University Catalog Changes Announced

Executive Secretary Edward Y. Blewett issued a new statement on the appearance of the 1937-38 University Catalog last Sunday. The publication will have a new cover design for the first time since 1924-25.

Mr. Blewett's statement follows:

In a cover design for the first time since 1924-25 and with less than the normal number of changes in the material between its covers, the University Catalog for 1937-38 will shortly make its appearance. The new design will be in step with the current general trend in design in dark blue ink on a light blue stock cover gives New Hampshire a distinctive seal for its "show window." The old cover's reverse plate of blue ink completely reverses its color, as the only one of its kind in 1924, but has since been supplanted by several leading colleges and universities.

The University calendar for the new academic year includes more changes in property than any other section. The dates of opening (September 28) and closing (June 13) correspond to similar dates for the current year. Freshman week begins on September 14, a date corresponding to that of this year. The Homecoming Day on November 6 schedule is also similar to that of this year. The Christmas vacation dates and the time allowed for examinations will attract attention.

Longer Christmas Rests

The Christmas recess will begin on December 15, and will end on January 3. This year the holidays will begin on December 23, and will end on January 4. The longer recess is planned to give opportunity for employment or other activities.

Several companies who are interviewing students to take part in the University Catalog will be present during the recess. The University will use these interviews.

Bureaux of Apprentices Arrangements Interviews

By George Ish

Several companies who are interviewing students on the campus have expressed an interest in the student's knowledge of the bureau of apprentices through the bureau of apprentices rather than through the body of departments. This is because complete information concerning the bureau is available at the bureau for these interviews. The bureau of apprentices acts as the agent of the students and will be the corresponding body for personal contact.

The representative of the firm tells the student of a type of job he wants and the bureau then selects the students who have the necessary qualifications and arranges interviews. Students interested in this type of job are encouraged to apply.

WHINER

Are you a whiner? Do you, when things don’t go your way want them to, tell everyone that the world is all wrong, that nobody pities you, and that you know you should have received that appointment rather than John Jones? If you do you don’t belong here, anywhere else for that matter. You don’t belong to society unless you change from a whiner into a listener.

Walk down the street the other day we chanced to overhear a conversation something like this.

"I should have been selected as chairman. Smith isn’t as good as I am. I guess the class just is all against me."

The whiner’s companion, evidently of a different sort, quietly asked if his friend would care to enter helping the chairman in his work and incidentally show that he, the whiner, was as good a man as the chairman. "Why no," answered the whiner. "They didn’t choose me as chairman, why do I think they even want me. If they had they would have selected me."

How much better this fellow, despite failing to gain a coveted position, had gone on and “put his shoulder to the wheel” instead of bemoaning his fate. The chance to be used more and more in up in what he would have had he worked for his committee.

In contrast to the first student let us take another, Jack Burns. Jack had worked hard in competition with another fellow trying to gain a secondary place in the assembly. The chance to be used more and more in up in what he would have had he worked for his committee.

In the meantime, just where do we stand? The student alone should not set upon this work should be to a far larger scale. The President to say there was not a quorum perhaps is just as well that there was. Perhaps it is just as well that there was. Perhaps it is just as well that there was.

Selecting Your Milk

Of course, for me there have always been milk dreams. At first I dreamed of seeing milk as a very important, perhaps a magical, ingredient in my life. After a few years of regular consumption, that vision was replaced by a solid idea that milk was just a very useful food. Today, I dream of a world where everyone has access to fresh, nutritious milk, regardless of their income or location. It is a dream that is grounded in reality, and one that I hope to see realized in my lifetime.

Helen Jepson tells why she chooses Luckies for her voice

LOVELY PRIMA DONNA OF METROPOLITAN OPERA SAYS:

“A season of opera and concert means my voice and throat must be consistently in perfect condition. Therefore, although most of my smoking is done while I am on vacation, it is all important to me that I be careful in choosing my cigarette. I smoke Luckies because I enjoy their taste and because I feel it is wiser for me to choose a light smoke for my voice.”

New Scholarships

Three new scholarships are listed for the first time in the new catalog: the Charles H. Sanders Scholarship for a needy junior who has excelled in scholastic activity, the John N. Haines Scholarship for a freshman as recently established and announced. The R. C. Bradley Loan Fund, generously established by the New Hampshire Poultry Growers' Association this year, to provide loans for needy and deserving students of poultry husbandry, appears for the first time. In the section dealing with student self-help there is contained in italic's a warning to students who must work part-time to earn their college expenses. Such students are ad dvised to carefully survey their individual strengths and scholastic aptitudes before committing themselves to the arduous combination of study and work. Freshman women are particularly advised to be sure they are in good physical health and have excellent scholastic preparation before they undertake work in private homes in Durham.

New Curricula Changes

Generally speaking, the curricula remain unchanged. No new curricula have been added to those already offered. In the General Curriculum in the College of Agriculture freshmen will take Mathemat ics 5, 6 instead of Mathematics 1, 2. In the Animal Husbandry Curriculum, Entomology 53, Insects of Domestic Animals, is not given next year. This course is dropped from the Horticulture and Ento-tomology curricula as well. In the Poultry Husbandry 7 and 9 are shifted about from junior to senior years in the Agriculture Teacher Training Curriculum, Education 41, 42 replaces Education 31, 52 as a required course. No changes appear in the Botany, Bacteriology, and Forestry curricula.
