

The Museum of Art, UNH presents ColorON!

Thursday, March 30, 2017

DURHAM – The Museum of Art, UNH presents ColorON! The program will take place in the Museum of Art, Saturday, April 1, 2017 from 10am – 1pm in conjunction with the Museum of Art’s display of Japanese woodblock prints. ColorON! is designed for all ages and families to explore their creative process. This community activity is in celebration of the Museum collection of Japanese woodblock prints. Participants will be encouraged to express their creativity through site-specific projects and learn about the Japanese collection in a variety of ways. The event is free and all levels are encouraged to participate.

Join the Museum on Saturday and learn how to make Origami, color postcards inspired by our Japanese prints, learn about the process of Japanese printmaking, learn how to write your name in Japanese, contribute and color our over-sized Japanese prints. Participants can drop into the museum and explore hands-on activities and view the exhibitions on display. All materials will be provided. This program supported by the Friends of the Museum of Art.
