"Self-confidence" is Subject of Noted Springfield Clergyman

Dr. James G. Gilkey, of Springfield, Mass., was the speaker at the convocation held last Thursday in the gymnasium. He was introduced by Dr. H. Hunter, acting president of the university.

Dr. Gilkey presented his own subject, which was "Self-Confidence." He opened by reading a letter written to him by a student in a college in western Mass., which put forth the problem of loss of self-confidence and a growing feeling of self distrust that faces many students and affects them in their life. Way said on to say that there were four fundamental reasons of sources which cause this feeling.

Imagined Poplularity

The first was the discovery that many of your associates do not like you. A second reason is that you fail to discover a reason for the popularity of your associates do not like you. A third reason is that you fail to discover a reason for the imagined unpopularity. Many times you probably end his life in a small job in an uninteresting environment.

The fourth reason is that there always remain durable satisfactions and achievement, and a succession of fine and successful experiences which will lead the audience to conclude that the latter is enjoyed is the constant appearance of his poems in many of the literary magazines. The title Strange Home is a legs in his works, and the simplicity of his imagery. The title Strange Home is a legs in his works, and the simplicity of his imagery. Mr. Coffin is popular as an informal lecturer and as a reader of his own poems.

This is the second outing this year that the University would produce many more men and women who are in the University.

Representative Wylie

The second speaker was Mr. Craig Wylie of Concord, who spoke for the New Hampshire State legislature. Mr. Wylie urged the legislators to support education. The House of Representatives of the New Hampshire legislature was adjourned for the Christmas recess.

LEGISLATIVE GROUPS AT SPECIAL CONVO IN MENS GYMNASIUM

Two guests from Senate also Address The Student Body

Three committees from the New Hampshire State legislature were given special convo meetings in the gymnasium yesterday.

Acting President Roy D. Hunter, who spoke for the school in welcoming the guests, said he had been interested in the program of the University of New Hampshire for many years, and that he thought that the University of New Hampshire would be a great asset to the state.

Mr. Hunter said that "Dad" was the friend of the students of New Hampshire.

Dad Henderson

Mr. Henderson thanked the University for "saying" him to the state so that he could keep up his "lobby" the legislative, for which he had been interested, and that in the last two years there had been a great deal of interest in the University of New Hampshire in the State legislature, and that he hoped that the University of New Hampshire would be a great asset to the state.

Mr. Greenford F. Tolman, '32, of the University committee was the first speaker. Mr. Tolman told a humorous story, and then stated that truly educated men were needed in every field and especially in politics. He told the students to get everything that they possibly could from the University and then go on and use what they had learned.

The second speaker, Mr. Ernest W. Jordan, member of the New Hampshire State committee, was a graduate of Bates College. Mr. Jordan told an amusing story about the meeting of the University assembly forty years ago, which had the entire assembly in laughter.

The pictures included in the showing of American art had been reproduced by means of the temporary paintings by American artists and had been sent to the University of New Hampshire.

In extending to Living American Art, Inc., facilities for these exhibitions, the interest of the University is directed only toward the presentation of one trend of thought among a group of contemporary American artists. The jury which selects these pictures includes three well-known artists, Louis Bouche, Alexander Brook, and Adolph Dehn, and Princes Regamee of New York University.

NEW HAMPSHIRE UNIVERSITY, DURHAM, NEW HAMPSHIRE, MARCH 2, 1937.
CRITIC!

CRITIC! The campus is full of these critical people who pass along to their friends ideas of what is wrong with the school, in the organizations, on the campus, and anything about the University.

On every corner you meet one or two of them, who make it secret to you that Coach Soandos is not suited for his job, or that some organization should do something to "make themselves useful," or that some plan suggested will not work. You find these individuals everywhere, it seems.

Of course the campus is far from being over run by these critical pests but there is certain few that there are speak loud enough to make up for quantity.

There is always one noticeable characteristic, however, about these self-styled critics. They are a helpful group of self-made critics. Not once will you hear a helpful suggestion as to how improvements can be made on the subject they are downing. Never are their criticisms helpful. It seems as if their ambition was to tear an idea apart and leave it stripped of its good points. Never is this idea reduced in new and helping points.

Are we going to be critical pests or are we going to try to better a situation if we wish to? Can we remember that progress is made by helping, not hindering.

HATS OFF!

Congratulations and hats off to the persons responsible for introducing the amplifying system into conversation yesterday afternoon. The students in the lock of the gymnasium could hear the speakers clearly for the first time this year. May we continue to have the amplifiers and all our convocations.

The final speaker, Senator Caleb of Barrington, spoke briefly of the growth of the University of New Hampshire, from a school of 28 students to a University with a total enrollment of 1,532 students. He pointed out that the growth of the school to the growth of a farming school. As the son grows older and larger the farmer has to buy larger clothes for him, and as the University grows older and larger, the state has to build larger buildings to make adequate facilities for the students.

Next winter, varsity coach Swaney will invite to practice, forward Jack Hervey and ורק selene; guard, Ray and Kerth Leocha; and center Bob Morison.

The University of New Hampshire will have four representatives on the All-New Hampshire lacrosse squad which will be published soon in the National Intercollegiate Lacrosse guide.

At Milbury, Herbie Merrill, Moon Manton, and Bob Manchester are the players chosen.

Out went the light in the gym on Friday night and as a consequence the Nathan Ladies’ game started at 8:30 instead of 7:30. For what seemed like hours a good natured crowd sat in the dark, awaiting the electricity to repair the overloaded transformer. More frustrated spirits elected to leave the building by the fire escape with the light of matchsticks and a full moon.

There were no casualties, just a long, long wait.

Last fall in North Carolina — when I made over 100 speeches — I visited the Lucky Strike factory. I believe I discovered, in the Lucky Strike ‘Toasting’ process, the secret of what makes this cigarette so considerate of my throat.
