DURHAM, N.H. – David Greer, president and CEO of Wire Belt Co. of Londonderry will discuss the company’s origins and values at the next University of New Hampshire CEO Forum Thursday, March 31, 2011.

The program begins at 8 a.m. in Huddleston Hall.

Greer will share his management practices and vision for the fourth-generation family owned manufacturing company. For more than 60 years, Wire Belt Co. has manufactured conveyor belts for the food processing, textile, electronic, agriculture, and automotive industries.

A resident of Portsmouth, Greer started his career at Wire Belt more than 30 years ago as a mechanical engineer. His role quickly shifted as he took over the family business from his father in 1988. Since Greer became CEO, the company has been named one of the “Top 10 Best Companies to Work for in NH” for four years and received the first “Lean and Green Award” for medium-sized companies from Business NH Magazine. Wire Belt has received other awards for its green manufacturing practices and recently installed one of the largest industrial solar arrays in the state.

Greer leads his organization with the values of family, innovation, integrity, ownership, and fun. He is dedicated to keeping manufacturing in New Hampshire and will share how the company has continued to do so, even during difficult economic times.
