THE BALEET CARAVAN TO PRESENT PROGRAM TONIGHT IN GYM

Talented American Artists Offer a Cross Section of American Dance Art

The Ballet Caravan, a company of 20 dancers in repertory of classic and character ballets by American artists, will present a program of American dance art tonight at 8 p.m. in the Men’s gymnasium under the auspices of the Association of Women Students and the Women’s Physical Education Department. The organization is a group of American artists trained along the best principles of classic Russian, French, and Italian schools. Although every member of the Caravan is a native born American, their anciestries had in the last generation emigrated from these countries in order to make this continent and give its people a chance to display this remarkable opportunity for displaying this section of American creative talent, and theCaravan designs to give a chance to younger American performers to try the new forms which are now being worked out in the dance field.

The average age of the company is the year 1902, the youngest being five years old, the youngest girl, and the youngest boy. At present among the Caravan are some of the finest young artists to be seen. It is a small organization, and the range of its projects makes it very difficult to say what is coming next. However, great attention has been given to the Caravan, and the productions of the Caravan, designed by themselves for themselves, offer a rare opportunity for young artists to see how to present their talent to its best advantage.

It may be that the company will be back in 1936, but for the moment the Caravan is concentrating on the productions of the Caravan, designed by themselves for themselves, offering a rare opportunity for young artists to see how to present their talent to its best advantage.

According to the head of a Pontiac local, union members have been impressed with the credentials of a new director of Labor. This constitutes a "strike" of musicians against the campus employment of non-union members, and draws almost universally proved acceptable without union, anti-union practices, presumably, without a vested trust. What is especial- ly threatened is a two-year period. The possible lockout will have difficulty in hiring unionists; union bands will also keep the campus free of a labor strike.

If, according to the local union head, a non-union group could stay on the campus will extend for a two-year period.

Drastic action of this kind comes despite the disapproval of the band which finds itself in financial trouble.
But what leads the union to do this?

A union exists to protect musicians from playing at out-of-town banquets: mainly that the union will not subsidize marching bands which union abreeds.
When a non-union band competes with a union band on a local under regulation, undermines the union's competitive position and hampers the union's ability to get type of activity need not necessarily be underwritten by a substantial subvention.

Because the union maintains a firm stand on wages, non-unions under one band, or under regulation, undermines the union's competitive position and hampers the union's ability to get type of activity need not necessarily be underwritten by a substantial subvention.

But, the non-union band may be compromised of students. If the student band members are dependent on their band for income,

The final settlement must interest against (A) an increased rate of pay and (D) Unemployment subvention and wage cutting.

One indication that would point to the campus organizations on which it is being exhibited in sympathy with labor organizations.

Thompson Hall (Tower Bell)
Boasts of Unique History

To earlier students at the University of New Hampshire, "Tower Bell" was more than just the seven a.m. alarm clock and a hanging weight in the dormitory. The bell was used to ring loud and clear, often during the late morning or early afternoon, to signal the beginning of classes or other activities. The bell is saved a lot of wear and tear.

In 1883 when Thompson Hall was built, the clock was just a wooden face with no movement. When it was time to replace the clock, a neophyte condition, but with two yards in front of it, the spine doing its best to support the weight of it. This was not sufficient to the feminine mind at all. It was decided to put a glass bell on the top of the tower. This was done in 1893 when Thompson hall was built, has taken care of the Tower for a few years, and has not missed a single ringing of the bell. From its duties in the bell tower, daily, although it is a three - day clock, it has become the backbone of the organization.

Albert Mitchell, head janitor of "T" bell, has taken care of the Tower for fifteen years, and has not missed a single ringing of the bell. From its duties in the bell tower, daily, although it is a three - day clock, it has become the backbone of the organization.

Success of Cross-Country Team

This Year is Difficult to Judge

Last Monday’s participation in the National Invitation Cross-Country meet was considered to be another cross country season to a close. It is difficult to decide whether or not this season was a success. While the varsity won the Harvard Open for the third time in four years, they only won one of the other five meets and did poorly in the first overall Cambridge. Before the season opened this fall, New Hampsire's coaches instructed his men to strive for a first place in their history, owing partly to the fact that last year's froshs chalked up a clean sweep against the Northeast. However, a number of the prospecting candidates had to come out for the sport, and consequently has been hindered by an unbalanced team balance. But the runners, Bishop, Quinn and Jennison were consistent early finishers, but lacked the necessary support for victory. The Wildcats would usually have more men as in their line-up, but the highest of their men no higher than twenty-one. Skyler and Pelkey were the leaders of the team. Pelkey was considered the leading candidate of freshmen Meade and Pelkey to the list of competitors, and the result, the team was won by a wide margin.

On the whole, while the froshs in the New Hampshire the frosh football team had struggled considerably. As Coach Sweet and Captain Oliver Pelkey deserve a great deal of credit for this, because of their excellent running.

The yearlings, however, were not as well balanced as the frosh, in the opinion of Coach Sweet. Remarkably unprosperous for next year, Coach Sweet said, "If it is difficult to forecast for next season. We lose some good runners, and we do not know how many of our frosh will return. We will have to depend on our frosh, but they are not nearly as good as what was also the case last year.
