Rev. W. J. Murphy, Represents Catholics On Wednesday Night

Religious Knowledge is Needed for Complete Education and Personality

The Right Reverend William J. Murphy, President of Boston College and Catholic representative on campus for Religious Emphasis Week, spoke at Murkland Auditorium Wednesday evening on "The Relationship Between Religion and Education."

Father Murphy who was introduced by President Harold W. Stoke, stressed the growing need for spiritual instruction in schools. Father Murphy spoke of a recent article in the "Atlantic Monthly" which quoted a Marine Captain who declared that his men were not thinking of the spiritual values in their plans for the future but rather of the materialistic phases of life. The article went on to say that this viewpoint expressed by our own men in the service is a product of the American system of education.

Father Murphy from his own experience said that out of all branches of knowledge, religion is the most inspiring and yet our public schools leave this completely out of their curriculum. When education leaves out religious knowledge, you not only have an uncompleted personality, since education is merely a growth of personality, but you have a distortion of personality. Father Murphy went on to emphasize the great need of re-introducing liberal arts education not only in colleges but in high schools. How can we study civilization without knowing religion since most of our fine arts have been inspired by religion? The last point made by Father Murphy in his attempt to show us the need for more and more religious education was the basic need for an ideal to bind us together and make us a unified world. Religious philosophy is the logical center to get unity.

The meeting, second in a series of three during Religious Emphasis Week, drew a large number of students, faculty and townspeople. Claire Flynn, soprano, opened the meeting with Schubert's "Ave Maria" accompanied by Betty Lee Holmgren.

Lt. Bean In Combat Mission Over Austria

Second Lieutenant Robert W. Bean, former UNH student, entered upon his career as a combat pilot on January 8 when he flew his first combat mission over enemy territory in a high altitude heavy bomber escort attacking the railroad yards at Linz, Austria.

Assigned to a veteran fighter group in November 1944, Lt. Bean was given thorough advanced training in combat tactics and operational procedures of his group before he was scheduled for combat flying. In addition to 20 hours of flying in a P-51 Mustang, his final training included study courses in combat intelligence procedures, enemy aircraft recognition, and orientation on enemy combat tactics.

Entering the Army Air Forces in November 1942, he was awarded his pilot wings on April 15, 1944, after completing the advanced training, courses at Eagle Pass Army Air Base, Texas. He left the states for foreign service in October 1944.

Lt. Bean is a graduate of the Berlin Senior High School, and was a student here at the university before entering the service. He is the son of Mrs. Esther H. Bean of Errol, N. H.

N. E. Religious Leaders Speak at Main Assemblies Head Student Discussion

"Religion and Education" is the theme for Religious Emphasis Week, sponsored by the Religious Council here at the University. The formal program opened on Campus Tuesday, at 4 p.m., with a reception for the discussions leaders in the alumni room.

The Council, consisting of the advisors and student representatives of the Hillel Club, the Newman Club, and the Student Christian Movement has sponsored a series of assemblies under the leadership of Rabbi A. I. Jacobson of the Temple Emanuel, Haverhill, Mass. who spoke on Tuesday; the Very Reverend William J. Murphy, S.J., president of Boston College who spoke on Wednesday; and Dr. William Park, president of the Northfield Schools who will speak tonight. President Harold W. Stoke has served as chairman at each of these assemblies, and Prof. Robert W. Manton of the music department directed the musical selections.

Student discussions have been held in all the dormitories after the assemblies under the leadership of prominent New England leaders. These smaller groups have given all students a chance to express opinions and to exchange individual ideas. Tonight a faculty discussion will be held on the theme "Religion and Education" under the leadership of Prof. Donald C. Babcock of the philosophy department.

On Friday evening each of the religious organizations will meet separately for individual discussion. They will sum up the various phases of religion as presented throughout the week and relate them to the individual problems of religion as it appears to the college student.

Rabbi A. I. Jacobson Opens University Religious Assemblies

The Duty of Education Is To Bring Out What Is Latent in a Person

Religious Emphasis Week was opened by Rabbi A. I. Jacobson of Haverhill, Mass. who spoke on Tuesday night at Murkland Auditorium on the general theme, "Education and Religion."

He emphasized the points that the schools should bring out religion, and that college students who were to be the leaders of tomorrow should be offered courses in the History and Development of Religion in order to get a better concept of the problems of Religion in every day life.

On the problem of teaching the child religion, he said that religious training begun in the home, continued in schools, and practiced in life would create a better world for us all.

Religion, as we know it today, was started by the Jewish faith under the monotheistic theory and advanced by Catholicism under the Reformation period. During these periods the teaching of religion was done by the church without any outside influences. With the advent of public schools and colleges however, people became sceptical of what their religious leaders taught them and drew away from the influences of the church. Public schools emphasized only the secular side of life and, Rabbi Jacobson's theory was that it was the duty of the schools to have a more rounded form of education. "The duty of education," Rabbi Jacobson said, "is to bring out what is latent in the person."

Religious discussions followed in the following dormitories, Fairchild Hall, Congreve South, Smith, and Scott Halls. Each discussion was led by a prominent local Rabbi who answered questions of the students besides those questions prepared by the Student Christian Movement.

New Play Emphasizes Sound Over Scenery

Pullman Car Hiawatha with its lack of scenery will depend greatly on sound effects recorded by the cast itself for the actual production of this play. Sound effects will be used also as transitional devices, as in radio.

Last Friday the studio in T-Hall was the scene of much hilarity as the cast recorded many of their own sound effects. The different sounds made were that of a telegraph key clicking, crowd noises, a humming effect to suggest people thinking and sleeping, a landing field with a plane taking off, and a clock striking the hour. The sound of a Salvation Army band is needed for one sequence, but as yet Prof. Donald Batcheller has not found any brass players. Donald Clough and Prof. Batcheller experimented with an echo sound effect which they hope to record next Friday along with others. The cast also listened to several standard records of sound effects. Those records made by the students themselves were recorded by Prof. Cortez.

This week Prof. Batcheller is going to put the sound effects and lighting together with the plays. Meanwhile the colorful backdrop of Gummer Gurton's Needle is coming right along. In this project Mr. Brett's right-hand men are Ann Arnold, Louis Brown, and Jerry Gordon.

Student Council Plans Faculty Stunt Night

A faculty stunt night, sponsored by Student Council, will be held on Saturday evening, March 24, from 8:00 to 12:00 p.m. in New Hampshire Hall. This entertainment is taking the place of Frolics and the proceeds will go toward the next formal, planned for April 21.

Pseudo-education

Here at school we more or less dutifully attend classes and listen to our professors. We read the assignments they give us and remember enough to pass the exams and get a degree. We are taught names and dates, and plots of books, formulas and theorems. We are told what ideals we should follow, what manners and mores to practice. And with the glibness of long practice we repeat these established facts until sent into the world to make a living. We then are regarded as educated.

But something is wrong with all this—some vital element is lacking. This is pseudo-education, not the self-knowledge and world-knowledge that true education brings. But where does one find this true education? The answer is in ourselves. And here we run into a stickler. This means we've a little work to do. This means we've got to start thinking for ourselves. This means we've got to stop being apathetic about our courses and put something into them as well as taking something from them. The professors can take us just so far and from there on—if we want to go farther—we must travel on our own power. Only by sincere thought, examination and reexamination of all that is given us for truth can a well-rounded and growing personality be established. We'll be on the way to education when we begin to know ourselves as well as our subjects.

Religion in Wartime

Religion has been one of the prime factors in the advance of man from the primitive stage to our so called present day civilization. It has always been the habit of mankind to turn to his creator in periods of conflict and emotional instability. The present war has made it self-evident to us all that without faith many tasks which had seemed insurmountable could never have been accomplished. In the darkest days of subjugated Europe when all else was gone, only faith in God and righteousness, kept alive in the hearts of the conquered people.

If mankind is ever going to attain that stage in life in which society becomes sedentary, and so regulates its life that the world will be made safer and happier, then religion must become more than a go-to-church-on-Sunday affair. Religion must be something which we feel in our hearts, it must become vivid and real in our everyday living. We have fallen into the habit of measuring happiness only in things of materialistic value, science and the affairs of the world tend to monopolize our full attention. The story of the history of man is one of intolerance, bigotry, and bloodshed. Only when we learn to live with one another can we become truly civilized—only then can we establish peace for future generations, then and only then can we guarantee that our civilization will continue and flourish. Faith in God means love and faith in man; faith in God means peace on earth to man.

To the Editor:

So much discussion has arisen as the results of Miss Agnes Benedict's letter which you printed that I feel impelled to comment upon it.

The day before the paper was published, Miss Benedict telephoned me saying that she had partly misconstrued my article of the preceding week, and asked me if it would be possible to either delete the paragraph in question or omit her letter altogether. I contacted the editor, Miss Marion Gorman but the paper had gone to press and it was impossible to omit the letter.

The paragraph that Miss Benedict wanted to omit is as follows: "As to Poland being a 'threat to world peace,' will you kindly explain when the Poles ever started a war in Europe."

I never, of course, said that Poland was a "threat to world peace" and it is very gracious of Miss Benedict to admit that I did not. I can, however, cite at least one instance when Poland did begin a war. Poland attacked Russia and the newly-formed Ukrainian Republic as part of its territorial aggrandizement program, and in an opportunistic attempt to restore its so-called "historic frontiers." The Russians, under Marshal Tukhachevsky, stormed to the gates of Warsaw and the Poles were forced to call upon their new allies, the French. General Weygand was sent to the rescue and his ability was sufficient to reverse the tide of battle. Polish troops reached the Dnieper at Kiev, and Spring isn't here yet and by the same token neither is baseball. However, the first meeting of candidates for the still questionable baseball team was held last Friday night at Fairchild Hall with Coach Hank Swasey holding forth. The turnout wasn't to heartening but no doubt more boys plan to play ball if a team is to be sponsored so the attendance can not be taken too seriously. Coach Swasey laid the cards on the table and told the boys the difficulties confronting the formation of a team. Foremost among these is the manpower situation and perhaps second most in importance is the equipment question. "Bats," Coach Swasey explained, are almost unobtainable and unless we dig some up we'll have to go through the season with the grand total of nineteen bats." This of course is next to impossible as bats have a high mortality rate. Still another factor and without a doubt the greatest is in the hands of the Senate athletic committee and that is, will we have a team? Well, that is the $64 question but we have a hunch that the Senate committee will come through in the not too distant future.

Dis and Data

A challenge has been received from former UNH army trainees now stationed at Norwich to a basketball game to be held in the near future. The army and the nucleus of the varsity played several games last winter and as the Wildcats won them both the soldiers are out to avenge them. Just what the outcome of this challenge will be remains to be seen but if the game is permitted it would be a sweetheart, with a capital S.

Fred White and Andy Mooradian, two of the headliners on the 'Cat hoop team journeyed over to Dover the other evening as guest stars of the Dover A.C. who tangled with Connie Driscoll's Navy Yard five. Just how the boys made out is not known to yours truly but just ask them for the inside information and we are sure they will be glad to oblige.

We hate to admit it but we can't get basketball off our mind, so here goes another round of prognostications (yeh, we consulted a dictionary for that word). We, influenced by some sage advice from our elders, have decided to pick Waterville to win the New England Basketball crown. The boys from down east have won 69 straight victories over a 3-year span including 3 games in the New England's of last year and that isn't a bad record at all. And as for Manchester Central, they'll lose in the first round. Franklin High, New Hampshire Class B champions, are slated to play Braintree High, Mass. Class B titleholders Saturday as the co-feature of the final. According to Rudolf Honkola, our G-2 agent, Franklin will win. Our comment, "You are alone, Rudolf! ! !"

Apologies

We wish to extend our most sincere apologies to Red Crory. In last week's article we stated that Freddie Harlow was a shortstop. This hurt Red's feelings as he said no shortstop ever hit a 400 ft. home run off him. Freddie Harlow is a catcher and can hit 400 ft. home runs. Right, Red?

Dictator Pilsudski, head of the Polish socialist government, was able to achieve the terms included in the Treaty of Riga. Poland thus acquired the borders which are familiar to our generation.

Poland's next act of aggression was aimed at rich, industrial Upper Silesia. After a plebiscite in which the inhabitants overwhelmingly refused to become part of Poland, the Polish army marched in and annexed the whole of Upper Silesia. Some years later, Poland took Vilno from Lithuania and finally, in 1939, seized Teschen and Jablonka from Czechoslovakia.

Sincerely yours,
Roger Bernard DeHayes

CIVIL AIR PATROL NEWS

By W/O Warren Robbins, CAP A-AAF

The UNH Detached Flight CAP will participate in a review and inspection of all state units by Colonel Earl L. Johnson USAAF, National Commander, at the Manchester Armory on Saturday afternoon, March 31.

The Durham Flight, in addition to being present at the review, will also enter a drill team composed of two squads of seven to nine men (women) in a special competition for the Wing Commander's Cup presented for proficiency in basic close order drill.

Uniforms

Uniforms are being ordered for the Flight through Wing Headquarters from the army and will be received sometime before the date of the meet. Tonight's meeting is the deadline to purchase uniforms for those who wish to take part in the review at Manchester.

The Curriculum of the Flight at the present time consists of the following courses which in all probability will be continued for the remainder of the year. A Theory of Flight course just completed, to be followed by a course in Navigation, under the direction of Lt. Stolworthy; an Army Air Force Code class under the supervision of Prof. Foulkrod; First Aid under the direction of Miss Bancroft; and Military Training. The Theory of Flight and Navigation courses provide enough material to pass the regular CAA ground school requirements for a private flying certificate. These courses will be repeated and rotated in the future so that everyone will have the opportunity to receive instruction in all the subjects offered.

Arrangements are being completed to have the members participate in Orientation flights in regular army aircraft out of the Portsmouth Airport, in the near future. All those under twenty one must have the signed permission of their parents on regular forms before they will be allowed to fly in army aircraft. These forms are being printed at the present time and will be given to each member soon.

Airplanes Land in Durham

It would be of interest to the members to know that two airplanes landed with skis in Durham not long ago. They came down in one of the lots out near the farms parallel and bordering route 4 to Concord. The pilots had no difficulty in landing these planes and in getting them out safely, but the feat could not have been accomplished other than on snow and with skis. However, the Federal government has included Durham on the list of towns for which money will be appropriated for the construction of landing strips for private aircraft. Several locations have been found to be suitable for such landing operations and could be prepared for flying of a minimum of cost and work. It is possible that landing strips could be prepared by a group of interested persons even before government or other appropriations were made available for the improvement of such sights. That would be a project that the Durham Flight, following the example of CAP units in other parts of the country, could well keep in mind.
