'Iron Chef' Competitor, Washington Post Food Editor Special Guests At UNH Gourmet Dinner April 27 And 28

April 16, 2012

DURHAM, N.H. – The University of New Hampshire may not be home to the famed kitchen stadium of the Food Network's "Iron Chef" competition, but a Seacoast-area chef who competed on the popular television show will pull out all the stops as he works side by side with students from the University of New Hampshire Whittemore School of Business and Economics (WSBE) at the next gourmet dinner April 27 and 28, 2012.

The WSBE Department of Hospitality Management welcomes Benjamin Hasty, executive chef at When Pigs Fly and "Iron Chef" competitor, as the guest chef for the dinner, and Joe Yonan, the two-time James Beard award-winning food and travel editor of The Washington Post and the author of "Serve Yourself: Nightly Adventures in Cooking for One."

"Working with Ben and Joe has been such a privilege for the gourmet dinner team. They both have been more than willing to share their experiences and ideas throughout the process, which has consistently pushed the class to exceed the potential of this dinner," said Yolanda Tselepidakis, marketing director for the spring gourmet dinner.

The six-course gourmet dinner "Tracing Roots" will incorporate regional cuisines of the United States using local and seasonal ingredients. The menu includes handmade charcuterie, oysters on the half shell, chicken-fried short ribs, and ginger-peach hand pie. Attire is formal.

As the guest chef for the dinner, Hasty has been working closely with the UNH students organizing the event. Hasty attended culinary school at the Atlantic Culinary Academy in Dover and apprenticed with Thomas Keller at The French Laundry in Napa Valley, Daniel Boulud in his Manhattan establishments, and Rob Evans at Hugo's in Portland.

Born in Georgia and raised in Texas, Yonan moved to Boston after college to work in newspapers. He was a food writer and travel section editor at The Boston Globe before moving to Washington in 2006 to edit the Washington Post's food section. His work from the Boston Globe and Washington Post has appeared in three editions of the "Best Food Writing" anthology.

The dinner begins at 5 p.m. at Stillings Hall, 20 Ballard Street, Durham, with a cocktail hour, which will consist of passed hors d'oeuvres, signature drinks, and a book signing with Yonan. During dinner from 6 to 9 p.m., Yonan will read an excerpt from "Serve Yourself."

Dinner tickets are $60 per person. Seating is limited. Tickets can be purchased at www.wsbe.unh.edu/gourmetdinner. For more information or questions about the dinner, contact Donna Stickney at Donna.Stickney@unh.edu.

The Whittemore School of Business and Economics at UNH offers a full complement of high-quality programs in business, economics, accounting, finance, information systems management, marketing, and hospitality management. Programs are offered at the undergraduate, graduate, and executive development levels. The school is accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, the premier accrediting agency for business schools worldwide.

The University of New Hampshire, founded in 1866, is a world-class public research university with the feel of a New England liberal arts college. A land, sea, and space-grant university, UNH is the state's flagship public institution, enrolling 12,200 undergraduate and 2,300 graduate students.
