

MEDIA ADVISORY: Landmark Conference About The Black Experience In Northern New England Runs June 23-24 At UNH

Contact: Lori Wright
603-862-0574
UNH Media Relations

June 21, 2006

---

WHAT: Black New England: Life, History, and Community in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont

WHEN: June 23-24, 2006

WHERE: University of New Hampshire, Durham campus

BACKGROUND: For the first time, the region will welcome scholars and researchers to a conference dedicated to the black experience in the region. Sponsored by The Center for New England Culture at UNH, the conference will gather community members, teachers, scholars, researchers, and members of local organizations to share their work and insights. Panel presentations will cover contemporary civil rights issues, genealogy and family history, race and place, and preservation efforts. James O. Horton, Benjamin Banneker Professor of American Studies and History at George Washington University, will present the keynote address, "Race and Slavery in New England from the American Revolution to Abolition."

"Black New England promises to be a landmark event in increasing awareness and sharing information about African American life and history in the region," says David Watters, director of the Center for New England Culture at UNH, professor of English, and co-editor of The Encyclopedia of New England.

CONTACT: Watters can be reached for interviews at 603-862-3983 and david.watters@unh.edu.

MORE INFORMATION: Visit www.neculture.org, e-mail jerriane.boggis@unh.edu or call 603-862-0353.

EDITORS AND REPORTERS: You are welcome to attend any of the sessions and events of the conference. A complete schedule is available at http://www.unh.edu/news/cj\_nr/2006/june/lw\_060607cnec.cfm?type=n.