Optima Executive Discusses Launching Business During Financial Crisis At UNH Nov. 18

October 25, 2010

DURHAM, N.H. – Daniel Morrison, chairman, president, and CEO of Optima Bank and Trust Co., will discuss the bank’s start-up in January 2008 during the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression at the next University of New Hampshire CEO Forum Thursday, Nov. 18, 2010.

The program, “Defying the Odds: Starting up in a Tough Economy -- The Financial Crisis and its Impact on New Hampshire” begins at 8 a.m. in Huddleston Hall.

Morrison will discuss the creation and success of Optima Bank and Trust, and his view of the financial crisis and its impact on New Hampshire, as well as his outlook for the future of the financial industry.

Optima Bank gained national recognition in 2008 for generating the second-fastest asset growth out of 90 new banks that started up that year. The bank reached breakeven profitability in 18 months, and by the end of 2009 was one of the most profitable new banks in the United States.

Morrison and his wife, Pam, both longtime bankers, developed the idea for Optima Bank as they watched a wave of consolidations in the industry put most of the banks in the area under the control of a few large banks from out of state. By 2008 they had written a business plan, assembled a team, raised the necessary capital, and obtained regulatory approvals to open the new bank. Morrison became CEO and his wife was named chief operating officer.

Morrison has more than 25 years of experience in the banking industry. Prior to founding Optima Bank and Trust Co., he held positions with First Signature Bank, Golden West Financial Corp., and Bank of America. He holds a degree in business administration from San Francisco State University.
