DADS' DAY WILL BRING 500 FATHERS TO CAMPUS

Football Game Climaxes Program Planned for Tomorrow

The 12th annual Dads' Day will bring to the campus about 500 fathers representing 189 different states and foreign lands according to statistical information compiled by Oren V. Henderson, registrar of the university. On Saturday, however, all of them from architects, artists, bankers, businessmen, engineers, lawyers, watchmen, and window cleaners, will be "just dads.

A program, planned for a busy day, gives the dads an opportunity to become acquainted with the campus, meet the members of the faculty, and join with others in the afternoon.

Register at Faculty Club

On arriving on campus, the dads will register at the Faculty club, where they will receive tickets for the banquet at the University Alumni hall and the New Hampshire-Springfield football game in the afternoon.

After registering, the dads will leave in three groups to make sightseeing tours of the different colleges. The group will make an extensive tour of the Liberal Arts College to view the physics, chemistry, and biology laboratories and the inspec­tion of the other colleges. Another tour will go to the engineering section and the third tour will see the Agricultural college. Here the fathers will have a chance to see the actual classroom and laboratory work in progress, as classes will be in session. The tours will be under the leadership of members of the faculty.

Assemble at Memorial Field

At 11:30, the dads will assemble at Memorial Field.

Futile Efforts of World to Maintain Peace Are Pictured

Speaking before an attentive audience of faculty members and students, Mr. Louis Gallo, English teacher and international lecturer on political affairs, informed the listeners that "the Struggle for World Peace", which is now being waged in the four corners of the earth, will be finally engendered on Armistice Day, and embracing as its major object the world powers and the nations, is destined to continue "this day in particular, and to the times in general, this double effective and ap­preciated by the audience.

Views Futile Efforts at Peace

Emphasizing his message with an ironical study of present day policies of idealistic advisors, he argued that the idea of war is one hand, and the spending of billions of dollars for arma­ments by all the nations of the world the next, has failed to move the nations toward peace, and stated, "these are not ideals, they are carved on the pec­cile ideals with existing facts, will a step forward be taken towards eliminating the causes of war.

In his closing address, Mr. Gallo said that the "rules" enunciated by the Futile-streets will help to the war which led to the Armistice, anxious to unite the acceptance of civilized economic values."

Discusses Peace Treaties

The subject of world peace, war and treaties conferences drove a great deal of the program to the theoretical side of the war which is still going on. From the Hague to the Briand-Kellogg Treaty, outright of the fact that the general, civil, and electrical work on Armistice Day, and embracing as its major object the world powers and the nations, is destined to continue "this day in particular, and to the times in general, this double effective and ap­preciated by the audience.

DAD'S DAY

Dad's day originated about fourteen years ago in one of the colleges of the middle west. Launched through the efforts of former President Hetzel, it was tried at the University of New Hampshire for the first time in 1925. Although the number of dads who have attended the annual gatherings at the University has increased greatly, and has been greatly extended to include the immediate family, many of us who have been attending that first Dad's day would not be considered a very large gathering today. Dad's day has grown and come to be one of the most popular traditions on the campus. Through the pioneering of the University of New Hampshire, this special day is now observed at most of the colleges of the east.

On October 22, 1935 at the first Dad's Day, Professor President Hetzel made a speech in which he said, to the congregation of dads in Commons, "To you and to your sons of the Class of 1936, I extend this invitation to you, in your capacities as fathers, to participate with us in the affairs of the day, to meet the professors who are teaching your sons and daughters, and to give an opportunity to the students to hear more of your sons and daughters."

Although the annual Dad's Day has been greatly extended to include the immediate family, the spontaneity, good-fellowship, and to provide generously for their entertain- ment. To achieve this aim it is Another Armistice Day has passed, and the usual tributes to those who gave their lives and to those who are still fighting, have been rendered. One can not help thinking at times, that maybe there is a great war that is being prepared for, one which is based on the premises of the old and large nations, for a cause that is greater than the old war and once again resume the place of the "Old." Life in the German army should become the dictatorship of the German Fatherland.

Wildcats Runners in Varsity Division Finish Eighth

Due to Injuries

With Captain Bill Slater heading his pack of freshman cross country runners ahead of him, the Kitten harriers ran into an amazing team victory at Franklin Park in Boston, in the 24th annual New England Intercollegiate cross country championship race, Monday. In the varsity division, the Wildcats, hampered by leg and foot injuries, could do no better than a weak eighth place.

Place All in First Twenty

The freshman victory was amazing from the fact that they gathered 27 points—placing all of their seven men inside the first 20 runners—while the place winner, Rhode Island finished with a high total of 111.

Don Smith, running for Maine, captured the individual freshman trophy, but his team ended way back in sixth place.

"Bill Slater should get credit for the fine showing of the freshmen," Coach Paul Sweet stated after the race. "The chances are that he would have broken Smith, if he had not been told to stay behind the team and drive them alone. As it was he stayed behind, and led them backward and all well up in front, so they could group their points to win."

Varnass Hurt at Harvard

The poor showing of the varsity, its worst showing of the season, the coach attributes to the Harvard race, against Harvard and Dartmouth, in the Harvard opens.

"The team had reached its peak in the Dartmouth run, but men who that everyone developed either a leg or a foot injury," Sweet said. "This was due to the hardness of the Charles river course in comparison with the new New Hampshire one. Before the boys had time to recover, they had to race over the same course again. The team is really better than it looks. This is not said as an alibi but it is the truth," the coach emphasized.

The longest run against Fitchburg this year up to last Saturday was twenty­ seven yards.

Tomorrow is Dad's Day. Here's one honest-to-goodness prayer for a win over Springfield. "Tell Bill Slater we're ashamed of not emphasizing in the im­ women, after leading the pack all the way.

The bad effects of this race showed up during the next week, when foot and leg injuries resulted, due to the hardness of the course, so that when the squad met in the Harvard open, they were at a disadvantage. Here Dartmouth carried off winning honors, but New Hampshire finished a close second.

The final outcome was in the New England Intercollegiates, again in Boston. Rhode Island took the honors in a field of 14, while New Hampshire finished far down the list in eighth place.

The new cross country track in Durham is "a very good track, fast and easy to run," Coach Paul Sweet stated the other day. "This contrast with the Harvard course, which is a very hard track," the coach went on, "caused the many injuries to the boys.
