Batcheller Announces Tentative Cast for Forthcoming Play

Mask and Dagger Presents Gammer Gurton's Needle As One of Winter Plays

Assistant Professor J. Donald Batcheller has announced a tentative cast for Mask and Dagger's forthcoming production of "Gammer Gurton's Needle." It is as follows: Diccon, Minott Coombs; Hodge, Theofilos Aliapoulos; Tib, Joan Tilton; Gammer Gurton, Ann Daukas; Dame Chat, Barbara Rogers; Doctor Rat, Irving Cummings; and Master Baily, Warren Meyers. The role of Cock, that of a small boy, has not been cast. Any interested student, who is not over five feet tall, is urged to contact Mr. Batcheller. Rehearsals for this famous English comedy, adapted by Colin Campbell Clements will begin in earnest immediately after vacation.

The cast for the other one-act play, "Pullman Car Hiawatha," by Thornton Wilder, has not been announced as Mr. Batcheller plans to hold another try-out on Monday, February 12, after inter-semester vacation. Male students are particularly urged to come to this try-out. The play, modernistic in character, takes the form of an interlude on a pullman train. Like many of Mr. Wilder's experimental dramas it boasts of no scenery and few properties. It affords an opportunity for a large and varied cast of small but substantial roles.

Exhibition by Skating Club at Winter Carnival

The New Hampshire Figure Skating Club will present an exhibition of figure skating Sunday afternoon, February 18 as part of the activities during Carnival Week-end.

Four skaters from the Commonwealth Skating Club of the Boston Arena will assist the club in its performance. These skaters are under the training of Miss Mary Simpson, one of the club's instructors.

Feature of the program will be pair skating and a demonstration of standard dance forms, Waltz, Ten-step, and Fox Trot, by Phyllis Rock and Glen Vickery.

Miss Rock is a member of the Commonwealth Skating Club of Boston and has taken lessons from Edi Scholdan. Mr. Vickery has skated since he was four and was a member of the Ice-Capades for a short time before he entered college. He also has been a member of the Commonwealth Skating Club of Boston.

Barbara Kreigers will do a solo number. She is a member of the Skridsko Club of Walpole, Mass., and also a pupil of Edi Scholdan. Eloise Braun and Sue Sickman will furnish the comedy.

A general skating party with music and refreshments will be held directly following the skating exhibition at the rink.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

All organization pictures for The Granite will be taken on Sunday afternoon from 1 o'clock to 6 o'clock. Watch the campus bulletin boards later on in the week for the posting of the exact time for each club. Get in touch with your organization president for any further details. Let's have everyone out for these pictures.

Miss Marjorie Dinsmoor is now in charge of the reserve book room. Mrs. Harvey, formerly of that department, is now in the catalogue section.

Prof. Partridge Talks On "Argentina and the War"

The international Relations Club held a meeting on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock in the living room of Congreve South. Professor A. B. Partridge was the speaker and spoke on "Argentina and The War." Professor Partridge outlined the present situation in Argentina and explained just what developments are likely to arise in the near future. General discussion followed the lecture, in which Professor Partridge answered questions asked by the members.

It is the aim of the International Relations Club to hold regular meetings in which diplomatic developments and political disputes can be analyzed and clarified as much as possible. A leader directs each lecture and answers questions. The past meetings have been well attended and all students are welcome to come to the future ones. The exact time and place of the next meeting will be announced soon.

Frances Smith, Soloist Presents Senior Recital

Miss Frances Smith, soprano, a senior music major, will be presented in her Senior Recital Sunday night, January 28, at 8 o'clock in New Hampshire Hall. Accompanied by Phyllis Willey, she will sing two groups of vocal solos, including songs by Handel, Grieg, Carpenter, and Cyril Scott. One song which she will sing, "Blue Squills," was composed by her brother, Theodore T. Smith.

Assisting on the program will be four other students in the Department of Music: Barbara Dunlap, pianist; Charlotte Myers, pianist; Priscilla Nevers, violinist; and Edward Wall, pianist.

Admission is free, and all are cordially invited to attend.

Pooley Chosen for UNH Outing Club Carnival Ball

Saturday, February 17, Date Set for Dance At New Hampshire Hall

Bob Pooley and his NBC and Mutual Network orchestra has been chosen and signed to play for the New Hampshire Outing Club's 30th-annual Winter Carnival Ball to be held at New Hampshire Hall on Saturday evening, February 17, from 8:30 to midnight. Pooley is returning to the campus by popular request after having played a very successful engagement here last spring for the Alumni Fund dance. His band, well known in this region, has played at many college proms in New England. He is appearing at the Hotel Bradford in Boston and for the past seven months, he has played each Saturday night at the Hampton Beach Casino. There will be more news on Pooley in a later edition of The New Hampshire.

This year's carnival will be a three-day affair and promises to be the gayest Carnival since 1942. Because intercollegiate competition is impractical, athletic events are planned for the pleasure of the participant, rather than as tests of skill.

Stunt Night

Students from each dormitory and sorority will prepare a skit to be presented at Stunt Night. The best ones will compete for a prize before the student body on the first night of the Carnival, Friday, February 16. Rivalry will be high and honors go to the most original, laugh provoking stunt. Ski movies and cartoons will be shown at a midnight show at the Franklin Theatre, also on Friday night.

Judging of the snow sculptures will take place on Saturday morning, with the ski events planned for the afternoon. In contrast to the university's famous ski meets of former years, there will be no downhill races, but jumping, dashes, cross country, and obstacle skiing will take their place. A basketball game on skis is also planned.

Queen Candidates

A highlight of the Carnival will be the Coronation of the Carnival Queen. Candidates for the honor are: Ann Parker, Fitchburg, Mass.; Elizabeth West, Woburn, Mass.; Joyce Granton, Stratham, N. H.; Diana Sherman, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Lila Sprague, Manchester, N. H.; Ruth Hodgkins, Etna, N. H.; Barbara Clapp, Nashua, N. H.; Ruth Abbott, Bethel, Vt.; Shirley Newcomer, Needham, Mass., and Jacqueline Percival, Hampton Beach, N. H. A queen and two aides will be chosen by popular vote of the student body at the voting booth under "T" Hall arch on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

On Sunday, the girls' Figure Skating Club will present a short review before the general skating party.

Miss Margaret Owen, order librarian, is attending the New Hampshire Social Welfare Conference.

Students Requested To "Name the Band"

During Summer School when thermometers hit the nineties, some of the fellows in Fairchild Hall got together for jam sessions. Every Friday night a terrific din announced to anybody within a mile that "the boys were at it again." The jam sessions were lots of fun, but the fellows decided they might as well get organized. The result was a cooperative band under the baton of Dick Mascott, the drummer.

It was suggested that a name for the band be chosen, which would become traditional, such as Dartmouth's Barbary Coast and Harvard's Gold Coast. As a result, a contest was started and students were urged to submit names.

The contest has been extended to Jan. 27, 1945, 12 o'clock noon. Send a postcard to Box 94, Durham, with your suggestion. The winner will be announced at the dance in New Hampshire Hall the evening of January 27. With so many other organizations on campus known as the Wildcats, this name will not be considered, nor will that of any player in the band. Let's all show our school spirit by cooperating with this contest. The fellows in the band will select the one they think as a group is the best, but they can't make a good choice, if we don't offer some good suggestions!

Outing Club Presents Ski Movies at Murkland

Ski movies by Guy Mitchell will be shown Friday, January 26, at 7:30 in Murkland Auditorium. The movies are of outstanding skiers of the Eastern Slopes Region; they have recently been shown throughout the eastern ski region. Bill Moody, graduate of the class of '44, will show the movies. Bill is a ski instructor at North Conway.

Everyone is invited. The admission will be 25c.

Outing Club tickets will be sold after the movie for those who haven't purchased theirs as yet.

Lt. Dick Evans, UNH Grad, Wins Silver Wings

Second Lt. Richard L. Evans, 24, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, won his silver wings and commission as an aerial navigator at the San Marcos AAF Training Command field on January 16, 1945.

Lt. Evans, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Evans, Box 65, Wentworth, N. H., graduated in the class of 1942.

Skits Highlight of Friday Night Frolics

The formal opening of the "Friday Night Frolics" under the joint administration of Men's Student Council and Women's Student Government took place in New Hampshire Hall last Friday evening, January 19 from 8 to 11. Music was furnished by the campus band.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of a series of skits during intermission. These skits were presided over by Claude "Twit" Henry, president of Student Council.

The first group to be introduced was the "West Hall Choir" which rendered a number of songs under the adept directorship of Ed "J. P." Gulubicky. The choir which was made up of West and East Hall boys consisted of the following: "Ed" Gulubicky, Gerry Singleton, Brad Chase, "Dick" Ravgalia, Jerry Cote, "Bud" Welch, "Brick" Berry, Paul Revene, and "Bud" Spenser.

The second presentation was the "Durham Ink Spots" who gave an excellent interpretation of their namesakes. They consisted of Phyllis Holden, Peg Tower, Bea Rice, and Mimi Meyer of Chi Omega, and Ellie Getter of Congreve South.

The third act and perhaps the most hilarious was a rendition of "Pistol-Packing Mama" comparable to no other (continued on page 4)

East and West Hall Canteen

Monday night, January 22, was the opening of the East and West Hall Canteen under the direction of Mrs. America Durrance for the benefit of the boys now studying for final exams.

This canteen open for the students at East and West Halls, is financed by them. The students have raised the necessary funds to buy the food themselves, and the profit, if any, will be used to remunerate those boys working in the canteen. The remainder will go into the treasury of East and West Halls.

Compulsory Military Training

At a time when our armies are fighting on foreign soil to preserve our traditional liberties, it has been suggested that we adopt as permanent feature of our peace-time life a system of compulsory military training.

Those who support this movement argue that we are paying too dear a price in casualties to go without some form of peace-time training after the war. Under this program every man when he became of a certain age would be compelled to serve for a period of a year in this proposed standing army. Discipline and health would be stressed as well as proficiency in military skill.

However, some argue that compulsory military training is a camouflage scheme to turn the nation into an armed camp where the democratic ideals for which we have always fought will be tabooed and denounced. It would result in the formation of a strong ruling military group that would dominate our very existence.

With the coming of peace, this is a time when we must all think rationally and with little emotion. We must decide what measures must be taken to insure our nation's securities.

To the Editor:

Who knows what is going on around campus? The Student University Committee doesn't, and we don't think many other students do either, that is why we had a joint meeting with The New Hampshire news staff last Monday.

This committee like most of the students on campus came to the conclusion that one reason for the lull on campus was not entirely the lack of activities but more explicitly the lack of adequate advertisement.

We offer this as a solution to the student body: a weekly list of student activities in the form of a calendar. This weekly calendar will give the student an eye-view of the campus activities available to all.

The New Hampshire staff has agreed to cooperate, now we leave it up to you student organizations to make this calendar a success. If your dorm, club, or organization is sponsoring an activity open to the students, let's get at least a notice of it to the paper so that it will be listed in the calendar. Then we'll all know what is going on around campus.

After more than five years of Nazi occupation, the liberation of Poland has been accomplished. With the glorious capture of Warsaw by the victorious Red Army, civil liberties and true democracy have been established in Poland.

The Provisional Government faces a period of difficult re-adjustment. Poland has been so despoiled by the invaders that it cannot immediately return to a pre-war existence. However, the task of converting Poland into a nation with a system of government that will free the population from the domination of the clergy and the landowners has already begun. Huge estates belonging to the decadent Polish aristocracy, the first to flee when the Germans invaded the country, have been divided and given to the impoverished peasantry, thus freeing it from the feudalism exercised by the landowners. Great quantities of medical supplies and equipment, such as penicillin and blood plasma, which the Russians themselves badly need, have been shipped to Poland by the Soviet government from the very first day of the offensive. With the medicine has come quantities of food and clothing, as well as raw materials needed to rebuild destroyed homes and to provide shelter for Poland's war victims.

After Poland has been successfully reconstructed will come the problem of re-organizing Polish territory. It is clear that Poland must cede to Russia all territory up to, approximately, the Curzon line. The Russian claim is one that Russia has always upheld. Poland's claim to the eastern provinces, Lwow, Stanislwov, and Voklynia, are merely historical, being based on the Lithuanian conquest of these sections in medieval times. At that time, in the midst of the middle ages, a Lithuanian Grand Duke conquered an area extending from the Baltic Sea at Riga on the north, to the Black Sea on the south; from the vicinity of Smolensk and Kiev on the east to the marshes of East Prussia and the Bug River on the west. This was the time when the Tartar and Mongol rule over the eastern periphery of christian civilization was crumbling. This Lithuanian conquest was followed by a merger of the ruling houses of Lithuania and Poland; and the identification of their combined territories as the nation of Poland. The newly-conquered lands were parcelled out as estates and awarded to national heroes and royal favorites. In many instances, lands were decultivated to create hunting reserves for the landed aristocracy and the nobility. The ruling caste undertook a cruel and unrelenting exploitation of the native peasantry and built up the landowning oligarchy that is today represented by the pseudo Polish government in exile in London.

The king was usually a foreigner—French or German—elected by the nobility. He was a weak, spineless character and faithfully followed the instructions of the aristocracy which was determined to frustrate any attempt of the peasants to throw off the yoke of their serfdom. Conditions became rapidly chaotic, and Poland was ripe for conquest by her more aggressive, more effectively organized neighbors. In the course of several partitions, Prussia took the provinces of Posen and West Prussia as well as the city of Danzig. Russia took the central and eastern portions, approximately two-thirds of the partitioned lands. Austria took Galicia, and maintained the Polish landed aristocracy as a pawn in the checkerboard of Austrian and Hungarian interest that was the Austro-Hungarian Empire. Thus did Poland, except for the brief Napoleonic Kingdom of Poland disappear as a nation until after the first world war.

Ski - Notes

This past weekend saw the re-inauguration of Intercollegiate skiing in New England, at Middlebury College during their carnival weekend. It brought the leading ski teams in the Northeast together for the first time since 1943. It was an eight-team match made up of Middlebury, New Hampshire, Dartmouth, West Point, Vermont, M.I.T., Williams and R.P.I. It was a three-event meet: downhill, slalom, and jumping.

Five Man Team

New Hampshire sent a five man team, composed of Richard McCrudden, Silas Dunklee, Leo Lajoie, Bruce Bulger, and Hershel Pesner. Pesner, however, was unable to compete as he suffered from a torn ligament that he incurred during one of his three trial runs.

In the downhill matches, New Hampshire placed third with 93.7 points to Vermont's 95.1, and Middlebury's 96.1. In the slalom races New Hampshire placed eighth, while in the jumping they placed fifth with 35.2 points.

Therrian Paces Swaseymen Notching 22 Markers Patton Leads Sailors

Durham, Jan. 23—Completely outplaying an undermanned Portsmouth Naval Hospital five, a fast and aggressive University of New Hampshire Quintet won their second victory of the season here tonight at the Lewis Field House, 53-32.

The ballgame started off slowly with the sailors forging into a 3-point lead. The slim margin was short-lived, however, as Mooradian sunk two foul shots followed by a two-pointer by White and two baskets by Therrian. The Wildcats waltzed into the lead aided by the eagle eye of Rip Therrian who scored 23 points. The gobs tried desperately to even the score in the closing minutes of the first stanza as Patton connected twice but the 'Cats hung on and the first period score found New Hampshire out in front 22-16.

The Swaseymen put the fray on ice in the second frame as Szalucka, White and Therrian threw in successive baskets. The sailors put up a valiant stand for the remainder of the game but were no match for the Wildcat speedsters.

The Swaseymen were paced by Therrian and White who gathered in 37 points between them and Hollingsworth who played a great game at guard. High man for Portsmouth was Patton who notched 11 markers.

WILDCATCHINGS

by Jack McGinn

Back on the victory trail and to stay, we hope. The New Hampshire hoopsters really went to work on Foxy Flemure's Huskies Saturday P.M. more than making up their loss to the crack Portsmouth Defenses five. From the start of Saturdays fray it was apparent that the Swaseymen had improved since Tuesday's battle. Coach Swasey in a move that paid dividends shifted Vic Szalucka to forward and Vic notched 13 markers. Hollingsworth was moved to the guard slot and his height, especially under the basket, proved to be a valuable asset. This move also strengthened the Wildcat's defense which was woefully weak in the Portsmouth encounter. One thing the Swaseymen will have to improve on in the future is the rough stuff. Of course the boys do not do it intentionally but regardless several shots made good from the foul line could very easily swing the tide of a battle. For instance, Northeastern made 15 points via the foul route and Portsmouth gathered in 13. Of course we've made good a large number of shots but if the 'Cats run up against a gentlemen team, if such a team prevails hereabouts, the results may be disastrous. Even if the foul shots were equalized, losing such men as Fred White, Andy Mooradian and John Hollingsworth via the foul route as we did Saturday will mean almost certain downfall against a good team.

Well 'nuf sed about Saturday's encounter and now to turn our thoughts to the future. Next Saturday will find the Swaseymen way down in Aroostook where the University of Maine will provide the opposition. Bill Kenyon's Bears have a pitiful record losing to Rhode Island, Connecticut, and Northeastern on successive nights. Of course they were on the road but we'll lay 5 to 1 odds that they would have been beaten at home by their above conquerors, so taking all facts into the deepest consideration we've come to the amazing conclusion that Maine has a weak team. Perhaps a reason for this is that the Bear's five is composed solely of seventeen-year olds with very little experience. What the New Hampshire-Maine outcome will be we won't stick our neck out with a prediction, but maybe the T-Hall bell will ring next Saturday. Time will tell.

Dis and Data

Last Saturday we had the pleasure of sitting next to Foxy Flemure, Northeasterns highly esteemed coach, during the entire game. We found out that the monicker Foxy was given to him for a very apparent reason; he's foxy. His running chatter during the fray was picturesque and also very bolstering to the Huskies and by the same token very annoying to the refs. Maybe we should write a book entitled "An Afternoon With Foxy," he certainly supplied us with plenty of material.

The Pepcats were on hand as usual accompanied by Al Cherin on the trumpet. Very good, Al.

Only three of Northeasterns starting lineup ever played high school basketball. The remainder of the team were novices. That's all!

Wildcats Clip Huskies In Rugged Battle, 68-57

By Murray Aisenberg

The public for the most part is unfamiliar with the glory of the past brought to New Hampshire by their skiing teams, and it is about time that the undergrads here at UNH learn something about some of the great teams that have established the Wildcat's unparalleled record in the skiing world.

History records 1942 and 1943 as two of the greatest years in skiing for New Hampshire. Both were undefeated seasons. That in itself is a record for any college to boast about. The Wildcats competed triumphantly in such meets as the Dartmouth, Middlebury, and Norwich Carnivals, and in the all-famous Lake Placid meet. That record showed the Wildcat skiing club at the pinnacle of their success, but prior to that, New Hampshire could shine like a beacon on any mountainside regardless of the competition that any school in North America could offer. From 1931 to 1941, the records of the athletic department show that the UNH skiers not rarely, but consistently scored in all events and scored highly.

There was always a host of skiing talent to make up these winning aggregations. From every corner of the ski-conscious Granite State and elsewhere in the country men came here that knew their stuff when it came to riding the mountain slopes. Among these personalities was one Edward Blood who was to carry the blue and white banner to national fame. In 1932 as an undergraduate, he secured a place on the Olympic team skiing as a U. S. representative at Lake Placid. His collegiate record was so outstanding that this honor was bestowed upon him without his having to compete in national tryouts. Many of you undergraduates undoubtedly recognize the name as that of a member of the coaching staff at the university. From 1937-1943 he was the coach of winter sports succeeding Paul Sweet who had been carrying on in that capacity in addition to being head coach of varsity track. "Ed" is now on a leave of absence from the university.

Dartmouth, generally but erroneously conceded to be the outstanding skiing team in the nation, although it can boast records paralleling those of New Hampshire, must definitely take second place to the Wildcats by prewar standards. Their most successful year was in 1939 when they defeated the field, including New Hampshire, in the majority of the season's meets; but from that time on, New Hampshire emerged as the better of the two and the best of them all—up to the time that intercollegiate athletics were suspended at the university. The 1940-41 season was not an undefeated one for New Hampshire, but the excellent record that we compiled was a foreshadowing of what was to come. At Lake Placid, the 20th Annual Meet was held and it was a victory for UNH. This wasn't any close win either, and to show its complete superiority over such schools as Dartmouth, Cornell, Middlebury, McGill, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and even Chile (thereby making N. H. champion of South America as well as of this continent), the Wildcats placed (continued on page 4)

Northeastern Hoopsters Fade in Final Stanza, Walsh High Man

Playing their first intercollegiate game in over a year a vastly improved Wildcat quintet crushed the Northeastern Huskies 68-57 at the Field House.

From start to finish, with one exception, the Wildcats dominated play controlling the backboards and practically scoring at will. Northeastern's one and only threat came in the latter part of the first stanza when they were trailing by 11 points. The 11-point advantage was whittled down in short order, however, as Frannie Walsh, the outstanding star of the duel, started to swish them in from every conceivable angle and in the space of a few minutes the duel was tied up 33-33. The Swaseymen came to life though and with Vic Szalucka and George Wilmarth each flipping one in, the Wildcats went out in front as the horn blew, 37-33.

Wildcats Take Lead

The game opened up with Fred White flipping one in from the foul line and the score went to 5 tallies before Northeastern's Henry countered with a two-pointer. New Hampshire hung on to their lead, constantly increasing it, until Walsh got hot and evened the count. Ahead by a small margin and without the services of Fred White who was bounced on fouls, it looked as though the game would settle into a real dogged battle but Vic Szalucka decided otherwise as he hit three times to put the Wildcats out in front for the remainder of the game. The Wildcats had complete control over Foxy Flemure's Huskies and as the game ended Hank Swasey was substituting freely.

Playing outstanding ball for New Hampshire was Rip Therrian who flipped in 22 points and Fred White who snagged 12. The Wildcats' defense, which has improved considerably since the Portsmouth game, was sparked by Andy Mooradian and John Hollingsworth. Northeastern's Frannie Walsh played a grand game of ball notching 27 points for a losing cause.

first in the slalom, cross country, jumps, and the combinations, to gain a 400% average, while its closest competitor, Dartmouth, piled up an average of only 375%.

The grand finale came in the seasons of 1941-42 and 1942-43 when not a team in the country could match the forces from UNH. In practically every event and in every meet the Wildcat teams skied victoriously. In 1942 the mighty New Hampshire team, Captained by Robert Clark, won the Lake Placid classic. Dartmouth, Williams, Norwich, and Middlebury, to name a few of the competing teams, saw the Wildcats capture every event to take the big meet by a decided advantage. Then New Hampshire went on to win top place in all the other meets of the season. The 1942-43 season was practically a replica of the preceding year. Captain Billy Keough led the New Hampshire skiers to its second consecutive undefeated season, a remarkable feat for the boys, to say the least.

With the outbreak of the war, the "stinger" was put on formal intercollegiate athletics at most colleges. And for the past two years UNH like the rest has had to resort to informal sports which are a far cry from the seasoned teams that have brought fame to so many schools. But when the guns of the present conflict are put down in the not too distant future, the colleges of the nation will again be represented by formal athletic teams. And again the skiers from New Hampshire will be carrying the banner of the Blue and White on the slopes of the Appalachians.

presentation of that song by Fairchild Hall's representatives: Don Kingsbury, Alton Kriegel, and Lennie Sawyer.

Follies Bergere

The fourth skit was another triumph for the Student Council and Student Government by their importation of that sensational dance team Guion Hallemohn and Alicia Cherian direct from The Follies Bergere in Newmarket.

Perhaps the most enjoyable and original skit of the evening was the last one which consisted of a "strip race." To be more explicit it was a race to see which girl of three couples could remove the jacket, shirt, tie and shoes of her partner. The three couples were Jack Stewart, Barbara Mackay, Sandy Courtney, Adele Gamons, Joe Bennett, and Mal Eaton. It was a close race but Mal Eaton proved to be the most capable and walked away with the grand prize, a cigarette. However, honorable mention go to Miss Mackay who but for her over-enthusiasm would have been the leading contender.

All in all it was a very successful evening, highlighted by both the Campus Band and the numerous skits.
