Sasa Tang, political science and international affairs class of 2011 and Phi Beta Kappan, is currently working on her Ph.D. at American University in Washington, D.C. After graduating from UNH, Sasa served in Peace Corps Morocco from 2012-2014 working on issues of women and girls empowerment. Her current Ph.D. work focuses on violence against women in the Middle East North Africa region. She visited campus recently to use the library and catch up with some of her professors.
