W. Medesy, War Vet Replaces Alexander as Dean of Men

Ex-Forestry Prof Hero Of North Africa, Sicily; Alexander to War Board

William M. Medesy, a veteran of the invasions of North Africa and Sicily and the Tunisian campaign, and former assistant professor of forestry, has been appointed acting dean of men, it was announced by President Harold W. Stoke, to replace Dean Norman Alexander, who has been granted a leave of absence to assume new duties as executive secretary of the New Hampshire War Records Committee.

Mr. Medesy was graduated from Purdue University in 1931, and in 1933, was awarded the degree of Master of Forestry at Yale University. He was appointed instructor in forestry at UNH in 1940 and was promoted to assistant professor of forestry in 1941. He entered military service in July, 1941.

Dean Alexander will continue his teaching duties at UNH and will serve as head of the department of government. He was appointed to his new position by Governor Robert O. Blood.

In appointing the dean to the secretaryship, the Governor explained that the main purpose of the committee was to assemble data pertaining to the participation of the citizens of New Hampshire in the second world war for later historical uses. Collection of a wide variety of materials will be involved, including written or printed manuscripts, newspapers, magazine articles, letters, posters, photographs, and still films.

Records to be assembled deal with such topics as: New Hampshire men and women in the armed services; civilian defense and the war program of the state and local governments; the role of labor, agriculture and industry

Student Workshop to Be Available Again

In cooperation with the Occupational Therapy curriculum, the Student Workshop will again be available to all students this year. University courses in woodworking, woodcarving, stagecraft, and graphic arts have made it practical to operate the hobby shop, though on a somewhat restricted basis.

The shop, located in Hewitt Hall, will be open two afternoons a week to any student in any department of the university and will be under the supervision of Mr. Wesley F. Brett, instructor in the Arts department.

This is not an art project, and it is not necessary to be a Liberal Arts student in order to take advantage of it, as the shop welcomes everyone on campus. There are no special requirements or laboratory fees, and materials are sold at cost.

Printing, woodworking, carving, and poster making including the silk screen process and air brush, are a few of the facilities available. Last year the Hillel Club, the Mortar Board, and the Yacht Club made use of these facilities to make posters, plaques, and decorations for dances. Students have also used the equipment to repair their ski equipment, build small pieces of furniture, and make models. This year their printing press will again make Christmas cards and gift stationery.

Carl Friedrich Will Lecture on Oct. 18

Dr. Carl J. Friedrich, noted authority on European affairs and director of Overseas Administration at Harvard University will speak in Murkland Auditorium on Wednesday, October 18 at 8:00 p.m., on "The Future of Europe."

Among his many affiliations are the following: American Political Science Association, American History Association, and the War Production Board. War-The Causes, Effects and Control of International Violence is his latest in an imposing list of books. Dr. Friedrich has also been a frequent contributor to the Atlantic Monthly, Harper's and many other national magazines.

There will be no admission charge for this lecture.

Mary O'Neil Elected President of Newman

Mary E. O'Neil, '46, of Dedham, Mass., and a member of Alpha Chi Omega, was elected president of the Newman Club at the first meeting of the season held last night at New Hampshire Hall. More than one hundred students and ASTR trainees established a new attendance record.

The Rev. Edward L. Murphy, S. J. Ph.D., professor of aesthetic theology and sacred eloquence at Weston College, Weston, Mass., was the guest speaker. Advocating the adoption of the original ten commandments as world law, the Rev. Dr. Murphy proposed a peace based on divine rather than human ideas, and religious representation at the peace table. He decried the tinsel and frivolity of modern life, and urged that man return to God and religion.

The following officers were elected for the college year: Mary E. O'Neil, president; Ruth M. Carens, vice-president; Richard Turcotte, treasurer; Julie Klimas, secretary and publicity director; Norma O'Dowd, Louise Larrow, and Pauline Fournier, executive board.

Miss O'Neil was introduced to the club by the Rev. J. Desmond O'Connor, chaplain of the student religious group. Father O'Connor acknowledged the services of Ruth Carens, who acted as president pro-tem during the summer session.

Present at the meeting were: Professor and Mrs. John S. Walsh, Professor Edmond W. Bowler, Mr. Carl Lundholm, Mrs. Thomas Phillips and Colonel Joseph F. Daly.

A buffet lunch and informal get-acquainted party followed.

Mortar Board Helps Campus Newcomers

Mortar Board, senior honorary women's society, is one of the first organizations on campus to function actively this fall. Members returned on October 3 to aid in playing "big sister" to freshman and transfer girls.

"Get-acquainted" parties were held on Thursday evening in every dorm under the direction of Mortar Board girls. Refreshments were served and games completed the evening. At New Hampshire Hall on Saturday evening, members assisted in the pinning of name tags and serving refreshments.

The annual Freshman Tea, held Sunday afternoon at Congreve North, was also under the direction of Mortar Board. Assisting Mrs. Harold Stoke, Mrs. Norman Alexander and Miss Ruth Woodruff in the pouring of tea were Joye Churchill and Esther Drew.

Members of the organization who returned to campus early included: Pres. Marion Sheahan; V. Pres. Esther Drew; Sec. Dorothy Gunther; Treas. Betty Durfee; Editor Historian Dorice Elkins. Marion Sheahan and Dorothy Gunther expect to be off campus practice teaching this semester while Betty Durfee plans to teach in the physical education department of Bates College.

Mike and Dial to Hold Freshman Auditions

Mike and Dial, the campus radio organization, is making plans to hold auditions next week in the student-workshop in Thompson Hall, at which time any freshmen who harbor any talent in the various fields of radio work are welcome to audition. Radio actors and actresses, announcers, script writers, publicity agents, and technicians are needed to help in Mike and Dial's plans for a busy year in radio productions. Upperclassmen, as well as freshmen, are cordially invited to come to these auditions, whose exact time and place will be announced.

SCM Plans Program For Coming Season

In a series of special meetings over the week-end the SCM Cabinet began planning its program for the coming year. Under the leadership of Ruth Wadleigh, president, and Clinton Condit, director, the group raised several issues of which a few have been settled.

Last Sunday evening a meeting for the benefit of new freshmen was held at the Community House at which a panel was presented bringing in the various commissions and activities of SCM. Other meetings for the purpose of acquainting newcomers with the association are planned for the near future. Another activity to take place soon is the membership drive under the direction of Jean Ashton and Jane Whitney.

Stresses Importance of Education in Preparing For Post-war Years

At the annual Fall Convocation held this afternoon at the field house, Joye Churchill, president of Women's Student Government, introduced the new president of the university, Dr. Harold W. Stoke, who delivered the traditional address to the students.

Preceding the address the students joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Pres. H. W. Stoke

Dr. Stoke spoke on the problem of attending college in wartime with its many outer distractions and inner tensions, arising from the abnormal program and conditions which war necessitates. As wartime students, Dr. Stoke explained that we are facing this problem every day. It can be combated in three ways: by escapism, fanaticism, or an intelligent facing of the situation, seeing what it demands and planning our programs accordingly.

There are many ways to serve in the war effort, and, though given smaller emphasis, not the least of these is by remaining in school. The cost of the war to us is yet to be fully realized. Though the United States has no bombed cities, no burned crops, or a starving populace, it bears a great burden and pays a great physical price. Cities can be rebuilt and crops can be resown, but when the land loses its natural resources—its iron from the Mesabi Range, its oil from the Texas oil fields, it can never be replaced. We face a great national retrogression and great national damage because of the toll this war is taking, and this retrogression and damage must be repaired. This is a task that will require trained and alert minds which the schools can supply. "Every day that is spent in school," said Dr. Stoke, "reduces by that much the national dislocations of war, and every day that is spent in school equips us personally and nationally for the repairing of national damage and retrogression. Men in uniform are the trustees of our safety, but those of us out of uniform are the trustees of reconstruction."

At the conclusion of the address Ruth McDaniel of the music department rendered a piano solo.

President Stoke then announced the recipients of the Cogswell Scholarship awards. Thirty scholarships of $100 each are given each year by the trustees of the Cogswell Benevolent Trust of Manchester. These scholar-

A Great Statesman

A great American statesman, known and beloved the world over for his magnificent courage and valor, is dead. His death was as sudden and unexpected as his climactic and precedent-breaking rise to a dominant position in the public life of the nation he so devotedly loved.

Fearless, dynamic, and boasting a vivid and winning personality, he gave unselfishly of his efforts—never ceasing to point the way to a better, healthier, truly democratic way of life.

His vigorous but brilliant denunciation of those groups and individuals who put power and wealth before the well-being of their country lost him the Republican nomination for the presidency this year.

Beloved by the Russians, the British and our other allies, he was enthusiastically acclaimed wherever he went. Recognizing that a policy of isolation and non-cooperation with the rest of the world must inevitably result in another chaotic conflict, he devoted his entire existence to furthering the cause of world co-operation. His devotion to world democracy, his undying opposition to Fascism at home and abroad to the point of sacrificing every hope of personal power and prestige can never be forgotten. Never in American politics has any man made such a contribution to his country.

Wendell Willkie's contribution to democracy, to a healthy world order, to the struggle of the common man, made him the greatest humanitarian of his age. Wendell Willkie died a martyr to the cause of human freedom, to the cause of the dignity of man, to the cause of American freedom.

The Strongest Box

The day is coming when our people will have the opportunity to test the strongest box in the world. It was built by the might of a free people who poured into it hopes, dreams, and ideals. Its precious contents were hitherto safe and the masses of people became complacent in their support of it, relying on its proven strength. However, it has become increasingly evident that a strong box ignored, forgotten, and unused is of little use to its owners. Ideals and theories of all hues representing all shades of American public opinion may be entrusted to dubious trustees who will do little or nothing to advance them.

This crucial year necessitates a careful examining of individual beliefs and principles. Every political, social, and economic doctrine propounded from the platform and written in the press must be given more than a mere cursory examination.

In this respect it would seem to be sensible advice for the individual to rely on the policy of those who have consistently followed the clear, progressive path to true democracy. This crucial period, of necessity, precludes the entrance of untrained adventure into American public life.

The American people must safeguard their future by exercising their inherent right to use the strongest box in the world—the American ballot box.

Hillel Welcomes New Freshmen and ASTR UNH Offers Two New Courses to Teachers

The first meeting of the Hillel Club for the 1944-45 season was held on Sunday evening, October 8, in the Pine Room at Ballard Hall. The freshmen, ASTR's, and upperclassmen were welcomed by Norma Hirsch, president, and the functions of the Club, nationally and on campus, were explained.

The purpose of this organization is to fill the needs of the individual students on campus; culturally, religiously, and socially. In accordance with these ideals, a varied program has been planned, including guest speakers, discussion groups, debates, study groups, religious services, parties, musicals, and an annual formal dance.

A most important phase of their activities is their work on the University Religious Council through which the three religious groups sponsor weekly Friday night recs in N. H. Hall, radio broadcasts, and Religious Emphasis Week, and which serves to unite the three groups more closely in spirit.

The library of the Hillel Club has been growing steadily in the past year, and this coming season a catalogue of their books will be listed in The Hamilton Smith Library as well as in the Club Office in Room 207, N. H. Hall.

A newspaper of the Club's activities will also be edited for the first time.

Outing Club Holds Picnic For Freshmen

Winter Carnival Weekend is a more distant feature. Skiing events and plans for the biggest dance of the year are already being considered.

The first course "Character Education in the Schools" to be given the first semester, consists of direct and indirect methods of character development through the medium of school subjects.

"Junior High School Education" will be the course offered in the second semester which traces Junior High School education and contrasts it with earlier forms of education. Emphasis is placed on various courses taught in large and small communities with the view of adjusting these units to present day problems.

Both courses will be taught Saturday morning by Professor Harlan N. Bisbee beginning October 14, 1944 and February 17, 1945. Additional information may be obtained from Professor A. Monroe Stowe, Chairman, Division of Teacher Education, Durham, N. H.

Coach Snow Busy With Wildcat Eleven

Able Mentor Sure However Of Successful Season

Faced with perhaps the toughest situation of his long and successful football career, but of inexperience and dearth of material, Coach Herbert Snow, the new Wildcat football mentor has set himself to the task of developing a strong wartime eleven.

It is no small matter to mold a successful team together when both experienced players and plenty of time to practice are available, but Coach Snow has neither, practice being limited to approximately an hour a day due to tough schedules, eating problems, and wartime restrictions. Therefore the difficulty that confronts him can be readily seen. Coach Snow, however, is hardly the type of person to be discouraged by this culmination of odds against him and with the willingness the boys have shown thus far he is sure that we will have a team to be proud of.

The University of New Hampshire has been fortunate to secure the services of this able mentor who has had many years of playing and coaching experience. Coach Snow's football career started when he was a freshman at New Britain High School, New Britain, Conn., making the varsity every year, alternating as an end and halfback.

During his freshman year at Springfield College he played quarterback and fullback, being an important cog in a successful frosh team. The three succeeding years found him as the brains of the varsity, that is, quarterback.

After his graduation Coach Snow played several seasons for the New Britain Nutmegs, a strong semi-pro outfit in the old New England League.

His team directing talents soon became recognized and he accepted the berth of head coach at Lynbrook High School, remaining there a year before assuming the reins at Adelphi Academy, both schools being in Long Island. During his stay at Adelphi, he developed a great many prominent players, his outstanding player being "Chick" Meehan erstwhile New York University flash.

For the past 14 years he has been Athletic Director at Wellesley High School, Wellesley, Massachusetts, and, in addition, has conducted a boys' camp for several seasons.

Coach Snow is fortunate this year in that there are, on the football squad, men who will compensate in part for the dearth of veteran players upon whom college teams depend so highly.

An outstanding football player, who will bear watching, is Claude "Twit" Henry. There is not only ability in this boy's playing, but in past years in other athletic activities in which he has taken part, "Twit" has proved his worth. "Twit" won't allow any more superlatives for his athletic ability, but when the gridiron is packed, watch this man!

Another welcome is extended to Roger Tyler. "Rog" has had secondary school experience, and was outstanding in the freshman football squad at Harvard. So here is one more New Hampshire man to watch during this year's pigskin parade.

Jack Stewart is not new to this campus or UNH football fame, and we are certainly glad to have him on the team. Jack is another man with much experience in athletics. His talent displayed in practice at end has shown that New Hampshire has one more man to bring the rating of the team so much higher.

The squad will miss the points Joe Bennett would be sure to score. During the summer, his baseball was watched enthusiastically by all. We don't know yet when Joe will be back, but when he does return, he is assured of a hearty welcome.

This year's informal football team is fortunate in one more aspect. The 1942 varsity manager once again takes over—Warren Robbins, of Worcester, Mass. He has already organized a managerial staff which is substituting for the normal staff of twelve members. On this staff are Glen Vickery, Murray Lloyd Aisenberg, Ken Russell and George Poudrier. There is still more room for managers, so all you football enthusiasts who have not the time to play, drop up at the Field House. They can use you.

Folio Welcomes All Literary Enthusiasts

Next Monday night, October 16, at eight o'clock, will mark the opening of another Folio season in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Carroll S. Towle. For twelve years Folio has been in existence, and is regarded by all who have ever attended it as one of the best-loved traditions on the campus. It is not connected with any particular college or department and is open to all, residents of Durham as well as students, who are interested in and enjoy discussing the best of our contemporary literature.

The first meeting promises to start the year off right when everyone gathers around the fireplace to hear about the now-famous writer's conference held annually here at the University, and to discuss this summer's reading. Plans will be made for starting the Folio exchange library to which all members can contribute those "books you really ought to read."

Ed and Co-Ed Again Keeping Company

The goldenrod has gone, the Fall leaves are now brilliant and Ed and Co-Ed have arrived in Durham. In these busy days when many decisions must be made, schedules worked out, and a series of adjustments taken care of, one of the problems uppermost is the matter of keeping company. This means different things to different people. One can readily guess what it means to Ed and Co-Ed, but to a business house like THE COLLEGE SHOP it means something else. We hope that you will be as careful in your selection as we have been in ours and that as time goes on you will be as proud of it as we are. We have spent months in preparation for your arrival, and after you have had an opportunity to browse or to buy at the new COLLEGE SHOP we feel that you will agree with us. The company we keep is that of the finest manufacturers in the world today. Some of them include Arrow Shirts, Stetson Hats, Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits, Banner Sportswear for girls as recommended by "Mademoiselle," etc. The McGregor line of plaid shirts is especially attractive and our girl's gray flannel slacks in all wool are simply out of this world. Nationally recognized merchandise at nationally advertised prices we feel are solid. Our shop is known by the company it keeps and you will be too, so take Brad's advice and choose wisely.—Adv.

DROP AND ADD CARDS

When after registration day a student changes sections in a subject but makes no other change in his registration, it is not necessary to file a drop and add card. As long as the registrar's office is accurately informed as to the courses and credits for which a student is registered, it is not essential to have accurate information on his sections. Changes of sections must, of course, have approval of the department.

Students who reduce their number of credits by dropping a course which has been withdrawn or for which they should not have been allowed to register, will receive full instead of partial rebate, provided the drop card is filed during the first two weeks of the semester.

Home and Home Schedule Includes Middlebury and University of Maine

The football outlook was brightened considerably last week with a really enthusiastic squad of 65 boys reporting to their new coach, Herbert Snow. This is almost double the number of boys who came out at the end of last semester and Coach Snow is really encouraged by the new additions.

Practice started during freshman week and numerous scrimmages have been held in order to weed out the inexperienced players. At present no definite first string assignments have been made, but Coach Snow is using as his A team the following boys: Ends—Murphy and Stewart; guards—Baum and Morang; center—Tyler; tackles—Beauregard and Holleman; quarterback—Pizzano; fullback—Szaluka; halfbacks—Swekla and Henry.

Coach Snow made it clear, however, that this is a purely tentative lineup and that a battle is going on for every position.

Schedule Arranged

Athletic director Carl Lundholm has finally succeeded in arranging a four game home and home schedule with two teams, Maine and Middlebury. The first game will take place with Maine at Orono on October 21 and they will play a return engagement here on Armistice Day. The Wildcats' second game will find them playing host to Middlebury at Lewis Field on October 28 and on November 18 the team will embark for Middlebury where they will wind up their first and, we hope, their only wartime schedule.

Roster Complete

The following boys, some experienced in high and prep school football and others with a scant football background, are out for the team: Theofilos Aliopoulos, Robert Beauregard, Oliver Fifield, Kenneth Friborg, Alan Hartman, Claude Henry, William Holleman, Calvin Jones, Steven Morang, Edward Noyes, William Pizzano, David Randall, Richard Ravgiala, Alvin Robb, Ken Sanborn, Jack Stuart, Joseph Swekla, Charles Tayer, Roger Tyler, Red Ryder, Mart Baum, Ben Murphy, Vic Szaluka, Al Miles, Dick Annes, Eliot Easterbrook, John Richardson, Richard Gangi, Al Rodgers, Edwin Messer, Charles Kearney, Eugene Morrison, H. Chander, E. Abbott, Bill Black, Ed Gubulicki, Fred White, Leo Lajoie, Bud Welch, Edward Tarbell, Van Frangelou, Henry Spear, Harry Lergus, David Brown, Joseph Dearborn, Dan Rodgers, John Hawk.

By Roger Bernard De Hayes

Notwithstanding the announced determination of the Administration to avoid the tragic errors committed in the planning of the last peace, it is becoming increasingly evident that those in charge of the present intricate and mystifying policies of our State Department are laboring under the delusion that the American people will support any plan relating to the settlement of post-war difficulties without being aware of the exact contents and purposes of such plans.

Secrecy Deplorable

The hush-hush surrounding the allied conferences — especially that which has shrouded those at Bretton Woods and Dunbarton Oaks in Stygian secrecy—is a definite impediment to the acceptance by the American people of the vitally important peace program.

Great Event

As Sumner Welles has so ably demonstrated in his masterful study of American foreign diplomacy during the past quarter of a century, it is absolutely essential that the people be kept completely informed concerning the issues and objectives involved in planning for the very vital peace period.

Dangerous Delusion

We cannot be expected to support a peace that was conceived in a womb of dubious concealment. The attitude that the public is not sufficiently gifted with intelligence to pass a verdict on such a peace will prove to be a fatal fallacy.

Tragic Result

It is a fallacy that will aid the forces of isolation to reject international post-war co-operation—with the result that we will have a Phyrriic victory and a resumption of hostilities on a more monstrous scale within the next twenty years.

The liberation of France by Allied troops, aided by surprisingly potent and well-organized French resistance forces, is undoubtedly one of the most momentous events of our age. Time and time again, throughout innumerable centuries, the world has seen France ravished to such an extent that its recovery seemed to be totally impossible.

Traditional Valor

But, the indomitable spirit of the French people, struggling against Herculean odds, persevered to achieve the rebirth of their nation. With the exception of our own country, France has always been a vivid example of the determination of a people to fight for, and maintain, liberty and freedom despite seemingly overwhelming obstacles.

Realistic Policy

In her treatment of Germany after the treaty of Versailles, and up to the spineless Daladier regime, France, alone of all the Allied powers, pursued a realistic policy towards Germany. She alone was determined to forestall any German move towards further aggression and world conquest. German mouthpieces who pandered their sickening and malodorous self-

Aggies Continue War Training Program

The Applied Farming Department of the College of Agriculture is continuing the War Training Program in vocational agriculture for high school juniors and seniors who are unable to receive this training in their own schools. There are forty-two boys now enrolled in this program.

The "junior aggie course" was instituted February 15, 1943 and one full year and one semester has been completed. These boys put their new-found knowledge to practical use this summer on their own farms or on large commercial farms, through the placement bureau of the department.

The regular Applied Farming course of college caliber has fifteen registrants, four of whom are veterans taking advantage of the GI bill of rights.

pity to the gullible and war-weary people of the victorious nations found little encouragement in France.

France Included

Therefore, it is most re-assuring to learn that the present Allies plan to include France in their future peace-making deliberations. France, by the shedding of gallant blood, has more than earned that right; and, without a doubt, the vision of her leaders will prove to be of tremendous assistance in formulating a policy for the treatment of a defeated Germany.

Baseless Fear

Those haunted by the convenient spectre of Bolshevism fear to allow France a voice in international dealings, arguing that it is, or will be, under the thumb of that horrible ogre, Marshal Stalin. But, assuming that Russia plans to dominate France—an assumption made solely to facilitate the presentation of the issues—the question remains as to whether France would allow herself to be under such domination.

Economic Revision

It is logical to expect that the French economy during the post-war era will be decidedly collectivist. Capitalism has proven to be a tragic luxury for France—a luxury that brought neither prosperity nor security. And, the people, with the memory of the capitalistic cataclysms that wreaked havoc on the French economy and proved such a faithful, diligent and powerful supporter of Fascism, will insist that their government—be it de Gaullist, rightist, or liberal—provide adequate safeguards against any repetition of such catastrophes. France is especially suited for democratic collectivism, and its success there should encourage other nations to follow suit.

No Communism

But, that does not imply that France will be a Communistic nation. Its huge Catholic population can never become reconciled to Communism, even with the abandonment of the original practices of the Soviet Revolution—practices which were necessary for the success of the new Russian social, political and economic order. Further, the French would just as strongly combat Russian interference as they did Nazi domination. It is to be noted that the valiant General de Gaulle, who is the symbol of French liberty, freedom and independence, is a Catholic, and that he has been in many serious difficulties with the Communists supporting the temporary coalition that constitutes the provisional government of the French republic.

Traditional College Newspaper Again Available for Students

By Joyce Douillette

After an absence of one year, due to the war-time paper shortage, the "New Hampshire" is again back in circulation and will be distributed to the entire student body every Thursday.

A newspaper for everyone and of everyone, the New Hampshire consists of a staff with representatives from each class, from the senior editor to the freshman heeler, who is just starting out on the bottom rung of the journalism ladder.

Items for the "New Hampshire" are compiled at the paper's headquarters, Room 306, Ballard Hall. A freshman striving to hold the position of editor during his senior gains valuable experience in the performance of various duties such as proof reading, the composing of short news articles, learning the different types of headings used in the paper, as well as being able to ascertain the length of a news article which will appear in column form in a later edition.

After these various assignments have been mastered, the freshman steps up to assist older reporters in covering stories, his progress determining the day on which he will first cover a story on his own.

Upon his entrance into the sophomore year, he, with few exceptions, is given a definite place on the staff—namely filling the capacity of news editor. In the position as news editor, he is allowed to follow a story through, first taking it from reporters, proof reading same, and assigning a certain type and length of heading to be written for the story. When the story once again returns to his desk, it will be his job to see that it is properly gauged for length and then placed on file for the make-up man.

In his junior year, the one-time freshman heeler is advanced to the title of managing editor, whose job it is to arrange the various stories on the pages, in order of importance.

Responsibility in having the "New Hampshire" ready for distribution at a scheduled time rests upon the shoulders of the associate editor, a senior. The editor-in-chief, also a senior, supervises the paper during its whole procedure, from stories in the raw until the finished product is reached, with respect to editorial policy and content.

Freshmen interested in newspaper work are invited to visit the Ballard Hall offices where they will be interviewed and receive further instructions in the assignment of duties.
