Dean's Advisory Council Effects Many New Changes

By John M. Averell, Chairman, Dean's Advisory Council

The Dean's Advisory Council, which was organized by the President to represent every department in the College of Liberal Arts, the Association of Women Students, and the student body, has been appointed by the Dean. The Council, which was appointed last fall for the year 1936-37, has completed its work, and in this final issue of The New Hampshire reports its accomplishments.

C. Floyd Jenkins, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, appointed the Council to act in an advisory capacity to him through the Council's chairman, various suggestions and recommendations are computed to Dean Jackson. This year, the work of the Council has been divided among various committees, among members, and in faculties, and courses, the advisory system, and senior honors.

Examinations and Courses

In the opinion of the Council, a day at the least, should intervene between the last day of the classes and the first day of final examinations. This recommendation was acted upon favorably by the University Schedule Committee.

Upon the Council's suggestion that one hour examinations be distributed more evenly during the semester, the faculty voted that "the departments should this semester report to the Dean's office the last of all hour examinations given in the respective departments." Among these recommendations was one that freshmen final examinations be distributed more evenly, especially avoiding examinations in History and English because the same subject matter has also been scheduled by the School of Education.

Another recommendation of the Council dealt with excusing students from final examinations, who has courses in which a grade of 90 or above were assigned. The final report of the faculty was that any general action on this matter would be difficult, since conditions varied from one instructor to another. In the opinion of the Dean, one of the most valuable recommendations of the Council was the concern with the opening of the Citizenship course, and courses in Sociology. To: formulation, favorable action on this matter involves the speeding up of the course work. The Dean is now working on the problem with the hope of bringing about some solution before next fall.

Another of the Council's suggestions concerned final examinations. The Council felt that in many classes the number of students in the reserve shelf is too limited, particularly where the time for working out the assignment is short. The Council also urged that instructors either secure additional copies of the reserve department or allow a longer time for making up the assigned work. The faculty finally voted that "the action of the Committee on Library Service be appointed to study the problem of study requirements in this matter.

A DUTY

On Monday, June 14, two hundred and eighty-eight and one two-year agricultural certificates and eighteen associate degrees will be presented to the members of the graduating class of the University. For four years the majority of these graduating men and women have been a part of the school, carrying on the traditions and activities of life on the campus.

May the graduates of the College of Agriculture bear witness to the reputation of the University, and be worthy of being given a diploma, the recommendation that they are fit to take their places in the world's national life.

The school will be judged greatly by its graduates, and it is the privilege and duty of these same graduates to show good citizens and to prove to believers that their Alma Mater is proud of them and that it is the part of the students to carry on the traditions of the University.

The New Hampshire
N.H., M., May 28, 1937

FOREWELL

To you, members of the graduating class of 1937, the University would like to extend every good wish. Many of you have been with us only four years to come. Show the cooperation and interest in your work that most of you have shown here and you should go a long way. The campus will miss you next year and it is up to us, the undergraduates, to try and fill the places you leave vacant.

Farewell.

My dear and devoted friends, 'tis been an epidemic of strikes will continue. At the present time over 80 thousand workers are striking and sit down strikes are continuing. The Wagner Labor Relations Act would allow the workers, in case of a refusal of the workers in their attempts at collective bargaining, to go to court.

Mr. Auerbach told us once, that people remember things, that they remember things, that they remember things. In that way things you never knew were actually important, because that's the way it is.

We hope they will let us out . . .

VARSI Ty TRACK TEAM MEETS SPRINGFIELD

The varsity track team engages in its final meet of the year tomorrow afternoon at the track field in Springfield college's track.

For the Blue and White team, the meet will be won by a large score. This year may be another story, although both teams will be in excellent condition. The Blue and White will have already won four out of eight meets this season.

This high-scoring win will take place on the track field of Springfield college.

The players will carry the Yellow jackets to victory over the Blue and White.

The senior star of the Blue and White team is Tom Giarla, who has been in the starting lineups for the Blue and White team for two years. He has been a consistent performer and has contributed significantly to the team's success.

Among those who will be featured are Giarla himself, Art Hanson, and Butch MacVernon. Giarla is the team's top scorer, and Hanson and MacVernon are also key players for the Blue and White team.

The meet will be a close one, and the outcome will depend on the performance of the individuals on both teams.

The Blue and White team will be the favorites to win, but the Blue and White cannot be underestimated. The Blue and White team has proven themselves to be a tough and competitive team.

The meet will be held at the track field of Springfield college, and it will be a great opportunity for the Blue and White team to secure a victory in their final meet of the season.
