Council Approves Election Changes

Amendments Proposed For Student Decision And Vote Next Week

Following an investigation of past student elections and methods employed by other state-supported schools, a special committee appointed by the student council consisting of Paul Dupell, chairman, H. LeRoy Bishop, John Hall, Carl Swenson, and Hertzell Weinstat, submitted several recommendations which the council approved of. Referring to the election of officers, the following amendments are proposed to the class constitutions:

Article V, section 2. Nominations for officers of this organization shall be made by a petition containing the signatures of twenty students eligible to vote for the officers in question. No student shall sign for more than the number to be elected to any office. If a student's name appears on more petitions than he has a right to sign, his endorsement shall count for the first positions filed up to the limit allowed by the foregoing rule. Nomination petitions shall be handed in to a person appointed by the student council, and checked by him against the lists of the student body for improper duplication. The time limit for candidates to file nomination papers shall be set far enough ahead of the election to permit publication of the names of all candidates in "The New Hampshire" in the issue one week in advance of elections.

Section 3. If a member holding of

Third Legislative Group Visits University

Committees on agriculture of the Senate and House of Representatives, the third of the legislative groups to visit the campus this semester, inspected the agricultural facilities of the University yesterday afternoon.

The committees arrived at noon and had luncheon in the president's dining hall in the Commons. They inspected the dormitories, fraternities and sororities in a tour of the campus, afterwards visiting the barns, the poultry plant, the greenhouse, and the chemistry and engineering laboratories. A tour of the Field House and Lewis Fields completed the afternoon.

Nazi Penetration of South America Dr. Sharp's Subject

Growing German Trade With South America Threat to Solidarity

Emphasizing the fact that so long as Fascist aggression is kept out of the Western hemisphere, its nations will be bed-rock for all of humanity to cling to and build democracy on, Dr. Roland H. Sharp, staff writer of the foreign department of the Christian Science Monitor, gave a lecture, followed by colored moving pictures, on "Pan Americanism" on Wednesday night in Murkland auditorium, under the sponsorship of the Lectures and Concerts committee.

Devoting a great deal of his talk to the subject of the Integralist party, Fascist party in Brazil, Mr. Sharp outlined the growth of the party, its conspiracy with President Vargas, and its subsequent emasculation because Vargas decided to clamp down on its activities. Since this was the only national party in Brazil—the others all being state governments—it was a decided blow to Fascist aggression.

There is, however, a great deal of Nazi penetration in Brazil and all of South America by virtue of trade agreements which Germany has carefully built up. The trade is on a system of barter, with Germany's exchanging locomotives, typewriters and other machinery for the raw material and foodstuffs which it needs the most. Also, Germany exchanges for goods a reduced mark which it accepts in return only for goods of which it has a surplus. Thus, increased trade agreements between the United States and South America will not lessen trade between Germany and South America.

As for the stand of the United States in regard to South America, Mr. Sharp brought out the fact that there had recently been a definite move toward

Circus Hop Plans Near Completion

With the Circus Hop scheduled for next Friday evening, advance ticket sales indicate that a sizeable number of students are planning to attend the annual sophomore event. The announcement that the dance is to be informal has greatly stimulated the sale of tickets, according to a statement by Charles Craig, general chairman of the dance committee. The orchestra, Tony Brown and His Royal Canadians, is an additional factor in the promising ticket sale.

Realizing that only a week remains for preparation for the dance, the members of the committee are completing their plans. The decoration group, which has the task of transforming the women's gymnasium into a circus scene, met last night under the direction of Phil Beaulieu, Ray Dyer, and the general chairman. Dyer, who was in charge of decoration work in the recent Mask and Dagger play, "Berkeley Square", has devised a number of novel decorating schemes.

The publicity committee, working under Sumner Fellman, has distributed advertising posters over the campus, and is pressing the ticket sale. Through the aid of the Sphinx society, sophomore honor group, tickets have been placed in each fraternity house to facilitate purchase.

Another encouraging indication that the dance will be a success came with the assurance by Ray Doyle, president of the freshman class, that the frosh will lend their support to the venture, and will attend in large numbers.

All sophomores are reminded that money collected and unsold tickets should be in the hands of Charles Craig or Sumner Fellman by next Thursday evening, if they wish to be eligible for the ticket-selling prize. For the convenience of those who do not purchase tickets beforehand, it will be possible to obtain them at the door on the evening of the dance.

Helen Chase Becomes Bride of Allen Armstrong

Helen Chase of Penacook, New Hampshire, class of 1935, and Allen Armstrong of Plymouth, Massachusetts, class of 1934, were married at the bride's home in Penacook, Saturday, March 18. Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Eagle Hotel in Concord. Sally Perkins, class of 1935, was the matron of honor and William Armstrong was the best man.

Armstrong was a member of Lambda Chi fraternity. He majored in architecture. Mrs. Armstrong was a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority and was one-time honorary cadet colonel. She majored in home economics.

Spiritual Chosen For Song Contest

"Steal Away", a negro spiritual, has been chosen as the prize song for the men's group in the forthcoming Song-fest sponsored by Senior Skulls society. This is the announcement which the faculty committee made earlier in the week. The piece is from the Yale Glee Club series and will afford an excellent opportunity for the competing groups to show what they are capable of doing.

Professor Manton has chosen Brahms' lovely melody, "In Silent Night", for the women competitors. This piece has been popular for women's voices for many years.

"The New Hampshire" and Skulls society wish to correct an error which appeared in the last issue of the paper. Through an error on the part of the reporter writing the story, the name of the contest was printed incorrectly. The word which described the Welsh songfest, one rich in tradition and history, should have been "Eisteddfod" rather than "Ifestodd". This opportunity is taken to thank those who were interested enough to call the attention of the two organizations to the error. The name of the song contest will be "Skulls' Eisteddfod".

It is not too late to enter the contest and any fraternity, sorority, dormitory or other organization may file entries by notifying Norm Haweeli, Vic Tyson or Gordon Martin.

A "New Hampshire" Writer Views "Going to Press"

by George Erb

"More copy, boy. More copy in here, I say. What do you think this is, a W.P.A. project?" The news editor yawned and handed the "boy" a handful of stories to silence the complaints of Editor Buck Buchanan. The new copy at hand Buck placed his feet in the groove on the desk made by the last editor and lit up his pipe.

"The New Hampshire" was going to press. Not a great event perhaps in comparison with the present crisis in Europe or the unemployment situation in Akron, Ohio, but it fitted into its little niche amongst the encroachment of the isms and the National League pennant race. "The New Hampshire" goes to press every Sunday and Wednesday night between the hour of 7:00 and the time the managing editor falls asleep. This time (when the m.e. falls asleep) varies because there are two of them, Sumner Fellman who does the sleeping Sunday evening and Dick Phenix who sleeps Wednesday.

Work begins when assignments are posted and the heeled must have their stories ready by the deadline of the issue for which they are assigned. At seven of a Sunday or Wednesday evening, Priscilla Taylor opens the office and takes her place at the news desk where she receives all incoming news and proceeds to dominate the copy room for the remainder of the evening. (In a pleasant sort of way of course.) It is her specific duty to see that all the news is reported and is written in a suitable manner with the proper head.

Sometimes the next to report for duty is the managing editor—whoever it happens to be—and frequently he is followed up the stairs by your correspondent (who makes cryptic and inane comments about the athletic situation). The evening's entertainment is hardly under way, however, until Manuel Kopelman, literary editor, and reporter Al Sharps arrive to liven the atmosphere with their sharp but brilliant witticisms. Then we are a group.

Don Lawson—he's the associate editor, right hand man to the editor so to speak—comes out of the inner office and posts a notice on the bulletin board. Don doesn't say much for he's a quiet sort of fellow and just goes around posting his notices and checking up on the dummy. (We don't mean the sport's editor but rather the blank copy on which the stories are arranged.)

Winnie Kennedy is around now and Edith Blake and Myron Rosen. The long tables each side of the room are lined with reporters writing their stories. Typewriters are clacking, voices mumble incoherently, reporters wander aimlessly and the office assumes the appearance of a madhouse. This effect isn't exactly dispelled by the arrival of the remainder of the sports department (Dick Cook and Paul Shaw) who like to spend the evening talking with the news editor (at least the first half of the department).

Eight o'clock strikes. Nine. Ten. Suddenly someone decides it's time to start working (usually Priscilla although she has really been working herself all the time). Stories appear at the desk. Dick or Sumner start work-

CAULDRONS

Late on Sunday evening last spring, after an ordeal of hours on end in pursuit of elusive headlines, rewrite fragments, and longer and longer yawns, the staff of The New Hampshire was still quietly and unobtrusively preparing newspaper copy for press. It was the ordinary Sunday evening work with a pageful of sports, a stereotype story on Mask and Dagger and various and sundry other items, all of which were rather routine in their scope. Thus it would go until the early hours of Monday morning.

Then, as the bell in the T hall tower was booming out the midnight hour, a call came in from the Cauldrons. The new officers of Cauldrons had been chosen and plans made for the coming year. Well, here was the scoop of the year; we all thought it was fine and dandy that the Cauldrons had told us about their new officers because the Cauldrons were the Cauldrons and nobody else but.

But what have the Cauldrons done this year to justify their existence? We know they are the non-fraternity men but what else do they do besides have officers, a representative on the Student Council and a page in the Granite. Surely with about three or four hundred non-frat men on campus the organization could do something worthwhile.

Meetings are never held, or if they are it is a veritable secret as The New Hampshire has carried no notices of such meetings this year. Surely there must be a place for such an organization. Are these non-fraternity men to graduate from college and leave Durham without making more than a handful of friends? No one doubts the value of the social phase of college life and there should be some organization to offer this to the men who, for any one of a multitude of reasons, cannot join a fraternity.

Meetings with some sort of program might be held at intervals, and dances and "Vic" parties held when the occasion presented itself. In fact, there is no reason why the Cauldrons cannot secure rooms in Commons, Ballard hall or one of the dormitories and sponsor a house dance for themselves on the week-ends when the fraternities hold their house dances.

There is in the dormant Cauldrons, a place where some ambitious and conscientious youths may perform a duty which will be a benefit not only to themselves and the others but it will also offer a definite organization which will welcome all men who are unable to pledge to a fraternity during their freshman year and thus make college mean something to these men besides bills and books.

WEATHER FORECAST

Friday morning, 8:30

Moderately cold, dry air of Polar origin, which yesterday dominated the weather of most of the country, has this morning reached New England. However, the warmer, moist air, which yesterday gave us rain, is still present aloft over Durham this morning, as indicated by the high level clouds moving in from the southwest in spite of the surface northwest winds. When this warmer air aloft is finally pushed off the coast, clear and somewhat colder weather will prevail over New England for a day or longer.

There are some indication of the development of another storm over the Great Plains states, but it is still too early to say for sure whether this disturbance will bring precipitation to Durham by Easter Sunday. Some cloudiness by Sunday, however, is probable.

Forecast for Durham and vicinity: Slowly clearing this afternoon, becoming somewhat colder tonight. Northwest winds increasing during the afternoon. Minimum temperature at night about 30 degrees.

Saturday: Fair, with slowly rising temperature. Variable winds. Temperatures above freezing at night.

Sunday: Generally fair, but with increasing cloudiness likely sometime during the day. Southerly winds; rain is possible by evening.

FIVE sophomores at a New England university had been assigned to report on the residential districts of a southern city, its principal products and the location of its plantations.

Hour after hour they thumbed through book after book in the library—all to no avail. Then one of them had a happy idea—why not telephone the city's Mayor? They did—and in a few minutes had all the information they needed.

No matter what the question—in college, in social life, in business—you'll find the telephone is often the quickest, most economical way to get the answer.

Mr. Parker Merrow Speaks at Banquet

"Independent" Editor Is Guest of Honor at "New Hampshire" Dinner

"The New Hampshire" held its annual banquet last night in the president's dining hall, with board and staff members, and several guests of honor present. Mr. Parker Merrow, Editor of the "Carroll County Independent", a well known New England weekly, was the main speaker of the evening.

Because Mr. Merrow was on a Dartmouth publication for two years as Pictorial editor, and because as Editor of the "Independent", he helps carry on the jobs of Managing Editor, News Editor, reporter, columnist, in a sort of one-man dynamo fashion, he was indeed well equipped to speak as he did on newspaper work in general, and then in connection with a college paper.

Although Mr. Merrow sat to deliver his address professing fatigue, he spoke in an alert, energetic manner, calling upon his wit, experience, and imagination, to deliver as forceful and brilliant an address as has ever been given at these banquets in the past.

Other guests of the evening were Dean Alexander, Professor Towle, Mr. H. B. Stevens, and Martin Delbrouck, all of whom spoke a word or two on "The New Hampshire" and its work; Editor Buchanan also addressed the group. The toastmaster for the evening was Richard Phenix.

Forest Service Trains Student Fire Fighters

Last Monday evening Mr. Holz of the United States Forest Service spoke to the members of the Forestry Club. Mr. Holz described the "one lick" system of fire fighting which is in use in most of the United States. He showed a movie illustrating this method which was taken during recent fires in the West. Mr. Warren Hale, assistant state forester of New Hampshire, was the next speaker. He discussed plans for developing a fire emergency unit for fighting fires in this part of the state. Other speakers were Mr. McReynolds of the United States Forest

Series of Debates on Alliance Opens

The Debating club opened its final series of debates for the year with a women's team from Boston university, Wednesday, April 5, in Durham. The topic of the debate was, "Resolved: that the United States should establish an alliance with Great Britain." The B. U. team, which defended the affirmative, was Edith Coldman and Doris Rose, both from Boston. The members of the New Hampshire team were: Robert Swett and Edwin Nye. There was no decision.

The issue of the debate centered around the assertion of the affirmative team that only the united efforts of the two great English-speaking democracies could bring peace to the world. This was countered by the contention of the N. H. team that the encirclement policy being followed by England today can restrain the Fascist nations without America's being drawn into entanglements with British diplomacy.

Charles Melnick, coach of debating, announced that there would be several trips for debaters before the end of the year. The next will be Monday, April 10, when New Hampshire will again defend the negative of the question debated on Wednesday in a debate with Middlebury to be held in Wolfeboro, N. H. The Rotary club of Wolfeboro will be hosts to the teams. New Hampshire will be represented by Paul Peras and John Hall.

Service, who originated and perfected the "one lick" system, and Mr. McDaniel of the Forest Service who has had a great deal of experience fighting forest fires in the West.

The "one lick" system was developed for use with unexperienced help. It has proved so much more efficient than old methods that it is used by trained men as well as beginners. The rate at which a fire trench is constructed in this method is approximately three times as fast as experienced men can dig using the old system.

On Friday afternoon Mr. McReynolds will come to Durham to select and train a group of upperclassmen who will serve as foremen this spring and next fall whenever an emergency call comes in for more fire fighters.

Offhand we wouldn't say that Coach Swasey was very enthusiastic about the weather situation as far as baseball is concerned.

We dropped in on him the other day, found him sitting with his feet on his desk inhaling the vapors from a piece of burning rope. So we took our handkerchief out, sat down and had a good cry with him while he sobbed out all the bad luck that was pursuing him.

Well, to begin with, poor Hank has only three reliable catchers, one of them being able to hit everything but his courses. Jumping from this gap to first base we find an appalling situation that is making the coach's hairline recede at the rate of 2 m.m. every nine days. Here he has two men who can play the position equally well, one of them a letterman last year, and the other a star from up Vermont way who transferred down here last year. The problem probably will not be solved, however, until the season gets under way, which isn't so far off as you may think (April 24).

And taking a nice long lead off the bag we sneak down to second but the situation there seems to be well in hand so we glance at short field. Here you have really got a problem. Hank has to choose for this position either a superb fielder but a man who does not produce base knocks in quantity, or he can sacrifice a bit of this fielding strength and put in a man who pounds the ball with a little more regularity. Or else he could bid in no trumps. But at third base—here the coach cut loose with a smile and his eyes sparkled just a little bit through all the tears—well, that territory is well covered by a veteran of many campaigns.

The outfield patrol—the smile began to spread—Hank admitted that he can start either of two combinations, three left-handed hitters or three men who swing from the right side of the plate. At this point we hinted that he had overlooked the pitching situation and the smile faded. He swung his feet onto the floor, got up and went over to the window. "I've got three possible starting pitchers," he moaned, "but suppose one of them were to break a leg or suppose we had an epidemic of scarlet fever and a couple of them got sick. Then where would we be? I ask you, where would we be?" We could see his point, where would we be?

LeRoy Bishop, Pierre Boy, Archie Dalton, Norman Haweeli, Paul Horne, Kenneth Huff, Donald Otis, Edwin Preble, Robert Spaulding, Joseph Tinker, Walter Webb.

Alpha Xi Delta Wins Inter-house Badminton

The inter-house sorority badminton contest closed recently, with Alpha Xi Delta the winning house; Beverly Rowell and Augusta Timberlake comprising the winning team against Margaret Foley and Helen Colby of the Commuters. In the semi-finals, Theta Upsilon and Congreve were the teams defeated.

Racketmen Report For First Workout

For the first time since 1928, tennis will appear on the New Hampshire athletic schedule as a letter sport. About 22 men reported to Coach John Conroy as practice was opened this week.

The difference between a good season and a bad one will be decided perhaps by one man, George "Red" Wilson. Wilson had a knee operation in February and while the doctor has told him he is ready to play, the coach doesn't want to take chances and rush him right into the lineup. Therefore, it is probable that "Red" will not appear in the opening match, but it is hoped that he will be ready for the Connecticut State match on May 5.

There are eight men reporting for the squad who have had previous college experience. There is Al Carling, former state junior title holder, Cy Leavitt, 1937 school champion, and Milt Lider who was runner-up to George Wilson in last year's tournament. Also out for the first drills were Jim Garvey, Charlie Piffard, Warren Davison and Bill Greer.

Lacrosse Veterans Strengthen Squad

The University of New Hampshire's varsity lacrosse team this year has eight lettermen from a 1938 club which finished a close second to Dartmouth in the New England league. The defense position will be weak through lack of veterans but the midfield and attack positions should be very strong.

The posts in midfield, attack, and goal, with the exception of center, will be filled by wearers of varsity insignia, Don Otis, Ambrose Kinion, Lloyd Coutts, Wally Ballou, Ario Piretti, and Sam Levine. Joe Tinker, the only veteran guard, will be the nucleus around which the defense will be built.

John DuRie, who is coaching the team with which he played last year, has been greatly handicapped by the loss of Ed Preble and Bill Quinn, senior veterans who have not reported. Preble has deserted the game for studying, but no reason has been given for Quinn's absence.

The six game schedule opens on April 15 with M. I. T. on the Durham field.

Football Practice Closes with Game on Lewis Gridiron

Coach George Sauer Divides Squad Equally Into Blues and Whites

Spring football will be erased from the athletic calendar today when George Sauer's "Whites" meet Chick Justice's "Blues". The practice has been shortened in order to permit football men to report for the regular spring sports.

In spite of the abbreviated schedule the coach is pleased with the results of the workouts. He feels that the squad has accomplished more this year than it has in previous years and says, "We have had only a little over two weeks of practice so far, but already we are ahead of where we were at the close of last spring's workouts." Coach Sauer attributes this to the fact that workouts were held in the Field House thus permitting daily practice, uninterrupted by snow or rain.

The sophomores seem to be replacing veterans at many of the posts, both in the line and in the backfield. The squad will have two first class passers in Harold Hall and George Alimi while other sophomore backfield candidates who have displayed considerable ability are Dick Gordon, Bob Wood, and Phil Richards. Sophomores who will probably see a lot of service in the forward wall next fall are Dick Gordon, an end, and Ray Doyle, tackle.

For the game the coach has divided the squad into two equally matched groups, one to be headed by himself and the other by Chick Justice. He hopes to see from this game how some of the new men will stand up under the strain of competition. The opposing starting lineups will be as follows:

White—Ends: Lampson, J. Martin; tackles: Flaherty, W. Marshall; guards: Popowski, Buchanan; center: Burt; Onella, Q.B.; G. Gordon, F.B.; Richards, R.H.B.; H. Hall, L.H.B.

Blue—Ends: Connors, Fecke; Budzianowski, R. Doyle, tackles; guards: Kacharos, H. Martin; center: Nugent; Wood, Q. B.; Beaudet, F. B.; Alimi, R.H.B.; Hatch, L.H.B.

Ten forty-five and the rush for the door begins. That is of course the girls who have to be in at eleven. Barbara Peterson, Martha Holt, Marjorie Holt, Gertrude Meinelt, Winnie Kennedy and Priscilla Taylor have all gone. The office seems almost silent as the men who remain behind try to finish up the last of the stories before midnight. The clock strikes twelve and the managing editor sits alone with the dummy—or that is, he would be alone if the sport's editor would only finish that story he is trying to write.

Isles of Shoals Marine Lab Opens for Twelfth Session

The zoology department will conduct the twelfth session of the Isles of Shoals Marine Zoological laboratory from June 10 to August 12.

The staff will be composed of leading men in the field of zoology and the courses will be designed to meet the needs of zoology majors, pre-medical students, pre-dental students, and those training for nurses, laboratory technicians, biology instructors, and research workers.

In the past, all possible efforts have been made to give the students of the University the first opportunity to sign for the course, holding up the acceptance of others in order to make this possible. With the growing popularity, this stalling becomes more and more difficult; therefore early application is necessary.

Later in the spring, when the lab's newly acquired motor launch is in action, interested students will be able to make a trip of inspection to the Isles of Shoals, a group of islands located in the Gulf of Maine approximately ten miles off Portsmouth Harbor. Surrounded by the Atlantic, they form an excellent base for the study of marine life, and present a variety of conditions from small enclosed bays and sheer rocky cliffs to ocean depths

Late Dean Honored by Alumni Group

This year's Alumni fund will be used to present medals to citizens and former residents of the state in recognition of distinguished service in professional fields. The medals will be in honor of the late dean, Dr. Charles Holmes Pettee.

This is the first alumni association in the country to attempt a project of this kind. Two people, chosen each year by a committee of eight outstanding leaders in the state, will receive the medals which will be awarded through the University at a public ceremony held on the campus.

Dr. Pettee served the University from 1876 until his death a year ago in various positions of instructor, professor, dean, and acting president. In addition to his educational and scientific associations, Dr. Pettee was active in the church, grange and town and state governments.

Refugees Describe German Life Today

The Menorah Society presented last Tuesday evening at Scott hall, Ernest P. Lehman and James Brandt, German refugees, who spoke of their personal experiences in Nazi Germany. Miss Nathalie Reinherz, president of the Menorah, introduced the two speakers.

Mr. Lehman, who spoke first, gave a vivid description of the Nazi regime as it is today. He described life in Germany under the fascist government, speaking movingly of the psychology of the new regime under Hitler.

Mr. Lehman had been living in Sweden for many years and occasionally returned to his home in Munich for short visits with his family. On June 2, 1938, he returned to his home the last time before embarking for the United States. The following morning, according to Mr. Lehman, he was arrested by three men of the German Secret police and taken to a prison cell. His trunks were seized by the police. After grilling, he was sent to a concentration camp near Munich.

Mr. Lehman then described the horrors of the camp; he told of how dozens of guiltless men were thrashed and beaten and even killed. Straw and rags served for beds, and the food, which was won only after a certain amount of physical "sports" had been completed, consisted of black coffee and two old rolls. The prisoners worked on the streets most of the day. Many of them broke down and were taken away. A number of the prisoners committed suicide with their shovels, and others were shot down for walking into forbidden districts.

After days of torture and suspense, Mr. Lehman was brought into the main building of the camp. He was questioned further, and finally released several days later. Before his departure, he signed papers forfeiting his possessions, and testifying that the treatment in the camp was very good.

of 200 feet or more.

Any student feeling that he might profit from a session at the Shoals should acquire a bulletin at once. Dr. Fogg is ready and willing to answer any and all questions that may arise.

To the prospective student, the Shoals offer an opportunity to fulfill science requirements or acquire 12 credits in a needed course. Eight weeks of well-balanced life is relatively inexpensive.

Phi Mu Delegates Hold Convention

Celebrating the 20th anniversary of Beta Gamma, local chapter of Phi Mu, over 100 delegates from Phi Mu sorority chapters on six New England and New York college campuses met in their annual two-day convention, Mar. 31 and April 1, at the University of New Hampshire. Delegates were present from Adelphi college, Colby college, the University of Maine, Middlebury college and Syracuse University.

Juniors Try New Ticket Sale Plan

What with the approach of Easter, commencement, and other occasions, all of which make a definite drain and dent in the pocketbooks of college students, the Junior Prom Committee has decided to take a hand in assisting the hard-pressed and financially embarrassed college students.

The price of the tickets this year will be $3.85 per couple. However, the committee has devised a plan whereby the prospective customer may spread his payment over a period of three weeks. George McCaffrey, chairman of the ticket committee, has announced the following plan:

Any student who wishes to go to the Junior Prom and is afraid he will be unable to pay $3.85 in one sum, by contacting one of three members of the ticket committee, pay one dollar each week for the next two weeks, and $1.85 for the last payment. It was felt that this plan would assist the students in attending the prom.

The members of the committee are: George McCaffrey at the Theta Kappa Phi house, Chet Lapeza at the Kappa Sigma house and Phil Dunlap at

Writing Contests Nearing Deadline

Closing dates in a number of writing contests are approaching for student writers. Manuscripts for the Atlantic Monthly contests in story, essay and verse must be turned in to Professor Carroll Towle of the English department by Saturday, April 8. This contest is open to students in English 7 and 8, and in the workshop groups.

The following Saturday, April 15, is the final date for the Tri-state contests, also in story, essay and verse. April 20 is the deadline for all contributions to the "Student Writer." All students are eligible for these two contests.

Mr. Towle has announced that a mimeographed description of all the contests open to New Hampshire writers has been prepared, and anybody who would like a copy, whether enrolled in one of the writing courses or not, can secure one from him.

Announcement of a new competition sponsored by the Civil Liberties Union and the "One-Act Play Magazine" has been received. The sponsors want one-act plays, running twenty minutes to an hour, dealing with any aspect of the problem of civil liberties in America. The first prize is $75 and publication of the play in the "One-Act Play Magazine." Manuscripts must be in by May 1.

There are also some interesting contests in poetry, connected with publication of anthologies. Campus poets may get the information on these from Mr. Towle.
