Greenhouses Offer Many Hours of Enjoyment to Plant Lovers
By Esther Barrett

As we close the door against the chilly spring storm, the warm, moist air of the greenhouse heavy with the green fragrance of many, welcomes us in another clime.

Mr. Macfarlane and a staff of hard-working people turn the small greenhouse into a show place and stow them in, fresh sand, it looks simple, but the plants don’t “just grow.” They require a limited space, soil, water, and sunlight, and much care.

Carnation Time

This is the time of the year when the carnations are coming out en masse. Among the 5,000 or so varieties, there is one which, at present, are just a question mark to Mr. Macfarlane is trying to bring up, a blue carnation. The closest yet is a light lavender variety with dark purple markings. Some of his pastel hybrids are like sweet peas in the delicacy of their tints and shades.

Mr. Macfarlane and his staff have been successful in breeding a large one which has already been the subject of an audition planned for this afternoon.

Other officers are: vice president—Alonzo McPhee; secretary—Burt Foding; treasurer—E. E. Cooper; assistant treasurer—J. E. Foss; faculty advisor—Professor West; superintendent—Professor West; chairman of the class of 1936—Dr. E. E. Cooper; chairman of the alumni association—Professor West; and chairman of the publications—Professor West.

There will be a concert from 8:00 to 9:00 p.m. on May 8th, and dancing will be enjoyed from 9:00 to 1:00 a.m. on May 8th.
