DURHAM, N.H.—The University of New Hampshire will unveil previously unknown, rare photographs of J.D. Salinger taken by famed photographer Lotte Jacobi Tuesday, Jan. 22, 2019, from 4-6 p.m. in honor of the 100th anniversary of the author's birth. The photographs are part of a larger exhibition on Jacobi's work. The event is free and open to the public; registration (<https://bit.ly/2M2YzPb>) is requested.

Thomas Payne, associate professor of English and a published author, will speak about Salinger during the program. He will explore Salinger's influence over writers and the strength of his craft, including a short selection of readings from Salinger's works. The museum will also showcase special items related to Salinger and allow guests an early peek at the upcoming Jacobi exhibit.

The Jacobi exhibit, curated by award-winning filmmaker and photographer Gary Samson, will open in the Special Collections Museum in Dimond Library Jan. 24. Samson will speak about the Jacobi collection at the exhibit opening, and again at a lecture with art and art history lecturer Hyewon Yoon February 20.

The Salinger portraits were recently digitized and are available for license.

J.D. Salinger (1919-2010) was an American author most famous for his teenage cult-classic novel, The Catcher in the Rye, although he also wrote Franny and Zooey and the Nine Stories collection, which includes "A Perfect Day for Bananafish." Like his most famous character, Holden Caulfield, Salinger was reclusive and eventually moved to Cornish to live a quiet life.

The University of New Hampshire is a flagship research university that inspires innovation and transforms lives in our state, nation and world. More than 16,000 students from all 50 states and 71 countries engage with an award-winning faculty in top ranked programs in business, engineering, law, health and human services, liberal arts and the sciences across more than 200 programs of study. UNH's research portfolio includes partnerships with NASA, NOAA, NSF and NIH, receiving more than $100 million in competitive external funding every year to further explore and define the frontiers of land, sea and space.
