

2016 in Books and Recordings

A year-end roundup of selected scholarly and creative works by College faculty.

SERIES:

THE COLLEGE
LETTER

Thursday, December 1, 2016

We in the College aren't the only ones celebrating the fine work of faculty this year. Three faculty books have appeared on prominent "Best of 2016" lists.

David Rivard's book of poetry, "Standoff," was listed in the New Yorker's "The Books We Loved in 2016."

Ellen Fitzpatrick's

"The Highest Glass Ceiling: Women's Quest for the American Presidency" was named one of the "Notable Nonfiction Books in 2016" by The Washington Post. Daniel Chavez's "Nicaragua and the Politics of Utopia: Development and Culture in the Modern State," published in December 2015 and included in The College Letter's book roundup last year, was named one of "The Best of Books 2016" by Foreign Affairs.

Yet, these books, along with all of the books and CDs listed below, tell only part of the scholarly and creative story of the College. Faculty members have produced journal articles, book

Mário de Sá-Carneiro,
A Cosmopolitan
Modernist

edited by Fernando Beleza and Simon Park
(Reconfiguring Identities in the Portuguese-Speaking World)

Peter Lang AG (November 30, 2016)

The first collection in English to be dedicated to Mário de Sá-

Carneiro's work, this volume brings together scholars from Portugal, Brazil and the USA to reassess Sá-Carneiro's contribution to Portuguese and European Modernism(s). Established researchers and younger scholars delve into the complexities and paradoxes of his work, exploring not only the acclaimed novella "Lucio's Confession," but also his poetry, short fiction and correspondence.

The Motherhood Business: Consumption,
Communication & Privilege

edited by Anne Teresa Demo, Jennifer L. Borda and

Charlotte Kroløkke
The University of Alabama
Press (2015)

"The Motherhood Business"

follows the harried mother's path into the anxious maelstrom of intelligent toys, healthy foods and meals, and educational choices. It also traces how some enterprising mothers leverage cultural capital and rhetorical vision to create thriving baby- and child-based businesses of their own, as evidenced by the rise of mommy bloggers and "mompreneurs" over the last decade.

Uncertainty and Sensitivity Analysis in Archaeological Computational Modeling

edited by Marieka Brouwer Burg, Hans Peeters, and William A. Lovis

Springer (May 19, 2016)

This volume deals with the pressing issue of uncertainty in archaeological modeling.

Detecting where and when uncertainty is introduced to the modeling process is critical, as are strategies for minimizing, reconciling, or accommodating such uncertainty. The book aims to provide guidance and direction to other modelers in the field by distilling some basic principles for model testing derived from insight gathered in the case studies presented.

The Highest Glass Ceiling: Women's Quest for the American Presidency

by Ellen Fitzpatrick
Harvard University Press
(February 29, 2016)

Fitzpatrick tells the story of three remarkable women who set their sights on the American presidency. Victoria Woodhull (1872), Margaret Chase Smith

(1964) and Shirley Chisholm (1972) each challenged persistent barriers confronted by women presidential candidates. Their quest illuminates today's political landscape, showing that Hillary Clinton's 2016 campaign belongs to a much longer, arduous and dramatic journey.

Named by The Washington Post in June as one of “37 Books We’ve Loved So Far in 2016” and in November as one of the “Notable Nonfiction Books in 2016.”

The Experimental Self:
Humphry Davy and the Making of a Man of

Science

by Jan Golinski

(Synthesis)

University Of Chicago Press

(May 11, 2016)

What did it mean to be a scientist before the profession itself existed? Golinski finds an answer in the remarkable career of Humphry Davy, the foremost chemist of his day and one of the most distinguished British men of science of the nineteenth century. Golinski sheds light on the many “selves” of Davy, arguing that Davy fashioned his identity through lifelong experimentation in selfhood.

Chan: My Wounded Head 3 (CD)

Marc Chan, composer

Rob Haskins, piano

Mode Records (2016)

Marc Chan's My Wounded Head 3 is loosely based on the

Passion Chorales from

Bach's St. Matthew's Passion — a sequence of five chorales often collected under the title "O Haupt voll Blut und Wunden" ("O Sacred Head Now Wounded"). Every measure in My Wounded Head 3 is also repeated and the number of repetitions is left up to the performer.

English Nouns: The Ecology of Nominalization

by Rochelle Lieber
(Cambridge Studies in Linguistics)
Cambridge University Press
(September 26, 2016)

Lieber uses data from Corpus of Contemporary American English to show that the syntactic patterns in which English nominalizations can be found and the range of possible readings they can express are very different from what has been claimed in past theoretical treatments. She argues that the relationship between form and meaning in the nominalization processes of English is virtually never one-to-one, but rather forms a complex web that can be likened to a derivational ecosystem.

A Novel Without Boundaries: Sensing Don Quixote 400 Years Later

edited by Carmen Garcia De La Rasilla and Jorge Abril Sanchez
(Documentacion Cervantina Tom Lathrop)

Juan de la Cuesta (November 8, 2016)

This volume offers ten fresh perspectives on Miguel de Cervantes' "Don Quixote" 400 years after the publication of its Second Part. The collection includes articles that examine "Don Quixote" in relation to major literary forms and genres such as novels of chivalry, the Alexandrian epic narrative and the genesis of detective fiction. Other articles explore how the novel has been transformed through different mediums and contexts over the centuries. The volume includes two essays by Rasilla.

LA NOVELA HISTÓRICA
ESPAÑOLA CONTEMPORÁNEA:
NOVEDADES Y TRANSFORMACIONES
(DEL 98 AL NUEVO MILENIO)

Carmen García de la Rasilla (Ed.)

Victoria Reyeshermes

Editorial Verdéis (January 1, 2016)

This book deepens our knowledge of one of the most popular, successful and less studied genres in modern Spanish literature. Departing from the transformation initiated by Miguel de Unamuno in Peace in War (1897), his novel on the Second Carlist War, the volume aims to illuminate the genre's major innovations and changes during those special periods affected by political and cultural crises in contemporary Spain, such as the transitions from the 19th to the 20th century and between the 20th century and the new millennium.

Standoff: Poems

by David Rivard

Graywolf Press (August 2, 2016)

For three decades, David Rivard has written from deep within the skin of our times. With
"Standoff," he asks an essential question: In a world of noise, of global anxiety and media distraction, how can we speak to each other with honesty?

"Standoff" was listed in The New Yorker's "The Books We Loved

in 2016."

Available from the publisher and major online retailers.
