DURHAM, N.H. – Three University of New Hampshire graduate students will read from their work Thursday, March 31, 2005, from 5:30-6:30 p.m. in the faculty lounge in Hamilton Smith at UNH. The reading is free and open to the public.

Elizabeth Adams is a graduate of the university's poetry program, and Joel Rice and Nate Graziano are enrolled in the fiction-writing program. After the reading, Graziano will sign copies of his book of fiction, Frostbite, as well as his two books of poetry, Not So Profound and Labor Day.

Jason Tandon can be reached at jnx2@unh.edu for more information.
