are the same around the globe. “If the fire is lit and you find a way to connect with them, UNH students and foreign students are all very much alike.” This past fall, UNH recognized McNamee with the 2014 Excellence in International Engagement award.
