The Harvard Grads for the afternoon broke into the back window, which had been broken into by a group of people. The Harvard Grads for the evening then entered through the back door. They then made their way to the lunch cart where they forced open the cash register. The loot here was only a few coins, mostly pennies. Last Year's Ode and Class Day Speech Are in Student Writer

Announcement that all essays for the Alpha Chi Omega award must be in by Dr. Alfred Richards by May 27, was made by Prof. Carl Todd, who reads in that department. The Alpha Chi Omega award is an annual prize given to the undergrada tude of the University who submits the best informal three thousand word essay. All essays must be written specifically for the award. Anyone desiring more information should see Professor Towle.

Professor Towle also stated that the Student Writer has made a new departure this year in the fact that it will contain the class day speech that year. The Student Writer and the class ode written by John P. Adams are two years for this, the professor stated. "One of the things we have to accomplish is that we should have a speech that year. The Student Writer is put out by the university, and we have to take the same care about it. One of the problems of studying at a university is that the different price levels, public and private institutions; and pressed and latest developments in available stocks.

Police Protection

Durham is again the scene of a series of robberies. Insignificant as they may be, robbers are selfish in their way of life and the people who live here. Out of 2,000 people 1,950 may be and probably are strict and honest but the last ten are not that exactly the case.

Practically the only deterrent to crime is the police and it is against the people who live here. Out of 2,000 people 1,950 may be and probably are strict but the last ten are not that exactly the case.

The only way to control such people is through the force of the consequences. Make the salary scales high enough so that it is absolutely certain that they will be caught if they join the ranks of the police.

Another factor which is generally of little importance is that the eleventh Amendment which was recently passed, is the cause of much excitement in the community.

It is a well established fact that the Constitution was drawn up for a society distinctly agricultural and because of this, the readjustment of the Constitution 150 years later to meet a great industrial and social revolution giving Congress the power to regulate Industry and Agriculture as they see fit would no doubt please the New Dealers. It seems that a happy medium between labor and capital would be that the Constitution before being ratified was accused of bolstering up the rights of private property more so than the "Rights of man." To make ratification possible it was promised that the first ten amendments would be added, and they were. Unfortunately these amendments have not been so carefully guarded as there are some other parts of the important document.

New Dealers who have had their advertisement propagated, by the Supreme Court, cannot take it for granted that they will soon be back to the White House. It is not that the present pimpling has not been the case but that the people of the United States are not the case but that the people of the United States seem to be the "hang over of the ages," Congressional legislation should prevail over that of Judicial legislation. An amendment to the Constitution giving Congress the power to regulate Industry and Agriculture as they see fit would no doubt please the New Dealers.

It seems that a happy medium between labor and capital would be that which imposes the lot of the laborer in a proportion which would not put the owner of the lot of the laborer in a proportion which would not put the owner of the laborer under such a strain. The closing would naturally bring with it unemployment and its accompanying depressing effects. However the American people will be faced for the time being with the situation of living unparalleled in the history of mankind.

Our country's governmental affairs is sure to be discussed in the coming presidential campaign."}

About Town

There are two nights of dancing this week-end and the "bottled delight" will flow like sugar in the bees. In the analyzation fails; trees grow up no faster than they can stand, and we do not mix drinks. Say(s) what you like, we are only human.

We announced a double wedding for June a short while ago in this column. Here's another. Dick Farr and the girl he is married to... and just when we thought the campus was rid of pester boys, who was heard barking in front of DeMerritt last Friday night... and just when we thought the campus was rid of pester boys, who was heard barking in front of DeMerritt last Friday night...
The First of May

The orchard half the way
From home to Ludlow Fair
Fiori'd in the first of May.
In Maya when I was there—
And seen from mile or turning
Each time of smoke would show
Where fires were burning
Half west and long ago.
The plum broke forth in green,
The pear stood high and snowed,
My friends and I between
Would take the Ludlow road;
Dressed to the nines and drinking
And light in heart and limb,
And each chap thinking
The fair was held for him.

Between the trees in flower
Our friends at fairtime tread
The way where Ludlow tower
Stands planted on the dead.
Our thoughts, a long while after,
They think, our words they say;
Their now the laughter,
The fair, the first of May.

Aye, yonder lads are yet
The fools that we were then;
For oh, the sons we get
Are still the sons of mien.
The sunless tale of sorrow
Is all unrolled in vain:
May comes tomorrow
And Ludlow fair again.—A. E. Housman
