New Philosophy Professor Fills Recently Established Position

By DAVE VORBEAU

The first privately supported professorial chair, established recently through the special University Alumni Fund, has been filled here at the University of New Hampshire.

This is a special Alumni Professorship sponsored by the University Alumni Fund and is not included in our regular annual budget. It is believed that this fund will both continue and grow in the future.

Dr. Asher Moore, Associate Professor of Philosophy at Northwestern University has been appointed Professor of Philosophy. He will assume his new post at the start of the February semester.

Result of Alumni Campaign

The appointment comes as the result of a program designed to establish professorial chairs in the areas of engineering science, the humanities and the social sciences, a goal of the annual University Alumni Fund Campaign. The nation-wide drive is conducted among alumni, parents of students and friends of the University in business, industry, agriculture, and the professions.

The chairs, created through this private support, will enable the University to bring outstanding faculty to the campus to teach in the critical areas involved, according to President Eldon L. Johnson. Recognized leaders in these fields are expected to add a new dimension to the University's whole academic program.

Distinguished Background

Professor Moore has had a total of 22 years teaching experience on the faculty of Northwestern University.

He has also taught at New York University and for two years was a Teaching Fellow at Harvard. In 1959 he was Visiting Associate Professor of Philosophy in the Harvard University Summer session.

A native of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, Professor Moore received his A.B. degree from Wesleyan University and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard. He is an authority in the field of analytical philosophy, particularly in ethics, and more recently has begun to explore the area of phenomenology and French existentialism. In the past his courses have stressed the inter-relationship of literature, art, and music with philosophy. As a sideline, both Dr. Moore and his wife are interested in Dramatics.

Ford Fellow and Writer

In 1954-55 he was a Ford Fellow studying continental philosophy in France and in 1958 was a delegate to the International Congress of Philosophy in Venice.

Professor Moore has published numerous articles in professional journals including The Journal of Philosophy, Journal of Higher Education and the Philosophical Quarterly.

Since Dr. Moore has taught all branches of philosophy, he will probably start with Humanities 1-2. It is believed that an introductory course in Philosophy will be offered to freshmen the second semester of this school year. Due to this help by the University Alumni Fund and these efforts by the Faculty Staff of the University, Dr. Jordan believes that this is a very definite step toward the eventual offering of a major in Philosophy here.

University Weight Training Program Aims to Improve Bodily Functions

Arlinsky

This semester marks the beginning of the fifth consecutive year that the weight training program has been in existence at UNH.

Says Martin Arlinsky, a graduate assistant in Psychology and director of the program, "Surely the highest life is the contemplative and speculative; but let us not forget the other half of this ideal: the physical. Although this side must not be overdone, the opposite actually seems to be the case. It seems that in America today, the trend is toward a complete neglect of exercise after high school."

Not Worthless Overture

"Here at UNH", Marty continued, "we are trying in part to remedy this situation with our weight training program; far too many people are content with half an existence, not knowing that there might be a vitality that they have never experienced, and, what is more, never will while they maintain their dogmatic attitude that exercise is a worthless overture. These people are diametrically opposed to physiological research."

"We are mainly interested in the individual who wishes to use systematic weight training to obtain the benefits of better circulation, metabolism and in general more efficient functioning of the normal body processes. The sedentary lives we as students lead are not all conducive to the maintenance of muscular tone, normal appetite, pro-

Connecticut Newspaper Studied by Journalists

Storrs, Conn., Sept. 21—The Board of Trustees of the University of Connecticut has announced that three prominent newspapermen will join one faculty member in a study of the Connecticut Daily Campus, student newspaper at the University.

The three newspapermen are Herbert Brucker, editor of the Hartford Courant; Ward Duffy, editor of the Hartford Times; and Carter White, vice president and general manager of the Meriden Record and Journal.

For Highest Traditions

The Board of Trustees announced that the intent of the study is to determine ways and means of publishing the student newspaper in the highest traditions and concepts of American journalism.

"Certain objectives would seem likely," the Board stated, "and certainly several of these are worth noting: (1) the student newspaper should provide a constructive and creative educational experience for all those involved in the production; (2) it should provide the best possible communication of campus activity; (3) it may provide a vocational experience as well as experience in leadership and responsibility."

Like At UNH

It was also reported that the study will in no way interfere with the continued publishing of the Daily Campus. The study at Connecticut is similar to the one carried out last spring by the University of New Hampshire with The New Hampshire.

Fulbright Awards Gives Opportunity For Graduate Study

Only two months remain to apply for some 800 Fulbright scholarships for graduate study or research in 30 countries, the Institute of International Education reminded prospective applicants today. Applications are being accepted until November 1.

Inter-American Cultural Convention awards for study in 17 Latin American countries have the same filing deadline.

Recipients of Fulbright awards for study in Europe, Latin America, and the Asia-Pacific area will receive tuition, maintenance and round-trip travel. IACC scholarships cover transportation, tuition, and partial maintenance costs. IIE administers both of these student programs for the U. S. Department of State.

Eligibility

General eligibility requirements for both categories of awards are: 1) U. S. citizenship at time of application; 2) a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by 1961; 3) knowledge of the language of the host country; and 4) good health. A demonstrated capacity for independent study and a good academic record are also expected. Preference is given to applicants under 35 years of age who have not previously lived or studied abroad.

Applicants will be required to submit a plan of proposed study that can be carried out profitably within the year abroad. Successful candidates are required to be affiliated with approved institutions of higher learning abroad.

Enrolled students at UNH should consult the campus Fulbright adviser, Professor Everett B. Sackett, Murkland 3, for information and applications.

Competitions for the 1961-62 academic year close November 1, 1960. Requests for application forms must be made before October 15. Completed applications must be submitted to Professor Sackett by November 1.

International Understanding

The Institute of International Education, founded in 1919, seeks to foster international understanding through exchange of students and scholars, and to further the exchange of ideas and knowledge among all nations. It administers two-way scholarship programs between the United States and 83 foreign countries, and is an information center on all aspects of international education.

per elimination and general good health."

Three Instructors

Presently, the program includes (1) the general physical fitness routine; (2) the remedial program for those with: cartilage injuries, muscular weakness, weight problems and other related areas for which light systematic exercise is prescribed; (3) improvement in another sport; (4) for those interested in Olympic Weight Lifting (which is incidentally what most people confuse with weight training), an inter-collegiate and inter-university olympic weight lifting team may be organized; (5) selected topics on nutrition and food selection are also covered.

This year's instructors include Harvey Marron, John Klein and William Dykstra.

Official Notices

All students are responsible for knowledge of notices appearing here.

Motor Vehicle Regulations. All motor vehicles operated by students within the town of Durham must be registered with the University. Fine for non-registration is $10. Cars should be registered at the Business Office, Thompson Hall.

Football Tickets. Students and staff members expecting to attend any reserve seat football game must pick up their special tickets on or before the Friday preceding the game. Otherwise the general admission price of $2.50 per person will prevail. The ticket office (Thompson) is open 1-4 p.m. Monday through Friday. All students must present their ID cards at the gate along with a reserve seat ticket.

All Public Law 550 Veterans entering the University for the first time must report to Thompson Hall, first floor corridor, at the end of each month, including September, to fill in VA monthly report forms. Failure to do this will mean that subsistence will not be granted by the VA.

Well-known Architect, White, Aids In Difficult Remodeling Operation

At a recent Board of Trustees meeting here at the University, President Johnson announced that plans have been made for the complete renovation of the old forge shop and apple storage facilities in the rear of Hewitt Hall. These buildings will be converted into a new UNH bookstore, which will be tentatively ready for occupancy in the fall of 1961.

Specifications

The plans call for a remodeling job which will blend the architecture of Hewitt Hall and that of the Spaulding Life Science building. Although plans are being drawn for the exterior, as yet, none have been made for the interior.

Architects

Ken White Associates are the consulting architects for the new bookstore. Ken White is the consulting architect for the Brigham Young University Bookstore and the recently constructed Princeton University one. According to Dayton M. Henson, the manager of the UNH Bookstore, this architect is the most prominent in the country and will make the most of the facilities at hand.

More Books

Doc Henson, as he is popularly known, further added that the new bookstore will not include additional items which would be in direct competition with the local stores. The store will have a greater number of paper backs and allied subject books. The amount of current books will also be gradually increased. There is the possibility that the store may be of the self-service type.

Doc Henson has been with the University Bookstore for 14 years now. Before coming here he was the assistant manager of the bookstore at Syracuse University.

U. Religious Groups Establish Seminar

In response to student's growing concern to discover the meaning of their lives and the purpose for which they were born, the Student Christian Association of UNH and the Canterbury Chapter of St. George's Episcopal Church will offer four seminars in religion.

These seminars are presented as opportunities for students to meet in small, informal groups, with well-qualified leaders. The seminars answer a need to engage in something more disciplined than a "bull session" but less structured than a lecture series.

The four seminars scheduled for the October and November sessions are: Christian Teachings from the Old and New Testaments, an Introduction to Christian Theology, Christian Ethics, and Religion and Psychology.

The instructors will be Paul Trudinger of Amherst, N. H., Daniel Novotny of Durham Community Church, Albert Snow, Vicar of St. George's Church, Durham, and Robert Savidge, Minister to Students, UNH. Bulletins describing the seminar offerings will be distributed to students and housing units. Information may also be obtained in room 205

Soprano Eileen Farrell will appear at the Paul Creative Arts Center on Thursday, October 6, in the first of the Blue and White series concerts.

Miss Farrell who was born in Williamantic, Conn., received her early musical education from her mother. Later, while studying in New York, she was a member of the C.B.S. Radio Chorus. She was also a soloist on a program of that same network entitled the "Songs of the Centuries." Soon afterward she had her own program "Eileen Farrell Presents."

Miss Farrell made her first extended concert tour during the 1947-48 season. Since then she has toured the U. S. and Canada on an average of 60 concerts a year.

In the autumn of 1955 she performed the title role of Cherubini's opera "Medea". The music critic of the New Yorker had this to say about the program, "I shall remember her performance as one of the most stunning vocal feats that has come to my attention in many a season."

German and American music highlighted her 1957 program which inaugurated the New Congress Hall in West Berlin.

She returned to Europe in the summer of 1959 to sing at Albert Hall in London and at the Spoletti Festival in Italy.

Miss Farrell is Mrs. Robert Regan in private life. She and her husband and two children live in a spacious home on Staten Island, overlooking New York Harbor.

Homecoming To Be Eventful Week-End

October 14-16 — save those dates for the big social fling of the fall term. Homecoming highlights will include the election of a queen, the presentation of awards to outstanding exhibits, a big Homecoming Dance on Friday night, and a smashing UNH victory over Delaware on Saturday.

The "Speculative Sixties" will set the mood for the weekend. Each housing unit can set-up lawn displays depicting possible developments of the coming decade. Awards will be given for outstanding exhibits. So here's a chance to try your hand at forecasting the future and coming out with an award at the same time. Also, each men's housing unit can nominate its favorite co-ed for Homecoming Queen. Men — Be alert.

With these highlights and many other surprises, it looks like an eventful week-end — one nobody should miss.

A new language requirement exam will be put into effect next year.

It will be based on general proficiency which includes audiolingual skills as well as reading and writing. These changes do not affect latin students.

Requirements Raised

If a student can't pass the oral exam he may audit a course. Eventually, the language requirements for entering the university will be raised. To better equip foreign language teachers, this university department conducted a government sponsored Foreign Language Institute.

For 6 weeks this summer 40 secondary and elementary teachers spoke only French or German. The purpose was to provide special training for teachers of those languages so that they could become familiar with modern methods of foreign language teaching.

A highly successful 5 credit French course was offered last year as an experiment in modern teaching technique. As a result, French I is offered as a 5 credit course this year. Its sequel French 2, is also 5 credits.

Completing elementary and intermediate French in one year will enable a student to study advanced courses in the sophomore year. French 3 is a 3 credit conversation course, and French 4 is a 2 credit composition course.

Spanish courses will most likely be offered in the new fashion next year. A course in Russian is now being offered by the department.

In keeping with the expanding facilities, Murkland 302 is the new language lab. It can now operate 6 channels at once.

A fellowship for Ph.D. degree study in chemistry has been awarded the University of New Hampshire, it was announced Sept. 20, by the Eastman Kodak Company.

The fellowship, which is for the 1961-62 academic year, is part of Kodak's aid-to-education program, which this year amounts to more than $800,000, moderately above the corresponding total a year ago.

The student to receive the fellowship will be chosen by the university, with preference given to persons in their last year of doctoral degree study. Selection will be based upon financial need and ability.

The recipient will receive $2,500, or $3,000 if married and with dependent children. Also provided are tuition and fees, funds to enable the student to attend one professional meeting in the field of chemistry, and an additional $1,000 to the university to help defray research expenses.

Hosts and Hostess To Note Suggestions At Commons

Late last year Commons decided to have two hosts and two hostesses on duty during meals for the benefit of you freshmen. Their duties are to listen to the freshmen complaints and ideas in an effort to make Commons a better place to eat and to create a more homelike and pleasant atmosphere for all. Two of them will be on duty in the hall during each meal. They will have name tags on their lapels and will circulate around so that anyone wishing to speak with them will be able to locate them easily.

In return for their services, Commons will give them their meals.

They said, "Anyone with complaints or ideas for improvement, please feel free to approach any one of us."

The group will consist of:
Julie Larkin — Randall
Donna Perkins — Lord
Rick Erickson — Hetzel
Wayne Crowell — West

Veteran's Corner

Far too many pieces of mail that flow through the Manchester Regional Office of the Veterans Administration each year cannot be properly identified, Richard F. Welch, Manager, disclosed today.

Too many veterans and their dependents merely sign their names to correspondence, and names are not enough.

Almost all of the names in the VA's Manchester master index file are duplicated. Many names are duplicated several times.

The veteran's claim number, or "C-number", and his insurance number are his alone. Inclusion of these numbers in correspondence will insure prompt and efficient service, and save the time and cost of additional correspondence.

Mask and Dagger Holds Meeting For New Crews

The first meeting of Mask and Dagger will be held Thursday, September 29, at the rehearsal theatre in the Paul Creative Arts Center. All members and interested students are invited to attend. Technical crews for The Crucible will be organized. Refreshments will be served. With the establishment of a Speech and Dramatics Department at the University, Mask and Dagger and the University Theatre will be growing. Join now and gain a foothold in dramatics or speech.

Excessive speed was the principal cause of traffic accidents in 1954.

If the veteran's "C-number" or insurance number is not known, he should include his service serial number and date of birth.

What would YOU do as an engineer at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft?

Regardless of your specialty, you would work in a favorable engineering atmosphere.

Back in 1925, when Pratt & Whitney Aircraft was designing and developing the first of its family of history-making powerplants, an attitude was born—a recognition that engineering excellence was the key to success.

That attitude, that recognition of the prime importance of technical superiority is still predominant at P&WA today.

The field, of course, is broader now, the challenge greater. No longer are the company's requirements confined to graduates with degrees in mechanical and aeronautical engineering. Pratt & Whitney Aircraft today is concerned with the development of all forms of flight propulsion systems for the aerospace medium—air breathing, rocket, nuclear and other advanced types. Some are entirely new in concept. To carry out analytical, design, experimental or materials engineering assignments, men with degrees in mechanical, aeronautical, electrical, chemical and nuclear engineering are needed, along with those holding degrees in physics, chemistry and metallurgy.

Specifically, what would you do?—your own engineering talent provides the best answer. And Pratt & Whitney Aircraft provides the atmosphere in which that talent can flourish.

Development testing of liquid hydrogen-fueled rockets is carried out in specially built test stands like this at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's Florida Research and Development Center. Every phase of an experimental engine test may be controlled by engineers from a remote blockhouse (inset), with closed-circuit television providing a means for visual observation.

At P&WA's Connecticut Aircraft Nuclear Engine Laboratory (CANEL) many technical talents are focused on the development of nuclear propulsion systems for future air and space vehicles. With this live mock-up of a reactor, nuclear scientists and engineers can determine critical mass, material reactivity coefficients, control effectiveness and other reactor parameters.

Representative of electronic aids functioning for P&WA engineers is this on-site data recording center which can provide automatically recorded and computed data simultaneously with the testing of an engine. This equipment is capable of recording 1,200 different values per second.

Studies of solar energy collection and liquid and vapor power cycles typify P&WA's research in advanced space auxiliary power systems. Analytical and Experimental Engineers work together in such programs to establish and test basic concepts.

Truth Balloons

Reprinted from the Keene Evening Sentinel for our readers' interest.

There has been a lot of hot air drifting over from Manchester this week to the effect that staff members of the Keene Evening Sentinel are guilty of all sorts of high crimes and misdemeanors because they edit their own newspaper.

That hallmark of great journalism, the Sunday News — one of the two Venom Twins — has as many confused ideas about newspapering as it does about everything else.

There's no need to waste space citing examples. All you have to do is pick up a copy and read it — if you don't care about muddying your mind before going to church on Sunday.

Last Sunday, the News got all shook up because the Sentinel declared editorial comment from what was supposed to be an objective news report from the Associated Press.

The AP dispatch reported that:

"Gov. Wesley Powell, who campaigned against 'the special interests and the machine politicians,' won the Republican gubernatorial nomination today.

"The victory over former Gov. Hugh Gregg represented a thumping personal triumph for Powell over the state's GOP 'old guard,' with which he has been feuding for years."

The AP story never did give Powell's actual margin of victory, which was 1,173. The only way a reader could have found out this vital fact was to deduct Gregg's total vote — which the AP reported in the sixth paragraph of its story — from Powell's total, reported in the fifth paragraph.

The Sentinel story was edited, as it should have been, to say:

"Gov. Wesley Powell won Republican nomination for governor by 1,173 votes in yesterday's primary elections.

"His victory over former Gov. Hugh Gregg was a personal triumph for Powell over leaders in his party, with whom he has been feuding for years."

I leave it to the reader to decide which of these two versions is a straight forward, objective news story and which isn't.

Although it's a little tiring, this latest righteous outburst from Manchester is as funny as a hair shirt, in that we have here a situation in which the Manchester newspapers, which regularly flaunt the ethics of newspapering, now insist that the rest of us join them in their abortive escapades.

One of the most enlightening revelations in the News editorial, however, was this line: "... seldom in 37 years of journalism, at home and abroad, have we seen a performance equal to that of the Keene Sentinel when it deliberately re-wrote the AP's political lead so as to cut out Joe Kamin's references to 'Old Guard,' 'machine,' 'thumping personal triumph,' etc."

My youthful view on this is that, in the first place, I'm amazed that a salty veteran of 37 years in the business still refers to it as "journalism" instead of newspapering.

Most of the old hands I know in the business define a "journalist" as an unemployed newspaperman.

I'm equally amazed that anyone who has been newspapering so long still hasn't been exposed to an objective news desk, whose function is to edit news stories so as to make them as objective and informative as possible.

The Sentinel's editors were, therefore, entirely correct in removing the adjective "thumping" from the AP story as applied to a margin of 1,100 votes out of a total of 97,109.

More amusing than all this, though, is the hypocritical suggestion that a dispatch from the Associated Press should come chiseled in stone, and must remain untouched by the men who are editing newspapers for their readers and not for the AP.

There are already too many newspapers in the country that are being edited by wire services and syndicates, instead of by their own editors.

Carl Lindstrom, former editor of the Hartford Times and for many years regarded as one of the nation's leading students of newspaper editing, always urged his desk men to rewrite all wire service stories if, in their judgment, the editing simplified, improved, or made the story more objective.

The job of a desk man on the New York Times is to collect all stories on a subject received from the several wire services and from their own reporter, and rewrite them into one polished product.

I'm convinced that trying to out-yell the Manchester "truth" peddlers is like whistling in a wind tunnel. But I'm also convinced of the validity of the old saying that "truth will out."

Unfortunately, there are some New Hampshire citizens who are exposed to nothing but the Manchester brand of newspapering. These people may be a long time in learning the truth, but the important thing is that they will eventually learn it.

Meanwhile, perhaps some civic-minded organization in New Hampshire should organize a "Balloons for Truth" project, as Drew Pearson did in Europe a few years ago, and send balloons over Manchester, loaded with copies of all the other daily newspapers in the state.

Letters To The Editor

The following letter, from Messrs. Garrity and Starzyk is reprinted for the general interest of our readers, who will remember the authors for their vehement anti-Loeb letters of last spring. While Garrity is still a student at Dartmouth, Starzyk was graduated in June and now lives in Maine. The two have been engaged in a comprehensive study of unethical journalism appearing in the newspapers of the Manchester Union-Leader Corporation, the results of which have been promised in the near future.

AN OPEN LETTER:

Governor Wesley Powell
State House
Concord, New Hampshire

Dear Governor Powell:

It should not surprise you that we feel that your recent renomination was undeserved and seemed to be bought. However, as we have said before, you have a perfect right to a fair chance to justify yourself, and we may be wrong.

But this we assert: that in the name of New Hampshire and our country, and before the final elections this year, you should publicly denounce the journalism of William Loeb and affirm that you are in no way obligated to or controlled by him. This would show that you can stand on your own feet instead of hanging by strings, and it could also disprove the opinion that you are the one who is most guilty of "machine politics" for "special interests" and are attempting to establish a dictatorship.

If you cannot be dissociated from vicious and untruthful fascists like Mr. Loeb, then you should resign your nomination and terminate your political career. The recent grave injustices done by Mr. Loeb should be very obvious to every intelligent, responsible and decent citizen of New Hampshire. What he is as a leading public figure is almost unprintable; and though he makes numerous challenges and unjustified attacks, he ducks and suppresses issues himself. You know this, and we can prove it, besides. Nobody has justified or adequately defended his policy, and we fail to see why you, as a public servant in high office, should condone it or be silent about it.

Mr. Loeb is a public enemy who does for personal whims and interests a kind of work which gives aid and comfort to those who seek to destroy our American way of life, and which has been making New Hampshire dirty, cheap and backward. If New Hampshire continues this way, it could hurt our nation at a dangerous time when it is facing pressures and threats it never faced before.

We realize that the odds are heavily against us. The primary proved it. Our action may seem to most people to be foolish and naive, but we firmly believe we are right and that we are entitled to a chance to prove it. Please try to understand that we are well-meaning citizens who believe in the motto, "Live free or die" and "There is nothing so powerful as truth."

Sincerely yours,

for: Robert A. Garrity

. . . Salt . . .

To The Editor:

Congratulations for rubbing salt on a sore spot. To date I've paid a total of $14.10 for a copy of The Granite which I have yet to receive.

Amidst exams and final week confusion, I missed obtaining last year's copy when it was formally up for distribution, but since, theoretically, a copy of The Granite is printed for each subscriber, I thought I would have little trouble obtaining my copy. I wrote to the Granite asking if they would be good enough to mail me the copy, since I couldn't seem to make connections with their office hours. I never received either The Granite or an acknowledgement of the letter.

Then this year, when apprised of the fact that they had 300 "unclaimed" copies, I launched a new assault on that office, which, incidentally, seems to be as difficult to break through as the rock whose name it bears. Since the opening day of classes—five days ago—I've made three to four trips a day to the lower recesses of the MUB and have yet to find anyone in attendance at the Granite office. I have a brother who has equalled or exceeded my own determination, and he has yet to gain entrance. As a matter of fact, after finding no one there during their so-called office hours, he inquired at the Memorial Union information desk and was informed that the situation was very likely hopeless.

Your editorial was headed, "To Whom Go The Spoils?" I was disappointed to find that you failed to answer that question. It was an interesting question.

The mathematics in your editorial indicates that last year approximately 3,170 students had the price of a year-book extracted from their hides through the Activity Tax. This also indicates that 3,170 copies of The Granite should have been printed for distribution to these same students. I wonder if the invoices covering this transaction would show this to be the case, or if they would show that considerably fewer than this number had been printed?

You can see the implications here. You can also see why, if this is the situation, that it would be impossible to mail The Granite to all those who have paid for it, or for that matter to even make it easily available for students to pick up on campus.

Whatever the reason, it is an inescapable fact that where The Granite is concerned, too many people aren't. As for myself, I've gone to more than $4.70 worth of trouble trying to secure last year's copy without success. If I manage to be lucky enough to get one at the end of this year, it will have cost me four years' worth of activity tax, or nearly $19.00.

A pretty valuable book!

To The Editor:

Good luck to you and your intrepid staff as you begin another year of publishing one of the finest college newspapers in the country. This is not insincere flattery—an objective look back over recent years of The New Hampshire brings the conviction that it is fulfilling its role admirably. More than a purveyor of "Going, Going, Gone" and the doings of fraternity row, more even than a "voice of the students," it has become a leader of opinion, both on and off campus—a voice of truth (and God knows, especially if He looks in on Manchester once in a while, that such are sadly needed in our little state).

I know you will continue to build this tradition, being not afraid to stir up controversy when controversy is necessary to uncover truth. I'm looking forward to more good battles — and battles you'll have, because the truth scares the hell out of a lot of people who'd rather have us all think their way, instead of the right way — as free men who've discovered the truth on their own, and plan their actions accordingly.

Conspiracy of Hearts, stars Lilli Palmer, Sylvia Sims and Yvonne Mitchell as three nuns caring for a number of Jewish children in Nazi controlled Italy. This would seem to indicate a parade of the usual clichés on discrimination and a lot of heart-warming, stomach-turning togetherness. But such is not the case; this film is handled with a fair amount of sense and a sufficient amount of taste so as to avoid that well-stocked pot boiler hole. 3.0

South Pacific is worth a trip for the music alone. The show has made a good transition from stage to film with minor losses and certain visual gains. The camera does several interesting tricks with color that appeals to some viewers and bothers others. Mitzi Gaynor and Rossano Brazzi star in the leading roles made famous by Mary Martin and Pinza. 3.4

Ocean's 11 is one of the funnier films from the domestic market in the last few months. Its cast of notables includes Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Peter Lawford, and a good number more. These actors comprise an off-stage clan and in this film have several "in" jokes that may leave some people quite out of it. All in all it's well worth the price. 3.0

The Story of Ruth is a rare film. It sticks fairly well to its Biblical origin and only invents plot material when historical sources are exhausted. In this film, as in Conspiracy of Hearts, the religious angles are handled well and not wrung to the last genuflecting grunt. 3.2

Professor Gets Opinions About Security Treaty

By Andrea Viano

What do the Japanese people think about the Kishi-Diet affair in May of this year? Professor Bertram Husch of the UNH Forestry Department received an answer to this question in a letter he received from Taneo Hirata, an instructor at the University of Tokyo and a correspondent of Professor Husch's. Mr. Hirata sent the opinions of various associates of his to Husch.

Since his departure from Japan last year, Professor Husch has written to Hirata. Husch spent his sabbatical leave in Japan studying forestry operations at the University of Tokyo and throughout the country. He commented that the people gave him a warm welcome in spite of their hostility towards the Security Treaty.

U. S. — Japan Treaty

All the men's views which he received expressed the idea that public opinion in Japan was opposed to the act of the Diet which forced through it the US-Japan Security Treaty on May 19. This attitude, according to one man, stemmed from the Japanese feeling that it was an undemocratic action to pass such a measure without the complete Diet present the Socialist faction had previously walked out of the Diet.

Another gentleman stressed the fact that the Treaty is not generally favored, as the people wish to remain neutral and hope to secure peace by such means. They fear that the Russians, according to their threats, might bomb the U-2 base in Japan; but on the otherhand, they fear what might result if the US should abandon Japan.

Unsure About Democracy

The Japanese people, commented another man, are still not completely acclimated to democracy although they have lived under this system for 10 years now.

This is partly because it is in opposition to the old system, the Oyabun-Kobun relationship, under which the people acquiesced without question to the orders of the controlling politicians.

After the war, the scholars and the younger generation learned and tried to practice democracy, but even now more than 50 percent of the people retain the old idea. The incident of May 19 brings into relief the friction of the two systems.

Student Demonstrations

The men who wrote to Professor Husch insist that the student demonstrations were spontaneous. They also feel, personally, that Kishi should be held responsible for Hagarty's reception on June 10, Ike's refusal, finally, to visit Japan and the death of the student in front of the gates of the Diet.

On August 1, Husch responded to the letter of his friend. He gave his conviction concerning the nature of democracy and the people's role in its successful operation.

"Further, democracy and freedom in order to survive, require the people to recognize their responsibilities as well as their rights of freedom. By responsibility I mean the adherence to the orderly processes of government. When a nation has adopted a constitution which guarantees certain rights, everyone from members of the legislature to the ordinary citizens must accept and acknowledge the procedures which go with this accepted constitution." (Continued on page 5)

Laurence F. Whittemore — Of UNH

Laurence F. Whittemore, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, died on August 10, 1960 after 16 years of service on the Board.

He served as a very vigorous supporter of the growth and development of the University of New Hampshire. During his service in Trustee positions, 20 new buildings have been erected on the campus, and in the past five years all expansion has taken place under Mr. Whittemore's direction.

Memorial Union Drive

Mr. Whittemore served as National Co-Chairman in the drive for building funds for the Memorial Union building. He also is largely responsible for the establishment of WENH-TV, now an important part of the University educational system.

Under his leadership the University's declaration of a policy of Academic Freedom was evolved and upheld. He accepted on behalf of the University of New Hampshire the Alexander Meiklejohn Award for Academic Freedom.

Interest in Students, Politics

Aside from his generosity to the University in Administrative and Financial aid, he extended help to many students in the way of personal guidance and monetary assistance.

In addition to his work at the University, Mr. Whittemore has received recognition in political circles, having served as a member of the Eisenhower Committee on Higher Education Beyond High School. He was also a leading industrialist in the New England Area, for among his many other accomplishments he served as President of the Boston and Maine; New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroads. He served as President and Chairman of Board of Directors and as President on the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

In view of the service Laurence Whittemore has done for students and the University's campus facilities, it has been said by Vice-President Knapp that, "It would be most difficult to find a man who had the interests of the University more at heart."

In 1956 Laurence F. Whittemore, as Chairman of the Board of Trustees, installed Eldon L. Johnson as the 13th President of the University.

Woman's Magazine Gives Movie Award

Good Housekeeping magazine will present a Special Award of Merit to THE ALAMO, the twelve-million-dollar production in which John Wayne produces, stars, and directs. The award, to be given to Wayne later this month, will be presented by Wade H. Nichols, Editor of the magazine.

"This marks the first time in its seventy-five years of publishing that Good Housekeeping has so honored a motion picture," Nichols said. "We are motivated by a belief that this fine presentation of a great event in our national history deserves special recognition."

THE ALAMO, filmed entirely in Brackettville, Texas, was written by James Edward Grant and used one of the largest casts in motion picture history. Starring with Wayne in the picture are Richard Widmark, Laurence Harvey, Frankie Avalon, Linda Cristal, and Joan O'Brien and guest star Richard Boone. Made in technicolor and with music by Dimitri Tiomkin, THE ALAMO will be released through United Artists in late October in key cities across the country.

Seniors

Seniors are advised by the Granite to sign up for their senior picture sittings at the Granite Office. The office will be open for this purpose the week of October 3rd between the hours of 1 and 10 p.m.

Pictures will be taken beginning the week of October 10th.

UNH Representative Begins Second Year For Philip Morris

As a part of its work scholarship program, Philip Morris Incorporated has announced that Brad Fancy has been selected campus business representative here for the second year. The appointment is for the full school year.

The cigarette firm, which was first in the industry to support college-level education by this method, also makes grants for higher education to children of its employees and contributes to educational research institutions in many areas of the country.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Fancy of Nashua, N. H., Mr. Fancy will serve as a liaison between this campus and the company's New York offices and he will develop and work on advertising and promotion projects for Philip Morris Parliament, Marlboro and Alpine brands.

Now in his junior year at UNH, Mr. Fancy is an English major.

C.A. Lecturer Discusses Some Concepts Of Freedom

Opening the series on Religion and Politics, Mr. Frank Weiskel was the speaker at the open meeting of Christian Association last Sunday night.

For his text, Mr. Weiskel used Charles Clayton Morrison's "Open Letter to Senator Kennedy", published originally in the Christian Century, and recently re-printed in the September 12th volume of Christianity Today. Also quoted were parts from Bishop James A. Pike's book, A Roman Catholic in the White House. He sees at the base of the problem, two different concepts of freedom. Those needing clarification of this issue are urged to look up the sources cited. The subject will continue next week with a panel representing faculty and clergy. This open meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Sunday, October 2, in the Coos-Cheshire room of the Memorial Union.

stitution. A minority in opposition cannot be allowed to resort to mob violence in order to press its views and have a democratic form of government survive. I would say the only time violence can be condoned is when the government itself no longer follows constitutional procedures and has violated the rights of the people."

Black Belt

Professor Husch enthusiastically supports international understanding. He, himself, was advisor for two years to the International Students Association in '57 and '58. He welcomes foreign students in his home; last year Harumi Ori, a Japanese student, lived with his family. Husch, as a patron of the Judo Club in Portsmouth, has his "black belt" — advanced standing in judo.

Congress Considers Changing Wage Law

WASHINGTON — The housewife working to supplement her husband's earnings and the student working to help pay his way through school would be among those hardest hit by changes in the minimum wage law now being considered by Congress, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States reports.

The National Chamber, which speaks for business men, says that if Congress extends the minimum wage law to cover retail stores and if it raises the minimum above the current $1.00 an hour, then inexperienced housewives and students would have much greater difficulties finding jobs.

Retail stores as a whole operate on a margin of profit that is but one per cent of sales, the National Chamber points out. Since wages as well as being income are costs, merchants faced with an increase in costs would turn to labor saving devices and streamlined operations.

It is the inexperienced and the low productive workers who would be most vulnerable to such changes, the National Chamber states.

"THERE'S NO CEILING FOR A SELF-STARTER IN THE TELEPHONE BUSINESS"

When Wes Roberts was nearing the end of his senior year at San Jose State College, he was looking for a job with a wide open future. He found it when he joined Pacific Telephone in San Francisco.

Here's how Wes tells it: "I remember one of my first jobs. The boss said, 'Wes, I want you to work out a plan showing where we'll need new field operating centers to keep up with Northern California's growth over the next 10 years.' I didn't know whether I was more happy or scared."

Wes didn't tell us (but his boss did) that he handled the report like a pro. And today, as a division supervisor, he's holding down a key telephone job.

Wes Roberts' story is not unique in the Bell Telephone Companies. The telephone business is growing fast—and men are needed who can grow just as fast.

Wes can tell you: "We get good training. But no one nurses you along. We hire managers—not errand boys. So far as I can see, there's no ceiling for a self-starter in this business."

If you're a guy like Wes Roberts—if you like to bite off more than you can chew and then chew it—you'll want to visit your Placement Office for literature and additional information.

"Our number one aim is to have in all management jobs the most vital, intelligent, positive and imaginative men we can possibly find."

Cross Country Team Loses To Huskies

The Varsity cross-country team suffered its first dual meet defeat in two years as it dropped a close 27-29 race to the Northeastern Huskies on Saturday at the Lewis Fields Cross-Country Course.

MacGregor Second

Abelon on Northeastern finished first in 25 minutes and 13 seconds beating the Wildcats', Doug MacGregor in a race to the tape. Two more Northeastern runners, Parillo and Kneeland finished third and fourth.

Other point producers on the UNH team were Ed Pelczar, fifth; Chuck McKee, sixth; Paul Girouard, seventh; and Jack Allen, ninth.

URI Next

Next week, the Rhody Rams come to Durham for a race with the Cats. Last year, the varsity ran up a perfect 15-47 score over URI. This year's Rhode Island team is greatly improved with the addition of a number of fleet sophomores.

Summary

Abelon NE	McKee NH

Parillo NE	Woodland NE

Cat Co-Captains

An end and a center will captain the 1960 University of New Hampshire football team.

Center Paul Bellavance of Nashua and end Lou D'Allesandro of Medford, Mass., were selected as co-leaders of the varsity football team which opened its season against Dartmouth in Hanover on Sept. 24.

Both men are seniors and have started at their positions since the first game of their sophomore years.

D'Allesandro, a noted defensive performer, blossomed into a fine pass receiver last year and Bellavance was selected on the All Yankee Conference second team for his play at center.

Bob Towse at Center Is Sophomore Place Kicker

A sophomore center with a talented right toe may give the University of New Hampshire something the team has lacked for years: an accurate place kicker.

Bob Towse of Altamont, N. Y., has displayed amazing consistency at booting the pigskin through the cross bars in practice. He's deadly from anywhere inside the 30 yard line.

If Towse comes through as expected, UNH will have its most consistent place kicker since Don Kelliher hit the bullseye 13 times in 16 tries in 1953.

For the Wildcats last year an accurate place kicker would have made the difference in two games and changed their record from 3-3-2 to 5-2-1.

In 1959, the Wildcats attempted two field goals and missed them both. Coach Chief Boston believes Towse will kick at least one three pointer this year but he has yet to have a UNH player make a field goal attempt in his eleven years at Durham.

If Towse does connect this year, he will be the first Wildcat to score this way since Roy Goodfellow's field goal in the closing minutes edged Norwich 16-23 and helped UNH to its first undefeated season in 1942.

Players Travel in Hearse

Four University of New Hampshire football players arrived in Hanover in a hearse for their opener with Dartmouth.

They had late classes Saturday morning and couldn't leave with the other members of the squad on Friday, so they drove up in the "Black Maria".

The hearse is the property of Dan Ryan of Boston. Dan bought the hearse to provide a cheap means of transportation while at college. Riding with Dan were Chuck Grzielski, Tom Wey and Jim Ward, all varsity players.

NH Outing Club To Hold Mountain Climbing Trip

Outing Clubbers and a good group of hardy friends joined around a campfire for a "Song and Cider Fest" last Friday night. Approximately three-hundred UNH'ers on foot or by car, wagon, or bike made the trek to the Old Reservoir. The old fashioned "sing" and the cool air developed good appetites for cider and donuts which disappeared quickly. Mr. and Mrs. Barry Bryant planned the fest and were happy to see such a large turn out.

Trip to Franconia

The first general trip to Franconia was held last weekend. The nineteen O. C.'s pitched in to clean the cabin, chop wood, and improve the exterior of the cabin for the cold winter months. The trip leaders, Jed Williamson, Harry Gyadwin and A. Paul Douglas, proved to be good cooks as well as good organizers. Sunday, the group hiked up to the falls above the cabin and took the Liberty Springs trail to the Flume.

Mt. Chocorua Climb

Outing Club hopes that the several newcomers on the trip and many more will accept an invitation to climb Mt. Chocorua next Sunday. This climb is especially for the person who has-always-wanted-to-but-never-has-gone-on an Outing Club trip. The chance for a day trip plus the probability of peak fall foliage should make hiking up Chocorua very rewarding. A sign-up sheet will be posted outside OC and WMDR offices in the Union. See you at Chocorua.

Frosh Round-Up

The first big event of WRA this year is the Freshmen Round-Up. This will be held Wednesday, October 5 at 7 p.m. in N. H. Hall. There will be square dancing, volleyball, and refreshments, and Miss Farrell will lead the activities. All freshmen are invited to come, so see you there.

WRA Notes

WRA's fall sports are beginning this month, the first event being open tennis. Anyone interested in playing should go to N. H. Hall for a short sign-up meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 28, or Thursday, Sept. 29, at 4 p.m. Nancy Coffin is leading this sport which is open to anyone who is interested in playing, regardless of skill or experience. An elimination tournament will be set up and games will be starting very soon.

Carol Leland is leading field hockey, another fall open sport. There are sign-up sheets placed in all the dorms and scrimmages will start Oct. 3, at 4:00. Anyone who wants to learn how to play hockey or is interested in being on the all star team is invited to participate.

Co-Rec Tennis

Co-Rec tennis is beginning this fall. Forms have been sent to men's housing units on campus and as soon as they have been returned, a schedule will be set up. Co-Rec dancing will be starting soon under the direction of Sandy Shaw. More details about this will be announced later.

THE PLEDGE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

Today's column is directed at those young female undergraduates who have recently pledged sororities and are worried, poor lambs, that they won't make good. Following is a list of simple instructions which, if faithfully observed, will positively guarantee that you will be a mad success as a sorority girl.

First, let us take up the matter of housemothers. The housemother is your friend, your guide, your mentor. You must treat her with respect. When you wish to speak to her, address her as "Mother Sigafos" or "Ma'am." In no circumstances must you say, "Hey, fat lady."

Second, let us discuss laundry. Never hang your wash on the front porch of the sorority house. This is unsightly and shows a want of breeding. Use the Chapter Room.

Third, meals. Always remember that planning and preparing meals for a houseful of healthy girls is no simple task. Your cook goes to a great deal of trouble to make your menu varied and nourishing. The least you can do is show your appreciation. Don't just devour your food; praise it. Exclaim with delight, "What delicious pork jowls!" or "What a yummy soup bone!" or "What scrumptious fish heads!" or "What clear water!"

Fourth, clothing. Never forget that your appearance reflects not just on yourself but on the whole house. It was well enough before you joined a sorority to lounge around campus in your old middy blouse and gym bloomers, but now you must take great pains to dress in a manner which excites admiring comments from all who observe you. A few years ago, for example, there was a Chi Omega named Camille Ataturk at the University of Iowa who brought gobs of glory to all her sorors. Camille hit on the ingenious notion of suiting her garb to the class she was attending. For instance, to English Lit she wore a buskin and jerkin. To German she wore lederhosen and carried a stein of pilsener. To Econ she wore 120 yards of ticker tape. Her shiningest hour came one day when she dressed as a white mouse for Psych Lab. Not only her Chi Omega sisters, but the entire student body went into deep mourning when she was killed by the janitor's cat.

Finally, let us take up the most important topic of all. I refer, of course, to dating.

As we have seen, the way you dress reflects on your sorority, but the men you date reflect even more. Be absolutely certain that your date is an acceptable fellow. Don't beat about the bush; ask him point-blank, "Are you an acceptable fellow?" Unless he replies, "Yeah, hey," send him packing.

But don't just take his word that he is acceptable. Inspect him closely. Are his fingernails clean? Is his black leather jacket freshly oiled? Is his ukelele in tune? Does he carry public liability insurance? And, most significant of all, does he smoke Marlboros?

If he's a Marlboro man, you know he has taste and discernment, wit and wisdom, character and sapience, decency and warmth, presence and poise, talent and grit, filter and flavor, soft pack and flip-top box. You will be proud of him, your sorority will be proud of him, the makers of Marlboro will be proud of him, and I will be paid for this column.
